Ten Dollars Reward.

RAN away from the subscriber a negro man named CESAR, formerly the property of Mrs Strudwick; he is about thirty-five years of age, six feet high, stout and well made, he is inclined to be bald on the head, and perhaps has lost some of his front teeth; is humble and somewhat insinuating in his manners, and will no doubt endeavour to pass for a free man, and perhaps has papers to that effect. D. HEARTT

Proposes publishing, in Hillsborough, N. C. a religious paper, to be entitled

THE

NORTH CAROLINA

Evangelical Intelligencer,

In which will be given the most important information relative to the spread of the gospel, and the consequent melioration of the condition of the human family, with such other intelligence as may be interesting to the christian reader; occasionally enlivened with religious and moral essays, and lighter articles tending to promote christian charity and heavenly-mindedness.

PROSPECTUS.

TO a contemplative mind it is pleasing to look abroad over the various portions of the globe, and observe the improvements which are daily taking place in the condition of mankind. We perceive the dark clouds of ignorance and error, of superstition and fanaticism, gradually wasting away, and the horizon gilded with a brightness indicating the approach of a morning glorious to humanity and rich with blessings to the children of men. These heart-cheering prospects are the natural results of extended information, but more particularly the blessed effects of an expanding knowledge of the divine precepts of the christian religion. A general thirst for knowledge seems to be awakened, and the efforts now making by missionary, bible, and other societies, to diffuse the religion of the gospel, and to inculcate a more attentive observance of our civil, moral, and religious duties, are attended with a success cheering to the heart of the philanthropist.

It is under such circumstances that we present to the friends of christianity in this and the neighboring states, proposals for publishing in this place a weekly paper, calculated to aid the cause in which so many are engaged; and are induced to hope that such an establishment would not be among the least efficient means of promoting religious information. By the multiplication of political papers the minds of the people of this favoured country have been enlightened in the science of government above all the nations of the earth. Through the same means is it not reasonable to expect that moral darkness may be dissipated, the love of religion be inculcated, and a warmth be infused into the hearts of believing christians which would urge them to still greater exertions? For though we are pleased in contemplating the general advancement of christian knowledge, and the meliorated condition of mankind; yet we find much to lament when we look around us and perceive how many are still enveloped in slothful ignorance, the victims of vice and immorality. Though living in a christian land there are some, alas many, who never enter a church, who never open a bible, who never reflect on the cause or the purpose of their existence. May not the diffusion of religious intelligence tend to remove this listlessness? May it not excite to inquiry? May it not lead to conviction? to reformation? The continual droppings of water wears the hadest stones; may not weekly admonitions and repeated examples melt hearts of stone? Surely there is room to hope that the contemplated work, if properly encouraged, may contribute in some small degree, towards hastening that glorious period, when "the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established in the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations shall flow unto it."

In presenting this prospectus to the public, it is unnecessary farther to explain the nature of the proposed publication. In its conduct, all possible care will be taken to select such matter as may be most interesting and instructive: and the promised assistance of several eminent divines, it is expected, will add usefulness and respectability to the work.

CONDITIONS.

The Evangelical Intelligencer will be published once a week, and contain eight quarto pages, neatly printed on good paper.

The price will be three dollars a year, if paid in advance; otherwise four dollars will be demanded.

No subscriptions received for less than one year; and no subscription will be discontinued until all arrears are paid, unless at the option of the publisher. A failure to give notice before the end of the year of a wish to discontinue, will be considered as a new engagement.

To persons procuring eight subscribers, and remitting the amount of the subscriptions, the paper will be sent gratis.

The publication will commence as soon as sufficient encouragement is obtained to defray the expense.

☞ Persons holding subscriptions are requested to forward to this office the names of the subscribers they may have obtained—retaining the proposals till further notice.

From the Western Carolinian.

State of North Carolina, Burke County.

Superior Court of Law, September Term, 1822.

The Grand Jury for the county of Burke, whilst discharging their functions in relation to the legal, moral and criminal inquisitions of the county, claim, in common with their fellow-citizens at large, the right of presenting any political grievances that are destructive of the first principles of the government under which they live. Believing, as they do, that all men are by nature free and equal, and that civil and political liberty is founded in a perfect equality of absolute and relative rights, they assume, as fundamental truths, 1st. That all power is vested in, and derived from, the people; 2d. That this people have a right to form a political compact, by which the government of the whole may be delegated to a few; 3d. That the powers and rights not expressly surrendered by the terms of that compact, are reserved to those from whom they were derived; 4th. That when those to whom the government of the people has been intrusted lose sight of the principles upon which it is founded, and cease to respect the conditions that determine the tenure of their trust, the people have a right to withdraw their confidence, and to alter or amend the political compact by which they were united together.

When, by a political eruption in the year 1776, we became severed from our mother country, and formed our present constitution, we still retained some vestiges of colonial government, and continued to be represented in general assembly by counties, without thoroughly investigating one of the principal causes of our dismemberment—the right of representation in Parliament. The people at that time assumed and exercised the right and power of governing themselves; and, by incorporating the bill of rights into their constitution, still retain those rights and powers.

At the adoption of the constitution of North-Carolina, the people had not entirely recovered from the hereditary and political pothsis that palsied the members of the English constitution, in the shape of rotten and depopulated boroughs.

This grand jury therefore present, as a grievance, the inequality of representation in this respect. The right and power of limiting the number of their delegates, either in convention or assembly, is inseparable from the right and power of choosing them. This grand jury, therefore, present as a grievance the multitudinous number of representatives in the general assembly. They also present, as a serious grievance, the too frequent meeting of the general assembly, believing that the multiplicity of laws originates from this source, and tends to enfeeble their operation. This grand jury are seriously impressed with the belief, that if we could reduce the number of our representatives one third, and limit the meeting of the legislature to two thirds, instead of one, that the saving in the expenses of our government would, in the course of ten years (without increasing the burthens of the people,) enable us to adopt a general system of internal improvement, highly useful and important to the country; among which, we consider the erection of public schools as of primary consequence.

The grand jury of Burke county forbear to point out in this short notice, the numerous defects that exist in the constitution of this state, or to enumerate the many political grievances under which they labour; but anxiously anticipate a cordial and active co-operation from their fellow citizens of the Western districts of North-Carolina, in the grand project of constitutional reform. They therefore recommend to the free citizens of Burke, to choose delegates from each captain's company, to meet at Morganton on the day of for the purpose of adopting the most convenient and practicable plan for carrying their wishes into effect, on the great and necessary objects to which they have adverted.
