A Cloud Burst Damages a Town. By Telegraph to the News and Observer.

OTTOWA, Ill., June 19 .- Utica, the busy little cement and brick manufacturing town and the seat of many cosy and pretty homes, was devastated by a cloud burst yesterday. The cloud broke just north of the town over a high bluff and came into the valley with a roar that created a panic, caused the inhabitants to rush before it and seek shelter on the high ground. In the space of a quarter an hour the water rose 6 feet in the low lands and from 1 to 3 feet in the dwellings and stores in the heart of the town. Buildings were shaken from their foundations and sidewalks torn away. Fortunately no lives were lost and the water soon receded. The protest claims four hundred thousand dollars loss sustained by reason of being compelled to stop taking seals on July 20th of last year when only one-third of a contract number of seals had been taken. The Company also gives notice that it will claim from the United States reimbursement for the loss sustained during the year 1891 through operation of modus vivendi with England, recently promulgated by the President. An additional claim of $150,000 is presented for expenditures which the Company has made in providing for the main-tenance of the islands of St. George and St. Paul, which expenditures were imposed on the Company under terms of contract with the United States.

The protest concludes with this paragraph: If it may be assumed as England has asserted, and this Government has denied, that the easternment has defined, that the eastern portion of Behring Sea is not the marine territory of the United States, but is "High Seas," the commission respectfully submits that it is not competent for Great Britain and the United States alone, G; S. The Prince of Wales Still in Trouble

By Cable to the News and Observer. LONDON, June 19 .- The position of the Prince of Wales is becoming more compromised by complications growing out of the famous Tranby Croft card party. The young German Emperor having taken the liberty of lecturing his uncle or his conduct in that affair, a breach between the two has been reopened and may lead to a postponement, if not to the abandonment, of the Emperor's visit to England. Should. however, the Emperor persist in his visit, he will in all probability not find the Prince of Wales to welcome him when his fleet arrives off Sheerness; and for similar reasons he will not be accompanied on his visit by the Prince, whose absence, however, will be more than made up by the presence of the Queen.

The Freeman's Journal publishes a cartoon, in which Parnell, Healy and others are seated around a baccarat table playing the celebrated game. Healy is pictured in the act his left, while Parnell whispers to Erin, "This is too hot."

"With a desire not to exaggerate our own excellencies and with an effort to take a calm and judicial view of the entire situation, the committee is of the opinion that the work now done at the University is the best ever done there in the history of the institution. Especially gratifying was it to see the enthusiastic energy of those in charge of the different departments of study the day were entirely insignificant. and the ambition to raise not merely their own respective departments, but, so far as in their power lay, the entire University work to the highest possible standard of excellence. With meagre appropriations the Uni versity must have its serious and necessary limitations, but it is gratifying to see that every year works some new improvement either in the better equipment of the old depart-ments or in the establishment of new

into the character and conduct of the student body, your committee expresses the confident belief that the moral tone in the University was never better than at present. Indeed there are indications that it is better now than it has ever been. It is not to be expected that boys and young men who have been allowed a wide range in conduct while at their father's homes, should become models when they enter the Univer-sity, and invariably a few of this class come to the University just as they go to other educational institutions. But it is unfair to judge any institution by the few rather than the many. The committee was peculiarly gratified to find that the students themselves have made up their minds to put an end to the practice of The Raleigh Land and Improve- hazing in the University-a practice that is a relic of the past and totally out of harmony with an age of civilization and culture. It is with pless ure that we incorporate into this repert a copy of the resolutions of the Freshmen class and the endorsing resolutions of the Student body.

The strength in silver was also to-day an influential factor in sustaining prices, a revival of speculative interest in that metal taking some edge off the loss of gold.
