The winter season is almost upon us. The trees are shelding their leaves; our farmers are about done housing their rops, while many of the birds have already taken their departure for warmer quarters. In a little time the lat of the crops will be gathered in and the cold wind will sweep over the nake i fields. A shade of darkness passes over the mind as we look back upon the events of the season that is now gone, abounding in goodness and mercy and filled with hope ar d promise. It was one in which there was a most extraordinary, we had almost said, miraculous outpouring of the blassings of heaven upon our people. A fair larvest, much larger ti an generally anticipated, has been gathered in o the gir ner of our farmers. Notwiths anding a very backward season, during planting time, followed by burning droughts, our farmers, with but few exceptions in various localities, have been am; ley remunerated for their year's labor. Happine s and presperity have crowned the labors of the year; and health and comfort have filled our homes with glatlaces. Yet a feeling of sadae's here when the Spring and Sunmer beworthy citizens, have passel away. Here in our own town, the pa'e and has gathered his sheaves for the garner of cterni y and left sorrow in many a
