WADESBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 187

blen used to enter his verse; next, (of verses full five, es might encircle an angel abov venegribed them to your "snowy ity, too, you extol to the skies; innecessor foudly you te confess, and your faint hopes truchear, bent warmly, sinall that mile-now comes led theology who says that he

t to fit her a place up in heaven! hangs a tale take care, my dear

ow are in fashion; You'l.L soon be the digression, I'll come to the paint agg a theology got so out of joint. if A ver no doubt was his ast snz was found; then, with usual

Miens, thus hoping to eor Puggie's attentions. (Now "keeping rgan with forebodings his steps to res thoughts were confused. How could at size would such pleasant attention hear e'en a sermon? He'd fairly opine creature was surely no less the

Not so fast, my dear Pugg, don't be in such gret it too soon, for 'tis clear to clusion, dear Pugg, I think you did twere good-for you better still its clearly were none of the tre throughout, I can't well

ang in "S. M." you then intermix cur of the hanored

Story-Teller.

O CARDS.

note beyond my means, and bead nor temper, whichever my I may play for amusement where all play-med and wo-

the broke in my companion, lips with disdain, not a irritation. "I and many at is a pleasure to you may

I had ma

the had lived much in England, apoke the language perfectly, and had so acquired our manners that she appeared but half Italian. She was very beautiful but looked most so then she was expited. The subject of rambiling always redered her so, and I own to selfishly indulging my admiration by frequently bringing it upon the tapies.

and haggered. He waked small

I noticed him from the avidity with which he watched the heap of gold and dotes ever increasing before me.

Indifferent to success, I put down yet

"You have been fortunate to night, signor. Englishmen always are." and turned. It was the Italian. A ghastly smile on his brow and a strange wildness on his contenance.

"Yes, signor I answered, "you should have backed my play, the a I might have returned the compliment."

"Backed such a play," he muttered; "it was the evil ones luck."

"Signor, you p'ayed recklessly."

A friend coming up, the Italian moved away; but I saw with some auxiety he kept his glance furrively fixed apon

me. Ga
"That man's dangerous!" I thought.—
"It's hardly, I fancy, for me to carry this money!" But I kept a sharp lookout on my way home, and I reached my apartments a sufety.

It was into in the afternoon when, the next day, I called on the Countess Collini.

Wolf, Signor Melville," she said immediately accounting me. "For you broke the "It always travels fast," she responded

I began self-extenuation as usual when she stopped me. stay! Let us say no more on th ject just now, I have a visit to make, you not as my caralier? I accepted the offer, and the Countess re-tired. She soon came back dressed for walking, when we set forth. As we went I

"It is here I have to call," she remarked. "A wretched abode, Mr. Melville; but will you come with me?"

"If it were the unmentionable region it-

"If it were the unmentionable region itself, dear Countess, I would follow you," I rejoined, bowing gallautly.
Whereupon we went into the dark, closesmelling passage, and mounted up the stairs until nearly under the tiles. Here she knocked at a door. I heard sobs with in; but no answer oming, the Countess entered. Never fact I beheld a scene of such taisery.

The Countess approached and addressed her in soothing tones, which calmed her grief. Then she asked, "Lina, may I go into the next room with this gentle-

The weepping woman bowed assent, and my cicerone beckoned me to follow. It was iserable bedchamber, while on the bed evidently lay the cause of the woman's tears a body covered by a sheet.
"Her husband!" I exclaimed, interrogatively. "Yes a suicide. He made way with him-

"Yes a suicide. He made way with himself last night." "Mr. Melville," proceeded the Countes solemnly, "yesterday you broke the bank and deprived a wife of a husband, and her children of a father. His few coins increased your gain. Do you know the

She drew the sheet aside, and I shrank back with self-reproach. It was the Italidn—the man whom I suspected intended to raise his hand against me. It had been lifted against himself.

"This is, indeed, my work !" I ejacula

"Not altogether, It's the reward of lay," she answered. "Lina Decard was my play, she answered. "Lina Decard was my lady's maid, as pretty as good. She married this man, who was well-to-do. They settled here. Gaming attracted him. All else was neglected; he sold everything for the tables. You see the result. Last uight he returned penniless. He forced from his wife the few cents she had, kept to get bread for her children, and brought the ocision which has caused his death."

"In Cover that ghastly accusing face," I hid, with deep loathing; "it will haunt me cison which has caused his death."

"Cover that ghastly accusing face," I "Drunk?" gasped the astonished Dune Patience is a flower thaid, with deep loathing; "it will haunt me berton, "I really think you have taken every one's flower garden.

sail town, the to my grave. Let us go from here; the air leave of your senses. 1

"I believe if Mr. Melville. I knew I but not misundershood you; so let me case the pain you now suffer. Lina has lost but lather her health. Living he would have kent her poor a since is good and industrious, made with your good naturations and my help with mean have once again a comfortable home.

"If direct with the Countries that they, and this open we are belle in London. She is married, so and I lethan jarshe he my wife. I have a lay we make it a point to call on boar, and when I see her bright shaftes and rosy, laughing children, I cannot but contries them with these of after faces by had first behold in the wretched after faces by had first behold in the wretched after. I thinky too, of the ghress

Shouls of The Victory untett dife 96"bano ili

Dumberton sometimes gets I detale; but he will direct contess it. If any mise intimates that less liquor would be better for him carriemediately becomes grouply its curishes you thereupon expresses in words his address sprise that so ignoble at thing should be attributed to him and that folks should be so easily deceived.

No! it were entirely prepaterous to list Did he ever earry liquid about his per-

Oh, yes, certainly. He always carries On, yes, certainly. He have earries it, so to have it handy in case of sickness. And on the operation when he had remain a pected to use it, dut there highs be such a thing as getting wet.

He couldnot tell.

He was not a prophet.

we mentioned his first move w to examine the black bottle-commonly known as "Dumberton's Carall' which be generally narried in his inside coat

Fenring that the contents might have become burt in his tramp to the pond, he and talked but little. I was at last about to comment it upon when she'st pped before a very high, wretched house, in a poor street. flask too heavy, is not known, but he utter by failed in getting the neck above red-mouth, and that being open, and he carring his foot at the same time, uninter Mally on his part, the nose of the bottle antered his mouth, and before he could recover from his extreme astonishment, half of the contents had disappeared down his

> "Well, well, I wouldn't have believed nch a thing of that bottle; but accidents will happen," and the matter-of-fact Dum-berton carefully replaced the flask in his such raisery.

The wretched room was almost bare of furniture, and on a chair by a table, on which her arms and face rested, was a woman with disheveled hair, weeping passionately; while the two pretty, but ill-clad children clinging to her dress, lifted their voices with their another's.

The wretched room was almost bare Whether Dumberton was naturally absent-minded or not, is hard to tell; but be fort he had fished ten minutes, his hand unconclously, wandered to his pocket, the black have well and the head fished ten minutes, his hand unconclously wandered to his pocket, the black have been supported by the had fished ten minutes, his hand unconclously wandered to his pocket, the black have been supported by the had fished ten minutes, his hand unconclously wandered to his pocket, the black have been supported by the had fished ten minutes, his hand unconclously wandered to his pocket, the black had been supported by the had fished ten minutes, his hand unconclously mandered to his pocket.

drunk

If and bee in this state but a brief period when he became partly conscious arnestly to arouse him.

Dumberton grunted his disapproval, but ful Mrs. Dumberton glaring at him over man, French, Belgian, Swedish, the bedpost. He essayed to arise and question his trate spouse, but he fell back branches of the Avangelical Alliance with a cry of pain.

with a cry of pain.
"What in thunder," he said, finally,
"has this come to pass, Mrs. Damberton" "Come to pass, Mrs. Domberton?" from the 3rd to the 10th, for prayer in behalf of the whole world. Subjects are went a fishing and got benstly drunk, that's what has come to pass," vociferated the branch of pass, "vociferated the branch of pass," vociferated the branch of pass, but impotent the branch of the United States.

Dumberton became very mad when he heard this, and at last accounts he had gone a hunting, not to kill the birds of the air, but the beasts of the field, and prominent among the number was Squire Diggerton's old ram.

of the neck. The shirt was ruffled to the it may find in the homes of the poor will wrists. The breeches had silver stone or paste buckles. Gold or silver sleeve but may assume the proportions of a public No cetton fabrics were then known. Stock-ings were of thread of silk in summer and of worsted in winter. Surfacts were never rorn, but they had cloth great coats instead, worn, but they had cloth great coats mistead, through Helias to go to Naxie; and as the inning. In the time of the Revolution many of the American officers introduced the use of Dutch blankets for great-coats. In win-with his eyes on the ground, he saw a little er gentlemen were little woolen muffs to plant spring up between his feet, and was protect their hands. It was not uncommon to see old people with large silver to take it with him and plant it in Naxia.

Once as on their coats and vests, with their. He took it up and carried it away with gowns, and white aprous. No color but his destination. He found a bird's skele-black was ever made up for silk or satin ton, into which he thrust it, and went on. The was not a prophet.

The was not a prophet.

When he arrived at the pond, on the oc. white silk boungts had never been seen. That it started out of the bones above and wearing apparatus The use of lace veils did not commence un- below. This enderhim fresh fone made of silk or russer, stitched with white waxed thread and having wooden heels, The sole leather was worked with the fiesh

The sole leather was worked with the firsh side out. Subscription balls became very fashionable after the Revolution. No gentlem worder twenty-one and no lady under them were admitted. The supper corrested of les, checolate, and rusks, erything was conducted by six married. Hungers. They distributed places by lot d arranged the partners for the evening, he gentlemen drank ten with the parents of their partners the day after the ball, so often witnessed and so very essential to the existence of plants and animals, a few facts derived from observation and a long train of experiments, must be remembered.

1. Were the atmosphere here, everywhere and at all times, of a uniform tem-perature, we should never have rain, hail or snow. The water absorbed by it in evaporation from the sea and the earth's surface, would desend in an imperceptible vapor, or cease to be absorbed by the air when it was once fully saturated.

period when he became partly conscious 2. The absorbing power of the atmosthat some one, or some thing, was essaying phere, and consequently its capacity to retain humidity, is apportionately greater in warm than in cold air. The air near was only greeted by a blow that knocked the surface of the earth is warmer than it is in the region of the clouds. The higher we ascend from the earth the colder we Dumberton was getting mad. He knew and the atmosphere. Hence the perpetual snow on very high mountains in the hot-coins without any assistance, and was preparing to avisa to his feet, when he received a blow in the pit of the stomach, which completely doubled him up.

As he gradualy lost consciousness, he was fainfully of the opinion that he was being battered into pulp. When he reguined consciousness he found himself at home, on a bed, with an unpleasant eccollection of past rouble, and, worse atill, saw the wrath at the case of the consecuence of the case of the case

ssued a invitation for the univ servance of the first week of Janua

Patience is a flower that grows not in

The tradesmon before the Revolution were a different race from the present. They were none of them ashamed of their leather aprons. Failed buckskin breeches, once radiant in yellow splendor, checked shirts and red flaanel jackets were the common wear of most workingmen. All the hired women wore short gowns and Inserved the exclusive property of the gentry. The servants were cowinge. Toothbrashes were the exclusive property of the gentry. The servants were cowinge. Toothbrashes were unaknown. The better sort were content to rub the teeth with a chalked rag or with shuff, it was commonly thought effenivate for men to clean the teeth at all. Not only the roystering cavalier but the quiet citteens were fond of a certain bravery in dress. Men were cocked hats and wigh scoats with large cuffs and big skirts, lined with buckram. The coat of a bean had there large plaits in the skirts, wadded profitsely to keep them smoothe, with low collars to show off the fine linen cambric stock, and the largest silver buckle on the back of the neck. The shirt was ruffled to the deton with the plant in it into the bone of the lion's bone likewise. Then the found the bone of an ass, larger than that of the lion; so he put the lion's bone thus he made his plant, into the ass' bone thus he made his the all-gone' feeling she often had in the all-gone in way to Nuxis. When about to set the had no corsels to hold her up. plant he found that the roots entwined themselves around the bird's skeleton, and the liou's bone, and the ass' bone; and as suggestion which created as much which gave a chance for a more lasting acquaintance.

The Plattosephy of Rafa.

To understand the philosophy of this beautiful and often sublime phenomenon, so often witnessed and so very essential to birds; next, after drinking a little, they became vigorous and gallant like lions; but when they drank more still, they began to behave like asses.

. The Rothschild Women.

We take pleasure in referring to the merits of the ladies of the Rothschild famimerits of the ladies of the Rothschild family, not because they are wealthy, but for the simple reason that, in spite of their wealth, they strive to be useful to their kind. The men are immersed in business; they are cfl itable, but people will say that it is easy to be charitable if you are rich. The women are public-spirited, intelligent and warm-hearted, founding hospitals referented and bearing the reference and pitals, reformatories, children's homes, ndowing scholastic institutions, encourage ing struggling professionals, and taking a personal interest in the doings of the poor. Barodes Lionel makes weekly visits in the meanest portions of London, b, rightening the home of the Jewish artisan, givng her good counsel to the carnest teach the expected engine has ers, in the free schools, the matrons and assistants in the various charities. The daughter of Alphonse, of Paris, teaches a good lesson to her sisters in faith, and to gineer must stop the train and as good lesson to her sisters in faith, and to rich young ladies of every creed, by receiv-ing a well-deserve didploma as teacher. Anselm's daughter in Vienna is prominent in music, not only composing sougs that attain popularity, but aiding struggling musicians by pen and purse.—Jewish Mes-

There is a place in New Hampshire where hey never have any old maids. When a girl reaches twenty-nine, and is still on the indider of expectation, the young fellows club together and draw lots for her. Those who escape pay a bonus to the one who

"Men scorn to kiss among themselves, And scarce would kiss a brother; But women want to kiss so bad, They Riss and kiss each other."

ed and yet restre

above and wearing appar

dinney use for husbands. This was unfor tunate in a double respect. First, the most of these ladies are of the strong mind ed sort, engaged in preparing the way for a declaration of independence, and this makes them dependent upon the tyrant man. Second, some of these indies have no husbands. What are they going to the pos Railroad Signals.

A Red Flag by day, and a Red L

Red Flags and Red Lantero be used as signals of caution always of danger.

THOSE TOBACCO PURES -pealed to the men guilty of this spile, and every way we deemed necessary for the tian gentlemen, in vain. Not af and dum will do them. We now turn for the and beg you not to allow to o, of Nort d to this

$6,000,000, $4,000,000 of which was paid in 82,000,600 by individ- m