The present Congress holds ustil the fourth of March. There is $100;-000,000 in the treasury, and the pressure for tax reduction will be greater rather than less on the assembling of Congress in December. It may be that some compromise measure may get through. If not, then it is likely that the question will go over until next December. Harrison will have his hards.

so full of turning out Cleve-land's Democratic appointees and putting back the republicans Cleve-land has ousted, that he will not desire an early meeting of Congress. We may assume then that bond parchases will thrive. Before the next Congress, meets in December 1859, unless a compromise measure is passed this winter, $150,000,000 will probably be spent in purchasing bonds.

If the next House is Democratic lit can prevent excessive appropriations after that, and it will. If Carlisle is Speaker again, we may be sure that whether any compromise tariff bill sis passed or not, no squandering of the public money will be allowed. The key to the position is then the conmand of the next House. Does that belong to the Democrats or to the Republicans? At this writing it is impossible to say. It is of very vast import to the people.

If the Democrats shall control the House even by one majority, they can prevent extravagance. They can limit the excessive waste of money which the Republicans have in view They can reject Republican measures which aim to reduce the revenue by raising duties to the prohibitory point Thus they can force a compromise on the tariff, and yet obtain some relies for the industries of the country.

what difficult. We confess to great surprise. It was not due to the tagiff issue, for the returns show large gains for Cleveland in the great makufacturing centres; nor is it due to trading in New York, for he gained 12,000 in that city over his vote in 1884. He lost 4,000 in Brooklys, from some inexplicable cause, and the Republican majorities increased in the gural districts. These have the greatest interest in the cause of tariff reform; and so we are disposed to take it that the sectional issue hes beaten us. The Northern hatred of the South has been appealed to again, and with effect; Cleveland has been too kind to us, has dealt too justing with us, for his popularity in the North. He has been punished for our sake. We can see nothing exhave brought such a result .- States-

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 9 .- County returns from Indiana had not begun to arrive at midnight and it is scarcely probable that the official returns will be received before Friday night, when the vote of the State by counties will be given. The returns from Congressional districts are also incomplete, but up to one o'clock this morning nothing had occurred that changed the result as given in the earlier press dispatches. Parrott, Democratic candidate for Congress in the first district, has a majority of only 26 over Posey, Ropublican. This is General Hovey's old district. The latest returns or Presidential electors indicate that Gen. Harrison's plurality will be about 4,000. Several pretended interviews with Harrison have very recently been printed in three or more metropolitan

General F. E. Spinner in Jacksonville (Fla) Times-Union. You are quite right in regard to the origin of the postal currency. When majority would be nearer twenty than all the silver had been paid out of the United States early in 1862, I procured from the Postoffice Department quantities of postage stamps for the purpose of making chan e-my recollection now is that at that time five and ten cent stamps were the only kinds in use. So, to facilitate the making of change, I had the stamps pasted on slips of paper so as to make twenty-five and fifty cents. This was done after an agreement with Mr. Montgomery Blair, the then Postmaster General, that he would redeem them in that condition in postage stamps. It was soon found that this mode of procedure was impracticable. I then persuaded the Postmaster General to procure the engraving and printing of fac similes of the postal compound postage stamps. These the Treasury bought from the Postmaster General under an agreement that the Postoffice Dapartment would redeem them. This was what was called "postal currency," and is the kind you inquire about in your letter. Enclosed berewith you will find a sample of this kind of currency. You will notice that it was made redeemable in postage stamps only. The Postmaster General soon became tired of the additional responsibility and labor that the issuing and redemption of this currency threw upon his office, and he urged that the Treasury should relieve him from it. I then procured the passage of a law by Congress for the printing of a currency that would represent the fractions of the dollar. These were engraved and printed in denominations of three, five, ten, fifteen, twenty-five and fifty cent notes, and in contradistinction to the postal currency were called fractional currency, and were receivable for all government President Carnot, of France, has been placed in a curious dilemma. He was taught the handicraft of a carpenter in his youth, and the striking carpenters of Paris have written to him, complaining that he has not attended their meetings nor subscribed to their fund.

Russell Sage is at least fifteen years older than Jay Gould, but he has not a wrinkle in his face, and is as well preserved as a man of 50. He attributes his continued good health, after twenty-five years in Wall street, to the fact that he never permits himself to worry about business outside of business hours. The mikado of Japan has almost finished his new palace, which has taken six years for its construction. There are 400 rooms in the building, and the dining hall will seat 127 guests. The furniture of the state department came from Germany. Not the least interest-ing object in the palace is an American piano. Before Edward M. Munch, of Buffalo, died he directed that his body be cre-mated in the Fresh Pond crematorium, and his ashes scattered over one of the flower beds on the lawn in front of the retort house. Mrs. Munch faithfully carried out the directions of her husband and for weeks afterward his light gray ashes were plainly visible on the flowers and plants where they had fallen.

The correspondent of The Independance Belge at Rome writes that the state of Leo XIII's health is far from satisfactory, but that his real condition is carefully kept from the public. He is in a painfully nervous state, and is constantly pursued by a morbid fear of death, the slightest ailment assuming in his excited imagination the form of a perious

Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, is very much opposed to having his photograph taken. He sat to a photographer only once, and that was just before he left England, because he wanted to leave hls portrait with a few friends; but he broke the negative with his own hands, so that no more impressions could be taken. Mr. Moody makes his home at Northfield, Mass., where his mother, now 83, still lives, and where he has his coworker, Ira D. Sankey, for a near neigh-

Men who have more than one occupa-tion frequently use different forms of their name for each one. Mr. Stedman, for example, as the banker prefers to be known as E. C. Stedman, and in literature as Edmund Clarence Stedman. In business circles Mr. Francis Hopkinson Smith is known as F. H. Smi , or Francis H. Smith, while in art circles he has a wide reputation as F. Hopkinson Smith. and so business and art have their nice distinctions even when exemplified in the

When Signor Verdi arrived at Montecatini, where he is spending his vacation this year, he found a fine grand piano installed in the sitting room which had been taken for him. It was open and, as a delicate compliment to his illustrious guest, the proprietor of the hotel had placed the score of "Trovatore" on the stand over the key board. The composer removed the book, closed the instrument, locked it, put the key in his pocket, started for a walk and flung the key over the edge of a deep ravine. There is a stery going the rounds about the late J. C. Engel, director of Kroll's Opera house, Berlin. He asked two of his stars, Nachbaur and Reichmann, into his sanctum, and invited them to mention their conditions for a new engagement. "Well," said Nachbaur, "you know my terms. Half the gross re-ceipts," "I also," said Rejchmann; "I cannot take less than half the gross." "Gentlemen," gravely replied J. C. Engel, "supposing I accept, will you, ce-casionally, let me have a free ticket? I should like to be able to enter my own theatre.'

Referring to the emperor of Austria a recent writer says: "He has no taste for court gayety and leads rather a solitary life, retiring early and rising with the dawn. When, however, his presence is necessary at official ceremonies or festive gatherings he is one of the most punctual of men. His only passion is grouse shooting, and in the season he frequently slips away from Vienna to the Alpine forests to indulge in his favorite sport. He is very charitable, and, having a large fortune of his own, distributes his bounties freely though discreetly. Franeis Joseph is never ill, and owes his excellent health to his constant occupation and proverbial sobriety." A tall, dark man, with raven black hair, high cheek bones, sunken cheeks and the garb and manner of a gentleman of the old school, a physician whose name at one time hung upon the lips of the entire country, visited New York last week. He was Dr. Taft, of Washington, who was sitting in a frore seat at Ford's theatre when President Lincoln was assassinated, and who, on a call being made for a physician, entered the box where the wounded man had fallen to the floor and took charge of the case. He jumped over the footlights and was passed into the box at the front by the assistance of three actors. Dr. Taft aused the president to be carried across the street to the house where he afterward died. Mr. Lincoln was so tall in stature that no bed in the house would receive his prostrate form, and he was laid upon mattresses on the floor.

-Work is begun on the Pennsylvania Railroad's elevated structure in Jersey City. It will probably take a year and a half to complete it.
