

THE CIRCULATION OF THE CAROLINA MESSENGER IS NOW LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER PAPER PUBLISHED IN EASTERN CAROLINA.

Immigration.

Some of our State exchanges, since the adoption of a discussing with much animosity the question of immigration, and the attention of the Legislature is called to not all important subject. The views expressed by our contemporaries are various, though all have the same aim. We confess, having given the matter every attention, that we differ very materially with some of our friends, as to the most available method likely to procure immigration. We agree that the project should have the sanction and encouragement of our State government, and also favor the appointment of a Commission of immigration, one who understands the system and habits of the immigrant, and is otherwise familiar with the system and the various agencies to be employed leading to the greatest good. But the State in its present financial condition is unable to undertake such an enterprise. Therefore our belief is that the end can be best effected by county and local organization, managed by men possessed of every capacity, or even individual efforts, to which the State might extend such endorsement or aid as would be necessary for the purpose of disseminating information, and to give the organization, or any efforts made in that direction, the approval which would give the project strength and assurance of good faith abroad.

The matter of disseminating information, printed in various languages, is of great importance, and should be done judiciously and systematically, and wherever the State can give should be in that direction. It should be done in a simple and attractive manner, giving particulars in regard to farms, and the various advantages of the State, and the various agencies to be employed leading to the greatest good. But the State in its present financial condition is unable to undertake such an enterprise. Therefore our belief is that the end can be best effected by county and local organization, managed by men possessed of every capacity, or even individual efforts, to which the State might extend such endorsement or aid as would be necessary for the purpose of disseminating information, and to give the organization, or any efforts made in that direction, the approval which would give the project strength and assurance of good faith abroad.

Abiding the Issue.

"The South," we are told, has decided for Grant by a small majority, wherefore, those of the South who were not for Grant should conform to the judgment and set to work to build up their section's industrial and commercial prosperity. We heartily second the motion. Let the South, like the North, accept the situation. Let her resolve not to waste years in sighing for the possible, but whatever her hand findeth to do, that do with all her might.

Legislation By Congress.

Even at this early day there are indications as to the measures which will be pressed before the next Radical Congress, during the approaching winter. A Washington correspondence writes: THE COMING SESSION—THE PRESIDENT'S POLICY, ETC.—THE ANNUAL MESSAGE. It is not generally believed that the session which convenes three weeks hence will be notable in any particular respect. It is what is called the "short session," and including the holiday recess will not last more than nine weeks. Any omnibus measures, with the present political status of the House, could be easily "talked to death" by the opposition, and are not, therefore, likely to be introduced and passed, merely for want of time. No new domestic legislation on the tariff or on the internal revenue issues—except perhaps slight modifications of the law suggested by experience to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue—are probable, though bills looking to an abolition of the stamp duty on machines and bank checks and change in the tobacco tax will be introduced.

Suspended.

The Winston NATIONAL REPUBLICAN newspaper has suspended publication. So goes. These radical papers are nearly all kept up by office-holders subscription and as soon as the campaign is ended they give up the ghost. But the truth is, the newspaper business, in both political parties, is overdone in this State, and of those published at least one-half of them are printed at a deal loss to their publishers. This speaks bad for the intelligence of our State, and we reluctantly confess it, but it is nevertheless, Newspapers are not patronized in North Carolina as they should be. Many of them are kept alive only by pecuniary aid extended to them by the embryo city or ambitious town from which they hail, and to whose building up, if well edited, they contribute more than all other means or force combined. Hence every town wants a newspaper. They know that nothing like a newspaper can trumpet its advantages abroad, and make the world think that Carolina is commercially the most advantaged situated section of the land on the continent. But the zeal of these people is not in vain. The paper is neglected. If in maintaining the paper has obtained good and healthy subscribers, large enough to sustain it in a legitimate way, and the proprietor is industrious and capable, the journal continues to exist. If they have not, or if the paper is naturally sickly, it speedily dies out. This has been the history of scores of newspapers started since we first embarked in the enterprise. Every now and then one of the lily, as we might say, beget an immediate rival to run a newspaper; and not only that, but believes it is easy to do it. A few struggles, and all the color and animation thrown into the enterprise, vanish in their air. When will the people learn that it takes more energy, persistence, hard work and brain to run a newspaper, than it does to run a piece of saw-hill? And when will they learn that none but the men who have the business bred in their bones, as a writer says, can publish a newspaper successfully, and at the same time enjoy their calling? Nobody but an artist can paint, anybody can dab. So it is with the newspaper world. While many have the natural talent, they lack the tact that experience and nature give; and after a few and abortive efforts, they throw up their calling in disgust, and curse everything connected with it. Those subscribers who have paid in advance lose their money, and the result is a general mistrust toward newspapers. Even papers established on sound foundations and of years standing are made to suffer by the failures of such unsuccessful attempts to run a newspaper. There is no business that requires so much tact, judgment, skill, and business capacity, as this profession; and yet there is none which the outside world thinks can be so easily conducted.

The Administration and the Carpet-Baggers.

The New York TIMES, the leading organ of the Administration, is severe upon Governor Warthen, of Louisiana, because he has called the Custom-House Ring; but wonderful to say, the Times denounces him as a "carpet-bagger," and speaks of his recent performances at New Orleans, as "the last convulsive kicks of a carpet-bagger in the South." It goes on to say "it is certain that recent public events have made the downfall of his class (the carpet-bagger) throughout the South only a question of time, and of no very extended one at that." It speaks of the need of efficient and economical State Governments in the South which "she can only get from the hands of her own citizens." The Richmond Whig thinks that all looks as if the newly elected President who profited so much by carpet-bag influence, and whose first term has been spent in building up this class of adventurers, is about to turn his back upon them, to take Mr. Greeley's advice and issue the order "Go back thieves." Has it come to this that these so long cherished patriots are to be slain in the house of their friends? Well, seeing is believing.

State Council, Friends of Temperance.

Ma. ERROR.—The State Council of the Friends of Temperance convened in the city of Fayetteville on the 12th inst. The number of delegates in attendance were larger than at any previous session of that body. The proceedings were conducted in the most harmonious manner—in striking contrast with the feelings evinced at the last session, which met in Franklin. The reports from the different counties were highly encouraging. The official reports, in the hands of the Secretary, show an actual increase of 1,000 members, over the total number reported last year. The Rev. Geo. Wetmore, an Episcopal minister, was elected to the position of President of the State council. A good selection.

menced—will present a new Cuban policy, as is claimed in some quarters. THE POSTAL TELEGRAPH SCHEME. One of the features of the coming session will certainly be the postal telegraph project. The President will especially recommend to Congress again the plan proposed by the Postmaster-General for uniting the telegraphic system of the United States with the postal system, while the latter official will submit an exceedingly elaborate and special report on the same in his forthcoming annual report to Congress. Incompetent to give the country an effective mail service, the Postmaster-General will try to cover that incompetence by assumption of the telegraph. Mr. Creswell has detailed a special officer to gather all the information possible on the telegraphic branch of the question, and will also forward a special report on an exhibit of the practical workings of the English postal telegraph system.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.
