

Loyalty.

We are often amused at the assertions of our democratic friends when they get upon the subject of "loyalty." To their mind, it must have a very broad scope. They declare in one breath that they are loyal to the Government and in the next advocate the principles diametrically opposed to the perpetuity of the Union.

During the campaign of 1860, when the infamous fugitive slave was on the statute books, we declared in our Republican paper then, that we were not in favor of the doctrine of a "higher law," and that while detesting and utterly abhorring the law, if we were summoned by the proper authorities to assist in the capture of a fugitive slave, that we should obey it, though the Legislature of that State (Wisconsin) had made it a felony to obey it.

Loyalty to the Government, and loyalty to the Administration, are two very different things; but if we could be willing to support the Government when such men as Buchanan, Floyd, Jeff Davis et al. were at the head of it, because it was the duty of citizenship, we believe the people of the South can do so now for the same reason.

The following items of information, derived from competent authority, concerning members of the Polaris expedition, now at the navy yard, and specially relating to the Esquimaux rescued from the ice floe by the Tigress, will be eagerly read. Esquimaux Joe and his friends, natives of Greenland, find the warm weather of this latitude exceedingly hard to bear, and their examination here having been concluded, they will be sent on the Tallapoosa to New York, and thence by rail to a cool, mountain retreat in the north of Maine, where they will probably remain until an opportunity occurs to send them home.

The Statesville Intelligencer takes us to task for our remarks about the appointment of Gen. Hill's son to West Point. We would like to quote the article entire, but as it is over a column long, we will have to omit it. We beg to reply to some of the statements, however.

We never saw the day nor the hour when we were disloyal to the true principles which we have been taught underlie the real character of our government, and we opine that Gen. Hill can say the same thing, and we denounce as narrow minded and with scorn the unjust insinuations of "disloyalty to government," because we cannot about ourself hoarse over the downfall and crushing out of the very principles which constitute the essence of our constitutional government.

We suppose from this extract that it is claimed that Gen. Hill was "loyal" while fighting for the Confederacy. If this is the proper construction to be placed upon the paragraph, all we have to say is, we do not understand that kind of loyalty. We believe in the Union. We are a native of New York State, and if that State should pass an act of secession, and attempt to make war upon the Federal Government, we would offer our services to go and whip her back into the Union where she belongs.

The Matamoros Vox Publica, government organ, in an editorial headed "Invasion," severely criticizes Col MacKenzie's expedition into Mexico in pursuit of the Kickapoo Indians, denounces the act as an aggression committed upon a nation too weak to resist and intended to serve as a pretext to seize additional territory.
