

THE EAGLE.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1871.

THE SPIRIT OF COMMUNISM or impatience at easy progress, is becoming more manifest throughout the civilized world.

The original copy of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation was burnt in the great fire at Chicago.

Mr. Editor:— I saw an advertisement in the EAGLE, giving notice that application will be made to the State Legislature to amend the charter of Flat Swamp, Lock's Creek and Evans' Creek Canal Company.

I have some knowledge of that as well as other portions of the country, for my business in times past gave me an opportunity to know somewhat of the geography of the country, and to see a large portion of the lands, woods and water-courses of the country.

I believe if the canal company will have the right kind of a charter, the work well done and the business properly managed, it will be as profitable a public enterprise as is ever undertaken in the country.

There are many things I could name in connection with the enterprise, but I want to squeeze it into as small a space as possible in order that it may get a resting place in some corner of your paper.

I have no personal interest in the enterprise, and my object is to give you a fair and impartial view of the views of those who are interested in the enterprise.

As I stated above, I have no personal interest in the undertaking. I feel interested in the matter on account of the great good that would grow out of the enterprise if properly carried out.

The Northwest seems almost to be giving up the dreadful devastation of fire. The long season of extreme dry weather is one chief cause.

his wife had to nurse him, and arrange with her own hands the scanty supplies for her humble family.

Maj. Anderson bravely defended the Star-Spangled Banner, and fought with the patriot's devotion, alone, and in the face of defeat, at the time when the powerful politicians of the North were too cowardly to take a stand on either side.

FOR THE EAGLE. CUMBERLAND COUNTY, October 16th, 1871.

Mr. Editor:— I saw an advertisement in the EAGLE, giving notice that application will be made to the State Legislature to amend the charter of Flat Swamp, Lock's Creek and Evans' Creek Canal Company.

I have some knowledge of that as well as other portions of the country, for my business in times past gave me an opportunity to know somewhat of the geography of the country, and to see a large portion of the lands, woods and water-courses of the country.

I believe if the canal company will have the right kind of a charter, the work well done and the business properly managed, it will be as profitable a public enterprise as is ever undertaken in the country.

There are many things I could name in connection with the enterprise, but I want to squeeze it into as small a space as possible in order that it may get a resting place in some corner of your paper.

I have no personal interest in the enterprise, and my object is to give you a fair and impartial view of the views of those who are interested in the enterprise.

As I stated above, I have no personal interest in the undertaking. I feel interested in the matter on account of the great good that would grow out of the enterprise if properly carried out.

The Northwest seems almost to be giving up the dreadful devastation of fire. The long season of extreme dry weather is one chief cause.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Smith has resigned on account of his health. John Routh succeeds.

Chicago Fire. Vestiges of the Disaster—Notes on the Great Losses—The Newspaper Offices.

DESTRUCTION OF PUBLIC BUILDINGS. All the theatres, opera houses, and public halls are destroyed.

Every one who has visited Chicago, stopping at the Tremont House, will recollect the Journal building, opposite on Dearborn street.

THE EVENING JOURNAL. Every one who has visited Chicago, stopping at the Tremont House, will recollect the Journal building, opposite on Dearborn street.

THE BURNED HOTELS. Chicago was noted for its great hotels. The Pacific House, just finished at an expense of $2,500,000, was the largest hotel in America.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS—PRESIDENT GRANT'S LOSS. The property of the President of the United States in Chicago, consisting of a fine house, was destroyed by the fire.

THE RAILROAD KING. The magnificent residence of William B. Ogden, the great railroad king, was destroyed by the fire.

JOHN WENTWORTH. A dispatch states that the losses of Long John Wentworth amount to three millions of dollars, a statement which we beg to doubt.

THE CHICAGO MILLIONAIRE. The Chicago millionaire par excellence is Mr. Potter Palmer, who is a man of substance and wit.

GENERAL LOGAN. The summer residence of General Logan, on Calumet street, is nearly a mile from the burned district, and therefore safe.

THE EVENING POST. The office of the Evening Post was on Madison street, a few doors west of the Tribune.

of the Tribune. The same building is also the office of the States Building, and adjoining, in a similar building, is that of the Evening Mail.

THE CHICAGO CALAMITY. Large numbers of Chicagoans have arrived in New York within a day or two, and from the papers of that city we glean the following accounts:

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

already half beside herself with terror, trudged along for several blocks, until the burning rags fell upon her nose, and caused her to look around.

One immense Dutchman trundled a wheelbarrow along loaded with a keg of lager beer, some sausages, and clothing.

There were many such cases. As we went on further the throng increased until the streets were black with people.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

THE GREAT FIRE.—Chicago, a city of three hundred thousand souls, the fifth city in the Union in population and the second in commercial importance, lies in ruins.

FAYETTEVILLE MARKET. THURSDAY 10 A. M., OCTOBER 19, 1871. REPORTED BY W. C. TROY, Grocer and Commission Merchant, and Wholesale Dealer in Tobacco.

ARTICLES. BACON. N. C. Ham, 1/2 lb. 12; Midding, 1/2 lb. 12; Hog round, 1/2 lb. 12; Wagon-Middling, 1/2 lb. 12; Shoulders, 1/2 lb. 12.

BAGGING. Gunny, light, 25; Ditto, heavy, 25. BUTTER. Country, 25; Good, 25. COTTON. Low Middling, 15; Stained, 15.

COTTON YARN. per bale Retail, 1.45; Retail, 1.50. COFFEE. Leghorn, 1/2 lb. 20; Java, 1/2 lb. 20; Rio, 1/2 lb. 20.

CHEESE. Eng. Dairy, 15; Factory, 15; Swiss, 15. CANDLES. Adamantine, 1/2 lb. 16; Sperm, 1/2 lb. 16; Tallow, 1/2 lb. 16.

FLOUR. N. Carolina—Family, 7.50; " " " " 7.00; " " " " 7.00; " " " " 7.00; Baltimore Fam'y, 8.50; Super, 7.75.

FISH. Mackerel 1/2 bbl. No. 1, 00.00; No. 2, 10.00; No. 3, 00.00; Mullet—Oak, 10.00; " Pine, 10.00; Herring, 7.00.

FERTILIZERS. Peruvian Guano 1/2 ton, 85.00; Navassa Guano, 55.00; Pacific Guano, 60.00; Patapaco Guano, 60.00; Bang's Phosphate, 65.00; Manufactured Bone, 60.00; Ground Plaster, 30.00.

GRAIN. Corn, 1/2 bush, 1.05; Oats, 1.00; Rye, 1.20; Wheat, 1.50; Baltimore Fam'y, 8.50; Super, 7.75.

HIDES. Dey, 1/2 lb. 11; Green, 5. IRON. Sweden, 1/2 lb. 6; English, 1/2 lb. 5; American, 1/2 lb. 5; Cast Steel, 1/2 lb. 3; Cast Steel, 1/2 lb. 3; Cast Steel, 1/2 lb. 3.

LARD. N. Carolina, 1/2 lb. 13; Northern, 13. LIQUORS. N. C. Pure Whiskey, 2.25; N. C. Rye Whiskey, 2.75; N. C. Apple Brandy, 2.50; N. C. Peach Brandy, 2.50; Northern Whiskey, 2.45.