

The Evening Post.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

Friday, June 6th, 1873.

The Raleigh News, in a sketch of the new Assistant Bishop elect, says that "His lady is intensely Southern in her sentiments, and sympathized deeply with the soldiers of the Confederate States."

We are very glad of this important bit of intelligence. Nothing but the most orthodox "Southern" sentiment will do for a man to appear in this country to serve his Master, we suppose, or at least it is important to know that "his lady" is all right. Our brother News is generally very sensible, and we are surprised to see it lug politics into religion in this manner. They want mix, brother News. We claim to believe in the Episcopal Church, but we care nothing about the political predilection of our pastors. We have listened to one clergyman in this city for months past, but have not the remotest idea whether he even had any politics or not. We do not know whether he was in the Confederate army or not, nor do we care, so long as he preaches the Christian religion. Politics in newspapers, and religion in the Church, if you please, brother News.

A Card from Gov. Caldwell. To the Editor of The Era: Sir:—In the Era of to-day is to be found the following extract which is taken from the leading editorial, to-wit:

"In this suit restraining the change of gauge of the North Carolina Railroad, the administration of North Carolina has lent itself to a corporation which stands, in the light of facts, as the enemy and oppressor of all the people of North Carolina whom it affects, and pursuit of the subject will lead to the development of a state of things pointing unmistakably to the existence of another Littlefield and Swepson ring here in the city of Raleigh."

"The Era is already in possession of some facts reflecting no credit upon the parties involved, either as officials or private citizens; and since the private remonstrances of the Editor of this paper have not been regarded, he has determined to 'show to the line, let the chips fall where they may.'"

I find no fault with any newspaper for criticising my official acts; in fact criticism is invited from friend and foe. I entertain no such exalted opinion of my abilities, or infallibility, as to think that I commit no errors, or make no mistakes. I am as liable to human frailties as other people, but protest that if I do commit errors either officially or as a private citizen, they are unwittingly and honestly committed.

I have not taken to my pen, however, to defend my public or private character, but only to make, a respectful request of the Era and it is this, to point out in what way, manner, or shape, I am concerned "in a Littlefield and Swepson ring here in the city of Raleigh" or anywhere else in the wide world. The Era says "it is already in possession of some facts reflecting no credit upon the parties involved, either as officials or private citizens, &c., &c." Why not out with the facts? If the Era knows of fraud or dishonest practices among State officials and fails to sound the alarm, it is not a faithful sentinel upon the watch tower, but makes itself a participator in the crime by concealing the valuable information "in its possession" until the conspirators against the public good, consummate their base purposes. Would it not be much more manly in the Era, to come out boldly with "the facts in its possession," and make an open and direct charge against the offenders by naming them, no matter who they may be, rather than make vague insinuations, and throw out uncertain innuendoes in a general way which are calculated to injure the character of persons who may be entirely innocent and blameless? Or does the Era prefer to be in a position to say that its strictures were not intended for a certain official, when the falsity of its charge as to that particular official of individual is made manifest?

As one of the parties who may, or may not, be aimed at in the editorial of the Era, I challenge an investigation of any of my public acts from any quarter, and earnestly request the Era, if it is in possession of any "facts" touching my action with regard to Railroad rings, or any other rings, which "would reflect no credit" upon me, to make them known to the public, so that I may have an opportunity to vindicate myself, and the public something to judge of my guilt or innocence of the charges which are so vaguely and darkly hinted at by the Era. I conclude by saying to the Era "Hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may."

Very respectfully, TOD R. CALDWELL Raleigh, May 29, 1873.

The Pension Bureau rules that in cases of expiration of pensions and surrender of certificates of minors, upon application by guardians, or by the minors, if of competent age, a certificate granting the additional pension provided for by section nine, act of March 3, 1873, should be issued.

EDITORIAL BUDGET.

The law does not and will not after June 30th require full prepayment of postage on all printed matter. Transient or miscellaneous printed matter must be fully prepaid at the mailing office. Regular publications, known as newspapers or periodicals, may be sent to subscribers now and after the 30th instant unpaid, and the postage collected quarterly of the subscribers. Newspaper exchanges may be prepaid quarterly either at the office of mailing or delivery. The requirement for full prepayment on transient printed matter is statutory, not departmental, and therefore cannot be abrogated by the Postmaster General. It is made the duty of all postmasters to collect all deficient postage at the office of delivery, whether upon letters of printed matter, more or less such matter being inadvertently transmitted in the mails. It is not shown that more is collected at the Washington office than is legally due, or more than at other offices, in proportion to the quantity of such matter delivered. If any statement has been made that no papers will be sent without prepayment, then a mistake has been made, for large numbers are sent daily to subscribers as provided by law. One cent will fully prepay on any daily or weekly published in this city, but it will not carry two such papers, nor will it carry the larger New York weekly or daily papers.

The following has been received from

BAYLES' CAMP, TULE LAKE PENINSULA, June 2, 2 P. M.—The captives remained at Applegate's Ranch. Captain Jack and Schonchin were ironed together and placed with the other warriors, in a small building adjoining Applegate's house, under guard. Neither Captain nor Schonchin spoke a word. Not a muscle of Jack's face moved. Scar-faced Charley protested against the indignity in behalf of his fellow captives, and said that none of them intended to escape, even if an opportunity offered. He obtained but little satisfaction, and retired in disgust. The usual Sunday evening services of the Warm Spring Indians were dispensed with. Instead, they held a glorious war dance until midnight. They leaped and howled about the fire, and indulged in other frantic demonstrations of delight.

All the military force of the expedition will be united at this point.

The cord of Gen. Canby's hat was found in Jack's satchel.

Colonel Green's capture was made in Oregon, and Col. Perry's in California.

FAIRCHILD'S RANCH, June 3.—To-day I have paid a visit to old Sheeps, on one of the small islands in Little Klamath lake. The old Indian told me he had five Modocs on the island, and would surrender them to John Fairchild as soon as the latter returned from Clear Lake. We saw one of the Indians, Techuback. He was badly wounded, and will probably die. Fairchild has just returned. To-morrow we will go for the last of the Modocs.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

Michael C. McNamara, was Wednesday appointed interim revenue collector of the 1st district of North Carolina.

The first application for a pension growing out of the Modoc war has been made by Lorenzo Thomas, formerly Adjutant General, in behalf of the widow of Lieutenant Thomas, who was murdered by the Modocs during the war just ended.

General Baker, Commissioner of Pensions, has just received certificates of the deposit of the sureties of Henry Barnes, late pension agent at Detroit, Mich., of $19,000 to meet his deficit, which occurred six years ago.

Rice imported from India and China is, according to the decision of the Treasury Department, subject to the duty applied to cleaned rice in all cases where the raw material has been changed or partially cleaned by process in vogue in those two countries.

The Commissioner of Pensions, in a recent order, provides that the application of a widow for the increase of pension provided by section nine, act of March 3, 1873, will be allowed whether the application for such increase be made before or after the date of her remarriage.

Information has been received at the Internal Revenue Bureau that various persons on railroad trains are engaged in selling tobacco and cigars without having qualified themselves by purchasing a special tax stamp as dealers in manufactured tobacco, and the collectors have been directed to enforce the law, and see that every person, including minors, pays the special tax of $5.

Dr. BEN WILLIAMS, formerly a representative in the General Assembly from Harnett county, died in Philadelphia on the 25th ultimo, from the effects of a painful operation which had been performed for gravel.
