

THE PLAINEALER.

WILSON, NOVEMBER 2, 1866.

Saturday Night. BY A. J. H. DOUGLASS.

The work-day week has cast its yoke Of troublous toil and careful quest;

You follow fields and woody dells The cuckoo chirp their pleasant lays;

His whirling wheel the miller stops; The smith his silent anvil leaves;

A happy hush, a tranquil balm, As if the week-day cark and care Were lifted off and left to calm;

For now the night, with soft delay, Seems brooding like a tender dove,

God help us all! since here below Few Saturdays are ours at best,

The Charms of Married Life. If in that chair yonder—not the one your feet lie upon, but one beside you, closer yet—were seated a sweetfaced girl, with a pretty little foot lying out upon the hearth,

A lazy lad, who did not go to church until the congregation were coming out, asked: "Is it all done?"

Some people seem to have been created for the particular enjoyment of scandal. Like swine, they are supremely happy only when they have succeeded in finding a good-sized mud puddle to wallow in.

"Bridget, what have you done with the cream? Those children cannot eat skin-milk for breakfast."

The absurdity of the feminine termination, as frequently employed, is forcibly illustrated by a San Francisco paper, which says that "as a billiardistess, Elise Holt is not a successistess."

A Western paper suggests that if the names of war vessels are intended to frighten the enemy, instead of calling our gunboats the Fury or the Terror, we had better baptize them the Cholera, the Susan B. Anthony, and so on.

Smythe was telling some friends about a wonderful parrot hanging in a cage in the door of a store on State street.

Put an Englishman into the garden of Eden, and he would find fault with the whole concern—put a Yankee in, and he will see where he could alter it with advantage—put an Irishman in, and he would want to boss the thing—put a Dutchman in, and he would proceed at once to plant cabbage.

A schoolmistress once asked a pupil to tell what word S double E spelt? The child was but dull, so mistress cried: "What is it, you dunce, I do with my eyes?" "Oh! yes," said the child, quickly taking the hint. "I know the word now, ma'am—S double E, squint!"

The late Dr. Jenner, having discontinued his professional visits to a patient on account of her improved condition, sent a couple of ducks to the mother of the convalescent lady, accompanying the present with the following note: "I've dispatched, my dear madam, this scrap of a letter, to say that Miss Lucy is very much better; a regular doctor no longer she lacks, and therefore I've sent her a couple of quacks." The lady addressed returned thanks with this: "Yes, 'twas polite, truly, my very good friend, thus a 'couple of quacks' to your patient to send; since there's nothing so likely as 'quacks,' it is plain, to make work for a regular doctor again."

PEPPER AND SALT.

Common sense is the most uncommon of all sense. How to meet a man of doubtful credit—take no note of him.

"Well, wife, you can't say I ever contracted bad habits." "No, sir, you generally expand them."

I would go to the end of the world to please you, said a whining lover to his beautiful adored. Well, sir, go there and stay, and I shall be pleased, was the kind reply.

Josh Billings says: "Whenever I find a real handsome woman engaged in wimmin's rights bizness, then I am going to take my hat under my arm and jine the procession."

The value of a good thing depends on him who utters it. The joke of the host is certain to be laughed at; that of the poor relation is scarcely ever listened to.

"Mr. Jones, you said you were connected with the fine arts; do you mean that you are a sculptor?" "No, sir, I don't sculpt myself, but I furnish the stone to the man that does."

A richly-dressed lady stopped a boy trudging along with a basket, and asked: "My little boy, have you got religion?" "No, ma'am," said the innocent, "I've got potatoes!"

"My boy," said a clergyman, "don't you know that it is wicked to fish on Sunday?" "Guess I hain't sinned much yet," said the boy, without taking his eye from the cork, "I hain't had a bite."

A lazy lad, who did not go to church until the congregation were coming out, asked: "Is it all done?" "No," was the reply, "it's all said, but I think it will be sometime before it is all done."
