After a careful and patient study of the sub Treasuary bill, I am continued that its enactment into law would be disastrous to the country, and especially so to the agricultural interests of the country. Holding this view, I cannot write one word in favor of that bill. The dominant sentiment in the Alliance upon this measure is in irreconcilable conflict with my views; and the only manly and honorable course left open for me is to retire, and let another editor take charge of the paper whose views are in harmony with those of the friends of the sub-Treasury bill. It is due to Col. Polk and to all the other officers of the Alliance that I should distinctly say, that no pressure of any kind has ever been brought to bear upon me to induce me to take any position that I could not occupy with a conscience void of offense. I have been treated by all the brethren with whom I have been associated in the management of the paper with the most marked, and the most unintermitted kindness, and I retire with the kindliest feelings for all my associates.

When our enter-prising friend and fellow citizen, J. A. Sexten, with his Fort Payne associates first took hold of this property the tales they told about its richness in iron and coal seemed to our people incredulous as none of the said metals had showed themselves above the ground, but, Mr. J. H. Mullen, one of America's most expert mineral engineers, quietly examined the premises and said they were there but imbedded in the bowels of the earth. A little work has exposed them and his most sangaine expectations have been surpassed.

Mr. Mullen has examined most of he mines in this and other countries and says Farmville only needs vim and a little money to put her ahead of any place on the continent for the manufacture of iron in its various forms. Both the coal and the best iron ores exist in inexhaustible sup

How a Beautiful Flower was Named

An old legend tells of two lovers, walking by the river Rhine. The lady begged her suitor to pluck a little pale-blue flower, growing on the bank. In doing so, he fell into the water, and was drowned; but, while sinking, he threw the flower to her, and cried: "Forget me not!" Thousands of women will never forget what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has done for them.
