Letters to the Editor must come free of postage.

THE PRINTER.

"The printer is one of the class of public men that probably exercises greater influence for good or evil, than any other, not even excepting the clergy, or those of the legal profession. The press is the great engine of civilization, and the printer is not only its engineer, but he is its life and soul, and the mind that gives its intelligence and influence. Western Citizen.

We have frequently been tempted to speak of the duties, responsibilities, and of the qualifications of the printer; and in the above text we proceed to remark—

1. The Printer has the power of doing more good than any other man. Through his hands every book, essay, communication and letter that is given to the public must pass. He, therefore, is first made acquainted with every new theory in philosophy, discovery in science, production of literature, and with every new thought that is written. He has thus the means of becoming a very intelligent man, and as his business stands between the author and the public, he is not only the medium of communication, but his intelligence makes him the only founder of publications that are to enlighten the people; and very often does he become the able author and editor. It is estimated that there are 2000 serial publications in the United States; at least the proprietorship of 1800 of these is in the hands of professional printers. All country papers are owned by and mainly edited by printers, and at least two-thirds of all city publications are owned and conducted in the same way. Thus we see that the printer not only sets the type, but actually writes or selects most of the matter that amuses and instructs our vast population. How great then is the power he wields!

2. But not only is he powerful in this, but the very manner in which he shall execute this art—the mechanics of printing are powerfully influential for good when accompanied with that accuracy and beauty which intelligence can impart to them. There is a captivating spirit in beauty, and nowhere can beauty be more charmingly impressed than in the typographical art. A book sent out by a miserable workman, lacking all the excellencies of the art, is repulsive in all its pages, and the reader opens it with a disrelish of its contents. But on the other hand a book of clear, plain letter, and of true artistic work, possesses an attractive appearance on every page, and multitudes who are not inclined to read are led to admire its beauty and then to overcome that intellectual dullness which has them in ignorance. Thus we see that every thing connected with the printing art can be made powerfully instrumental for public improvement.

3. But more than this: Multitudes write brilliant thoughts, who are unable to punctuate properly, or even express themselves in the style best calculated to give force to their thoughts; and those who can write accurately, make many mistakes when in haste. Now the printer, if he be as he should be, stands at his case and with the crudely written manuscript before him, can put it into such a form as will most agreeably surprise the author, and make him appear as a scholar as well as a philosopher. The printer can thus send out what may electrify the reader, while it would fall "stillborn," or perhaps excite disgust and ridicule if published as written. The printer who is truly what he should be, is much like the reporters of speeches in congress, who, it is well known, by their skill in writing, make the crudest efforts appear the most polished, and send out speeches that operate powerfully upon the public, which, if printed as delivered, would only bring the orator into contempt.

What, then, must be done to elevate and dignify the Art of Printing, and enable printers to wield the power they possess? On this branch of our inquiry we make the following suggestions:

1. The printer must be well paid. In this golden age, when every man must either "dig" for himself or speculate out of others, there must be a good compensation to secure the best talent. This talent is required in printing to make it tell the most powerfully upon the public.

2. The business of the printer is confining and injurious to health. We wish we had the bill of mortality among printers, that others might see how fatal this business is when sedulously pursued. They must, therefore, be so paid that they need not sacrifice themselves, and to this end we applaud their attempts to raise their wages.

3. The public should be generous to the printer, because the best interests of the people are in his hands. Those who patronize him, should pay him promptly and with a free good will. They should no more expect to get the productions of his art without prompt and liberal payment, than to get the sustenance of their physical life without a just equivalent. But many underrate the printer's products; they look upon them as things that can be dispensed with, and are often more inclined to hoard their dimes for the gratification of the miser's spirit, than to purchase that which will give them some character in the world and increase their happiness. Such persons know that they have bodies like all other animals, but they do not often think they have minds which can make them great—and perhaps the truth is they have not, for that is a small spirit that has not as much regard for the mind as the body.

4. Printers themselves should attempt to elevate their profession. By this we mean, that they should cultivate that moral purity which scorns the manners of the loafer, and drive from their craft all those who may be found degrading it by immoral publications.

Any printer who sets a type conveying an unholy thought and calculated to degrade the reader, should be marked by the profession and banished from the craft. They should also bring their influence to bear upon all the publishing houses so as to forbid the employment of such as are not qualified to do honor to the Art. To do this they must combine all the really meritorious, and swear that no employer who degrades the art, by immoral publications or by employing incompetent hands, shall have their services on any terms. Let the wages be raised so that intelligent and skillful printers can afford to remain in the profession, and these can bring such an influence to bear as will soon make the art what it should be, the omnipotent power of the world. Intelligence, virtue, and every improvement would thus be rapidy advanced. Nonpareil and Herald (Cincinnati.)

The "Bugg" also at Home Again!

I HAVE just returned the second time from Boston, New York, and Philadelphia, having spent nearly all of August and September in said cities, getting up our CLOTHING, every article of which was cut by myself, and made up under my own inspection; and I presume there is no one in North Carolina now, who would be verdant enough to question my capacity after the eloquent tribute paid to my "artistic skill" in our last Superior Court, by Judge, Counsel on both sides, witnesses and Jurors. I refer to the case of "Biggs vs Oliver"—action for damages, in which I had to pay $250, in consequence of my extended reputation.

Come in, if you please, and assist me in paying off the judgment by buying our Goods. Who is there, in North Carolina, who has not heard of the Hon. George E. Badger, the Hon. William H. Haywood, Jr., and "Bug" Oliver? Why "their fame is no more to be hemmed in by State lines than their talents are to be circumscribed within the same narrow limits."

We are connected, as all our customers know—and if they don't know it, they may—with no Northern House—but are Tailors ourselves—buy our own goods, and import quite as many of what we purchase in proportion to our business, as any House in this State or out of it. There is no Establishment here or elsewhere that possesses any advantages over us. We buy where everbody else buys, and we think we understand our business and buy as cheaply. We say our CLOTHING is equa lto any ever offered for sale in North Carolina, and, we think superior, being judges ourselves of clothing. Of that though, we will leave the public to decide, when they examine for themselves. One thing is certain—without intending to reflect upon any one—we will sell our clothing cheaper than the same articles can be bought for in any of the Northern cities; and as cheap as any body that comes here, who does not steal his clothing ready made.

Our stock embraces Drab, Black, Blue, Green, Gray, and other OVERCOATS from $6 to $20 and upwards. CLOAKS, full circle, $18 and upwards. Frock, dress, and sack COATS from $7 to $12 and upwards. PANTALOONS, all colors and prices, from $4 to $8—VESTS, all kinds and all sizes, at all prices from $1 25 to $5. In fact, every thing that can be found in any similar establishment in the Union.

We are North Carolinians. We are permanently located here, and if we sell as cheap as others, why not give us the preference? If we do not sell as good goods at as small a price, we will not ask your patronage.

NEW STORE.

THE Undersigned most respectfully inform their friends and the public generally, that they have associated themselves together, in the Tailoring and Clothing business, under the firm of J. J. Biggs & Co. They have opened a New Store, a few doors below the North Carolina Bookstore, where they will be happy to see all of their old Friends and Patrons, and pledge themselves to sell cheaper than ever. They can at all times warrant a good fitting Suit of Clothes.

Call and examine their fine Stock of Ready Made Clothes. Also, their Stock of fine Cloths, Cassimeres, and Vestings.

To the Members of the approaching Legislature, they would say, it shall be to their advantage to patronize the new firm of J. J. Biggs & Co. Call next door to Mr. Root's Jewelry Store.

J. J. BIGGS,
SYLVESTER SMITH.

Raleigh, Oct. 16, 1850. 837—6t.

TO MY FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS,

And the Public Generally.

HAVING associated with me in the Clothing business, Mr. Sylvester Smith, it will henceforward be conducted under the firm of J. J. Biggs & Co. Mr. Smith has been long known as a Merchant Tailor, but is now turning his attention to the Ready Made business, and it is the design of the New firm, to keep up a large assortment of all kinds of Ready Made Clothing.

Our Stock of Cloths, Cassimeres and Vestings, will also be kept up, a beautiful assortment of which, is now being opened, embracing all the latest styles.

Mr. PEACH will attend to the Cutting Department, as heretofore. J. J. BIGGS.
