Rural Economy.

We are happy to observe about us a rational and steady growth of public opinion in favour of agriculture. It argues well for the prosperity of our country to find men of education and feeling acting as practical farmers.—To agriculture, a nation that has the right ambition of being virtuous and great, will first address itself; and there can be no better proof that the hearty and sound elements of political economy, are thoroughly understood in that country where the ploughman and corn grower are respected and respected. Nothing, at this moment, so contributes to the durability of China, and her government, with all its regulated system, its world of abuse, ignorance and error, and its overgrown and hungry population—nothing so contributes to the upholding of the huge fabric of its government, as the amazing veneration there shown to farmers and to agriculture. The noblest spectacle, among all the parade of war and politics, and all the pageantry and coruscation of imperial government, for the contemplation of the philosopher and the statesman, must be that, in which the great emperor of China, the emperor of a country whose smallest provinces are empires, is seen, publicly turning up the earth, in the presence of all his subjects, and his armies, all his nobility, all his household and household gods—with a plough. Such is true nobility!—Such is being indeed the father of one's country!

We are in a fair way to feel a like veneration for the tillers of the earth in America.—Our farmers begin to feel that there is a greatness as well as goodness and innocence in working in the open air, and trusting to the God of harvests for a blessing upon their labour. They are losing that idle and childish ambition of seeing their sons lawyers, ministers, doctors and shopkeepers. They begin to regard a gentleman farmer, with a stock of good sense and a good education, with a plenty of sober theory in his brain, and a good practical knowledge of farming and grazing, to temper his experimentalizing, as the true gentleman after all. And they are right. It is a proud name. To be indeed a FARMER—is to be one of God's own children—a good and wise man.

To preserve Potatoes.
It is said, potatoes may be kept the whole year, by dipping them in not water, as the Scots preserve eggs, by killing the living principle; and as the germ is so near the skin it would not hurt the potatoe. One or two minutes at most would be sufficient, in an open work basket, a ton might be cured in an hour or two.
Am. Farmer.

Cheap and Good Beer.
The papers give the following receipt to make that wholesome and necessary drink called beer. It may be made in five minutes, and fit to drink in twelve hours after—and need cost but one cent a bottle:
Take one spoonful of ginger, one spoonful of cream of tartar, one pint of yeast, one pint molasses, and six quarts of water, mix together cold; let it stand a few hours till it begins to ferment; then bottle, set it in a cool place, and six hours after it will be fit for use.

Foreign Intelligence.
New York, October 30.
Yesterday morning the White Oak, capt. Fowler, arrived from Liverpool, after a passage of 22 days, furnishing Liverpool dates to the 4th of October. In the afternoon the regular trading ship Importer, capt. Len, arrived from the same port, in 21 days. By this arrival the editors of the Commercial Advertiser have received from their correspondents, the London Courier to the evening of the 4th of October inclusive; Lloyd's List to the 3d; Liverpool Trade List and papers to the 6th.

The House of Lords met on the 3d of October, pursuant to adjournment. The London papers say that the interest excited on the trial of the queen increased as it progresses. The crowd which filled the streets, and who were pressing towards the house of lords was greater than on any former occasion. Between 10 and 11 o'clock, it seemed as if all the population of London and the vicinity had collected between Black Friar's Bridge and Millbank, covering not only the Strand, and the space from Whitehall southward, but Black Friars, Waterloo, and Westminster bridges, and every intermediate street from which a view of the river could be had or hoped for. At 11 o'clock, although a great part of the procession had passed, it was impossible to get nearer Waterloo bridge than the houses on the north side of the strand opposite to it. The number of boats far exceeded that collected by any of the annual shows on the water. Among these, three large steam vessels, filled with passengers, made a conspicuous figure. A very large barge, with flags and a band of music, contained the chiefs of the procession, and many females.
After some preliminary business, the queen's counsel were called in, and Mr. Brougham commenced his speech, which was not concluded until the next day at half past twelve. This speech occupies fifteen columns of the Courier. At 20 minutes past one, Mr. W. advanced to the bar, and was proceeding to address the house, when the Lord Chancellor observed, "that, as it appeared to be the intention of Mr. Williams to follow Mr. Brougham in a second address, he must remind their lordships, that it was at their discretion whether to admit the course contemplated by the counsel for the defence; but he was sure the house would agree with him, that in so important a case, it would be best exercised by permitting it." The suggestion was unanimously acceded to, and Mr. Williams commenced. The speech of this gentleman is not contained in the London papers.
The Paris dates are to the first of October. The Moniteur of the 30th September is nearly filled with an official account of the birth of the young prince, the son of the duchess of Berri. The prince has been named Henri Charles Ferdinand Diu-donne, (God's gift)
The following is an extract of a letter from Paris, dated September 29:
"Some important arrests have taken place within the last 24 hours; public rumor cites several of the most celebrated revolutionary characters in France. I am only able positively to announce the names of col. Fabvier, M. Courcelles, son of the deputy of Lyons, and M. Combes Sieyes, a prefect during the hundred days, and nephew of the constitution-making abbe Sieyes."
A London paper of the 3d mentions that despatches have been received from Persia which announce to ministers the intrigues of the Russian agents in that country, and indicate the designs of the court of Petersburg. The regular army of Russia now in Georgia, and on the line of the Caucasus, is upwards of 100,000 men, and the Russians have taken possession of a place on the Caspian sea, near Asterabad.

Naples.—The intelligence from Naples is to the 12th of September. A letter of that date states, "that accounts had been received from Sicily of a san-
