J. I. MCREE,

They are making preparations on a grand scale for the inauguration of Harrison and we understand that the inauguration of Governor-elect Fowle will probably be quite brilliant also. A military display is proposed which will show the State Guard to fine ad-

Again we have a live Duke with us. His Grace of Southerland. He is to spend some months in Florida, which, he says, has the finest climate in the world. He hasn't been much in North Carolina. He is one of the world's richest men and has large railway and landed interests in this country.

THE last issue of The Journalist contains a picture and sketch of the life of Edward A. Oldham, editor of the Charleston World, who was a North Carolina boy and who has won for himself a place not a little conspicuous in the journalism of the South, as the fact that he is written up in the Journalist testifies.

MRS. ISABELLA BEECHER HOOKER, SISter of the late Henry Ward Beecher, hopes in an interview to see the day when we shall have a woman President of the United States. She has evidently something in her mind like Bulwer's Coming Race for she says: "Then the whole English speaking world will be ruled by women. There are not a few who will asseverate that women rule the world

THE official count of the board of canvassers in Virginia shows that two republicans were elected to Congress from that State-Brown in the 1st district, and Bowden in the 2ad district. The democrats carried 8 districts. Cleveland's vote was 151,977, Harrison's 150,438. Four years ago Cleveland got 145,497, and Blaine layman, were elected as North Caro-129,356. THE election of all four Cong essmen in West Virginia seems to be disputed. The State went demogratic. The Supreme Court of the State was appealed to to take some action in view of alleged frauds. The court and then adjourned over for the to be counted on the fingers, it would not be remarkable if enough illegal votes were unearthed to change the result. One of the republicans, Mc-Ginnis, it is said, claims a majority of 9 over Alderson.

THE Old Reliable, Turner's North Carolina Almanac, with the picture of the State House on the title pagewhat would the North Carolina fireside do without it? It is valuable to the farmer, the merchant, the lawyer, the doctor-to men of every calling, and to the housewife, the children and everybody else. It is interesting also to all. An important feature is its annual State record or brief history of the leading events that occur each year. But it is full of valuable and interesting information of all sorts. It was first published in 1838 by H. D. Turner, bookseller, Raleigh, and has been continued since his death by the present publisher, Mr. Jas. H Enniss. It is a publication that really should be in every North Carolina household. It can be had of any merchant, druggist or postmaster or will be sent post-paid on receipt of price, 10 cents, by Jas. H. Enniss, Publisher, Ruleigh, N. C.

ELSEWJERE it will be seen that the democratic members of the Grand Army of the Republic at the North and in the Northwest are quitting the organization and propose to form an organization of their own. We are not surprised. There never was an organization professedly non-political in the history of the world that was more completely and unscrupulously made use of for the advancement of partisan political ends than the G. A. R. The order has been conspicuously a republican party machine and it has been worked in every campaign "for all it was worth." It is high time the democrats within its ranks were kicking out of the traces. We have often wondered how they could, with any self respect, remain in an order so manifestly a tool of republican tricksters. We are glad to see they are coming out from among those who lend themselves, w thout scruple, to the most high handed methods of radicalism, the motto of which is, in practice, if not in asseveration, Rule or ruin!

It was easy to see that he was suffering, with only a thin coat, a collarles shirt, and thin overalls to protect him from the cold. Finally some curious people asked him why he did not move. He made no reply, but raised the light blanket and dis closed the fact that he was chained to the seat.

Chief of Police Whitcomb was sent for. The sight of the Polish slave made him boil with rage. He exdren and so are not in need of aid pressed the satisfaction it would give him to club Parsons so that the lat actual need whose cases ought to be ter would cease such detestable practer would cease such detestable practices. As Chief Whitcomb was about to demolish the whitcomb was about to demolish the Whitcomb was about to demolish the seat to set the slave free Parsons came out of the store, and approaching the scene, exclaimed: "I'll unlock

"You scoundrel," exclaimed the Chief, "why have you this man locked in this shape? Did you lock him up?" Parsons answered, "I did." In an instant the heavy grip of the Chief was upon him, and he was soon behind prison bars, while the victim of his cruelty was taken into the Chief's office and regaled with a cup of hot coffee and a good meal, which he devoured ravenously. The Pole's name s Vincent Zebrienojtio, and he is about twenty-one years old. His appearance denotes intense suffering. He resembled a dog whipped and frightened half to death. The chain that bound him to the wagon was an ordinary ox chain, six feet long. At one end was a large ring, and midway of its length was a big red padlock. So violently were the people stirred up against Parsons that threats of lynching him were freely uttered, and one prominent citizen said: "Let Parsons be released from the back

It will not be necessary to describe Parsons nor the infamous business he has pursued. He was seen in his cell today and said he had made a mis take in using the chain on his victim. He said he used the chain because on ened to run away. Parsons added that he was taking the Pole to Springfield, intending to ship him from there to New York without a cent, miserably clad, and unable to speak a word of English. Parsons is a deacon in a Northampton church. Parsons said he had fed his slave this morning, but not since, and grumbled because, as he said, the fellow was a door tonight at 10 o'clock. Let the people know it. It would be a good way of settling the slave-employment

'great eater." Parsons was arrested for assault and for false imprisonment, and the statutes are being diligently searched to see if he cannot be held on other points. His case will come up for a hearing tomorrow. Parsons secured bail in $200, James Allyn, of Holyoke, becoming surety for him. The people of the Connecticut Valley, espe cially in Holyeke and Northampton, are much wrought up over Parson's pauper labor bureau, and every effort will be made to land him in jail.

The case was heard in the police court at Holyoke and Parsons was put under a $2,000 bond to appear before the grand jury.]

Senator Ransom's Successor.

Cor. of the News and Observer. Asheville, N. C., Nov. 26, 1888.

Our people are gradually getting over the defeat of President Cleveland and are becoming reconciled to giving Mr. Harrison a fair trial.

I notice from reading your valuable paper that there is quite a number of our distinguished citizens suggested for United States Senator to succeed Senator Ransom. If President Cleveland had been re-elected it might have done to have presented another name besides Senator Ran som, but under the present outlook chair. Missionary address by Rev. it would be worse than folly for North Carolina even to think for a moment of presenting another. I sincerely trust when our Legislature meets nance committee made a report which | that it will find all the gentlemen named for that exalted place will follow the noble example of Hon. Henry W. Grady, of Georgia. The people of North Carolina, and the entire South, are more interested in keeping Senator Ransom in the Senate than at any other period since he entered the Senate. I trust when the wisdom of North Carolina meets at the capital in January it will find it to be the best interest of the State and nation On motion $400 was appropriated to return Senator Ransom. With his to Greensboro mission, and Rev. J. R long experience he can accomplish more for the State and the South than On motion a committee of five was any other person in the State.
