FATAL ACCIDENT.

Section of a Pennsylvania Railroad Train Wrecked.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—A collision occurred on the Pennsylvania Railroad, near New Florence, Pa., this morning between the first and second sections of the western express, killing two passengers and injuring eleven others. The killed are: Henry D. Minat of Brooklyn and Mrs. S. H. Angell of Washington. The injured are R. S. Delaney and wife of Daymarket, Va., very severely; J. F. Matthews of Baltimore, very seriously; J. Hellman of Washington, internally; William Rochester of Hoffman House, New York, internally; A. C. Hicks of Providence, R. I., seriously; Miss M. V. Kellogg of Richmond, slightly; J. H. Hill of Sunbury, Pa., internally injured seriously; William Miller of Allegheny City, very seriously; Dr. Wieckle, very slightly hurt; Mrs. Wieckle, very seriously. At least four of the injured, it is thought, will die. The horror of the scene was increased by the burning of the Pullman coaches. The accident was caused by a heavy fog which prevented their seeing the first section in time to stop. The first section left New York last evening. At Harrisburg a Washington sleeper was attached. The train was due at Pittsburg at 7:45.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 14.—The first section of the express is known as No. 9, and the second as No. 7. The first section was due at New Florence at 5:46 a. m., but it was 6:37 when the train reached that station. The fog was so dense that the engineer did not notice the red signal in the tower till after he had passed. He then slowed up and went back for his orders. He then pulled ahead slowly. In the meantime flagman No. 9 had gone back to signal No. 7. According to the conductor of No. 9 the second train crashed into the first within a minute and a half after the flagman's departure. The flagman could not have gone far in that time, yet he says he torpedoed the tracks and the engineer of the second section saw his signals. The two passengers who were killed outright were asleep in their berths in the rear end of the car and never knew what hurt them. Twenty-two passengers were in the car, most of whom were congregated in and around the wash room in front of the car. The engineer of No. 7 telescoped into this car ten or twelve feet and then stopped or the loss of life would have been much greater. The wrecked car caught fire but the passengers were all gotten out without harm from the flames. The sleeper next forward was thrown from the track but nobody in it was much hurt. Only one person was hurt on the second train, the fireman of the engine, and he but slightly. Later news from the disaster reports seven more injured, only two in the car escaping. Their names are E. A. Pevriss, Miss M. M. Welfar, Cleveland; H. S. Hill, Pittsburg; Samuel Gale, New York; J. W. Westre, Boston; Mrs. S. D. Williams, Cleveland; E. H. Tighe, Detroit. R. S. Delaney and wife of Haymarket, Va., were on their wedding trip and both sustained serious injuries. C. C. Hex, of Providence, R. I., was more seriously injured than was at first supposed and can not live.

Kenney says the census schedules showed a population of 932, while the police enumeration shows a population of 1,510.

Late advices from the Pine Ridge Agency, in South Dakota, are to the effect that the excitement among the Indians on account of the reported coming of the new Messiah is rapidly increasing. Some apprehension is felt that if actual measures are not taken by the government to prevent it serious outbreaks may occur during the early spring or even before.

It is said that the government has the whole situation well in hand and will at once effectually crush out the first signs of uprising.

Chief Inspector Rathbone of the postoffice department received a letter from his assistant in New York city recommending the dismissal of seven letter carriers and one clerk from the New York postoffice and the suspension of four carriers found to be in the employ of "green goods men."

BIRCHALL HANGED.

THE ENGLISH MURDERER DIES GAME.

He Leaves a Statement Declaring That Any Alleged Confessions Purporting to Come From Him Are False and Fictitious.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 14.—Reginald Birchall, whose case has attracted almost universal interest, was hanged here this morning for the murder of C. Benwell, a fellow Englishman whom he lured to America from England, and then killed in a lonely swamp not far from Niagara. Birchall met his fate firmly, and died without showing any sign of fear. His wife called on him at 7 o'clock last evening, and was alone with him until 1 o'clock in the morning, when there was a sorrowful parting. Birchall spent the most of the remainder of the night reading the Scriptures, praying and talking with Rev. Rual Dean Wade and the turnkey. He also arranged his affairs with his executors. The quietness of death pervaded the jail until the hangman from Toronto came. He noisily demanded admittance, and when inside spoke loudly and often, so that the guards, who have become attached to Birchall through his uniform courtesy, were glad when the hangman unconcernedly lay down and went to sleep. At 4 o'clock, Birchall bade good-bye to the night guard, Midegely, who has been watching him. He was fearful that a fake confession might be given out after his death, and gave out this document:

"WOODSTOCK, Nov. 10, 1890.—(All rights reserved.) If after my death there shall appear in the press, or in any other manner whatsoever, any confession that I had any hand in the murder of F. C. Benwell, or any personal knowledge of the said murder with intent or malice aforethought, or any personal connection with the murder on the 17th of February, or other day, or any knowledge that any such murder was likely to be committed, or any statement further than any that I may have made public previous to this date." I hand this statement to the care of Geo. Perry, Woodstock, Ont., that he may know that any confession, or partial confession, are entirely fictitious, and in no way ever written by me, neither emanated from me in any way whatsoever in any person, and the whole are fictitious and without a word of truth. This likewise applies to my story in the "Mail," in which I have made no such confession or partial confession. This holds good throughout.

(Signed) REG BIRCHALL.

At 6 o'clock the other prisoners were put to work to get them out of the way, and Birchall ate a couple of eggs, refusing other things, though he had eaten nothing during the night. A crowd from the surrounding country had by this time collected, and about 200 persons with admission cards were let into the jail yard. Trees, walls and other places near by were crowded with people. His last hours Birchall spent with Dr. Rice, a surgeon, and Mr. Leatham, of Montreal, Birchall's college chum, who has stuck to him. All preparations were completed and the executioner went up and bound Birchall's arms. At 8:25 o'clock he awful procession began, Rev. Rual Dean Wade leading in a surplice and reading the Church of England service for the dead. Behind him were the jail officers and the prisoner, deathly pale, but resolute. His step was steady. His jet black hair and moustache made the pallor of his face like marble. At the jail yard the prisoner's friend Leatham walked with him and held one hand in both of his with all the assurance of a friend's heart clasp. The procession stopped at the gallows until the church service was finished. At the gallows the prisoner had a fixed look. It was not despair, but he had strung his whole being up to die game. As the last words of the service were said Birchall stepped firmly forward, took Leatham's hands in his and the friends kissed each other. Birchall's legs were bound, the black cap put on and the noose adjusted. At 8:29 the signal was given and the drop fell. Convulsions commenced half a minute later, but they were not at all violent, more resembling heavy breathing, with slight twitching of the hands and legs. At 8:30 the convulsions had ceased and at 8:35 Dr. Chamberlain, who stood with his hand on the body, declared life was extinct. There was just six minutes from the drop till the doctor declared Birchall dead. A post mortem was held by Dr. Odum and Coroner McLay presided at the inquest. Dr. Chamberlain said the neck was broken.

The post mortem discovered that death had been caused by strangulation. The usual statutory verdict was found by the Coroner's jury. The opinion of the jail officials and Dr. Chamberlain is that the execution was well done. Mr. Chamberlain says he never saw a more finished execution, and in his judgment Birchall felt nothing three seconds after the weight had been tipped. The body will be buried in the jail yard, but the whereabouts the officials will not divulge.

LAST INTERVIEW WITH HIS WIFE.

The final interview and parting with his wife were touching in the extreme. By the order of the Attorney General the interview was granted, and the devoted woman, who still believed in her husband, although almost all the world is against him, spent four hours with him.

They had a long talk on many subjects. The condemned man sent a message to his friends in England, to his heart broken mother, his sorrowful sister and brother. Then followed one long, lingering embrace and look, and Mrs. Birchall was led out of the cell and dark stairway to look upon her husband no more in this life.

She was driven to her hotel, where she spent the night in hysterics.

HER HUSBAND DOWNCAST.

Birchall returned moodily to his cell and sat for a long time meditating upon his hard fate and terrible death that awaited him. For the first time since he was incarcerated he appeared downcast.

In a short time the Rev. Dean Wade entered the jail and spent the rest of the night with him.

This afternoon the sheriff ordered that Birchall's cell be changed and the orders were carried out. This was to avoid any possibility of his having poison secreted in his cell.

This afternoon he expressed a strong desire that Turnkey Forbes and Mr. Leatham, his executors, should attend the execution. Rather a strange wish, but Birchall is a strange man and does not do things like other men. He loves to be startlingly original.

During the day before the final interview with his wife he was very cheerful, and chatted with his guards quite freely. He ate well, smoked several cigars and appeared to take his execution resignedly.

ANNOYED BY CRANKS.

During the day his wife has received a great number of letters and telegrams from cranks addressed to her husband. Among them was a dispatch from a well known private detective. It read: "Dear Rex—I have read yesterday's Herald. I forgive you. God bless you."

The hangman who officiated is the same man who hanged Kane in Toronto and Smith in London, Ont., recently.

The Attorney General will give his decision today on the question of allowing Birchall's body to be buried outside the goal walls. The general feeling here is that his body should be given to his friends for burial.

Disastrous Fire in San Francisco.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—A disastrous fire broke out last night in the large brick building known as the Worthermer Building, corner Sacramento and Davis streets, owned by S. Wangheim and occupied by H. Dentard, commission merchant; Sironi & Co., candy manufacturers; and H. Leives & Co., cigar manufacturers. The flames were leaping through the roof before the alarm was sounded, and shortly after the room fell followed by the floors which were filled with heavy machinery. At 11 o'clock the walls fell out in the street with a crash, and the firemen only saved themselves by plunging through the windows of the stores opposite the burning building. This gave the firemen a chance to work, and they soon had the fire under control. The loss will be heavy, probably $250,000, there being much expensive machinery and valuable stock in the building.

An Engineer and Fireman Killed.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

BELLAIRE, O., Nov. 14.—A collision occurred on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad near Scott's Station at 4 o'clock this morning between the east and west-bound freight trains, killing John Watson, engineer, and James Flesher, fireman, instantly. James Barrett, fireman, was scalded so badly that he died an hour later. Thomas Burke, another employee, was seriously injured about the head and cannot recover. Both the engines and cars were completely wrecked. The accident was caused by disregarding orders.

An Unsafe Bridge Caused It.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

SALEM, Oregon, Nov. 14.—The corner's jury empanelled to inquire into the cause of the death of the persons killed in the accident on the Southern Pacific Railroad Wednesday night, returned a verdict last night that the accident was the result of an unsound and unsafe bridge and that the Southern Pacific Railroad Company is guilty of criminal negligence in allowing such a structure to stand and be used for the passage of trains.

TRIBUTE TO THE PRESS

MR. SPRINGER'S ELOQUENT RESPONSE AT THE BANQUET.

He Pays Honor to Whom Honor is Most Assuredly Due at the Great Thurman Collation.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—It was half-past 2 o'clock this morning before the great Thurman banquet came to a close and the banqueters arose from their chairs. The last and one of the most effective speeches of the night was Mr. Springer's, of Illinois, who, in an impromptu address, responded to the toast of "The Press," and nominated Cleveland for President in 1892. In introducing Mr. Springer, Toastmaster Outhwaite presented him as one of the distinguished leaders of the suppressed minority in the present House of Representatives, but a man who had never been suppressed himself. (Cheers.) Mr. Springer was warmly welcomed and spoke as follows:

Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen of the Thurman Club: I do not expect to be called on to respond to any sentiment on this occasion, and therefore will be very brief in response to that which has been suggested. To the press of the country we owe much for the result of the recent election. (Applause.)

The Press has at least taught American people that protective tariff is tax. (Applause.) McKinley, in his recent interview stated that the late elections had gone against the Republican party for the reason that the people did not understand his bill. The fact is that the recent elections went against the Republican party because the people did not understand his bill, (laughter and cheers) and for this understanding of it we are indebted to the press of the country. (Applause.) To the press we are indebted for the fact that on Tuesday last 150 majority of the Representatives were returned to the 52nd Congress opposed to the McKinley bill. We will be also indebted to the press for guiding that majority in the future to wise and patriotic legislation. (Applause.) It will restore to the House of Representatives its deliberative character. It will re-establish the constitutional and conservative methods of legislation which have prevailed for 100 years and more in the House to what it ought to be—a deliberative body. It will also point the way to future success in the great contest of 1892. We need not go beyond this banquet hall for a leader. (This referred to the coming re-nomination of Ex-President Cleveland and the audience went wild with enthusiasm and mounting chairs the banqueters waved their bandanas and cheered loudly.)

Continuing Mr. Springer said: Under his leadership, with the aid of the American press, we may confidently expect that in November, 1892, at least thirty-five States of this nation will cast their electoral votes for the nominees of the Democratic party (prolonged cheers). For this result we will be indebted to that great popular educational agency the press. The press therefore needs no eulogy from my lips. It will speak for itself. (Cheers and applause.) At 2:40 the banquet closed amid the greatest of good cheer, the band playing "The Star Spangled Banner," the guests retiring to the great hall where the guests were waiting to congratulate Messrs. Thurman and Cleveland on the success of the evening and the good words which had been uttered. The two central figures of the evening passed from the hall a few minutes later and soon backs were dashing about in every direction.

Mr. Cleveland left for New York at 11:30 this morning in the private car of Senator Bryce. The only occupants of the car were the ex-President, Mr. Delmont and Congressman Springer, of Illinois, the latter traveling east as the guest of Mr. Cleveland. The guests of the banquet all left the city on the out-going trains during the forenoon.

New York Money Market.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The market to-day was characterized by the absence of excitement of the last few days. The tone was weak and a fraction lower. The Pacific mail and some of the specialties were hammered down 2 points or more, the Union Pacific and Louisville & Nashville 1 1/2 each and the St. Paul and Atchison 10 1/2 each. The market steadied some about noon.

Chicago Tribune: The blushing bride-elect was rehearsing the ceremony about to take place. "I shall expect you to give me away, papa," she said. "I'm afraid I have done it already, Caroline," replied the old man, nervously. "I told your Herbert this morning you had a disposition just like your mother's."

UNITED ON MR. CALHOUN.

A Grandson of John C. Calhoun May Sit in the Senate.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 13.—A big sensation in the Senatorial fight to-night is the determination of the anti-Gordon forces to concentrate upon Pat Calhoun as the man to fight Gordon.

The caucus of anti-Gordon forces, principally Alliance men, was long and heated. A dozen or more names received consideration, principal among them being ex-Senator Norwood, Judge J. K. Hines and Calhoun. Several informal ballots were taken, and then Calhoun showed a big lead and his nomination was made unanimous.

For several weeks the Alliance men have been trying to concentrate anti-Gordon forces, but all efforts heretofore have been unavailing. The result has been that Gordon has gained ground steadily, getting a number of Alliance votes that were counted against him.

At to-night's caucus there were not enough to elect Calhoun, but it is confidently claimed by his friends that the necessary votes will be forthcoming on the day of election. The election takes place next Tuesday. A conservative estimate places Gordon and Calhoun forces about equal, with a good-sized floating vote.

Pat Calhoun is a grandson of John C. Calhoun. He is principally prominent as a railroad attorney. He conceived and carried to success the plan by which the principal Southern roads were brought together in the West Point Terminal Company, and he is the general Southern counsel of that company. He is a young man, under forty, and is considered one of the brainiest men in Georgia.

Gen. Gordon's friends are confident of his election.

The next five days will see the liveliest fight Georgia has known.

A Mysterious Disappearance.

By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 14.—Wm. Bornemann, vice-consul of the Netherlands and manager of the Charleston and New Orleans offices of Knopf, Frerichs & Co., cotton buyers, is missing. Bornemann has for years talked of self-destruction, and for the past week that has been the constant subject of his talk. His accounts and business are in excellent condition. His wife and family are living in Bremen, where he has just bought an elegant house. The only cause for the suicide, if it has occurred, is mental aberration. Bornemann is a nephew of Baron Knopf, and was in good circumstances.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 14.—A special to the Dispatch says a collision of freight trains occurred this morning near Ford's depot, Dinwiddie county, on the Norfolk & Western Railroad. The engines came head end together, totally destroying both and derailling and piling 16 cars on top of each other. The engineers and firemen of both engines jumped. One train hand was killed and five severely injured. Their names could not be learned.
