venience, is one of the most notable examples of partizanship which has disgraced this State. The addition of three, and if the new county be formed from New Hanover, of four more counties to the district, for the purpose of changing the political character of it, is so discreditable to the party which is responsible, that it cannot fail to receive a rebuke in the next election. It may be said that the change which the Democrats are endeavoring to make, if it succeeds, will deform the district to the extent of making them ashamed of will turn away in disgust from this production of corruption and greed, and consign to oblivion and infamy those who gave it birth.

The desperation of the Democratic party is evident when they resort to flinging to the winds every sentiment of political honor, as they do in this and similar gerrymandering schemes, they show that they expect no further tenure of power, in North Carolina. Every consideration is lost sight of by them except to save what they can for individual plunder in the defeat which surely awaits them.
