WOOL CARDING.

SAMUEL S. CLAYTOR & Co., six miles below Hillsborough, at the old mill hammer on Eno, have their machine for carding wool in good order, and will card for ten cents a pound, and break for hatters at six and a quarter cents.

Those who intend to have their wool carded, must pick it open and twist off with their fingers every tag or curl, and clean out all the trash. The sooner it is brought to be picked, the better it can be done. If it lies long the wax gets hard and gummy, and injures the staple, and in cold weather it is very difficult to do good work.

CASH given for FLAX SEED, delivered at the mill, or at the store of J. P. Sneed & Co. in Hillsborough.

FOR SALE, Oil, Hoes, Axes, Plows, &c. Wagons and Carryalls.

They will have in operation by the middle of October next, a first rate

COTTON GIN, and will give Cash for Cotton.

STRAYED,

From the subscriber, on the 2d instant, a likely filly, about fifteen months old, of a roanish colour, has a small white spot on her forehead, and had on when she went away a small bell. I expect she has followed some waggon. Any information of said filly will be thankfully received by me, by letter or otherwise, the letter directed to Col. H. Sims's, or to the widow Dillard's. A liberal reward will be given for her delivery to me, in the lower part of Orange county, near the road leading from Hillsborough to Raleigh. William Roan. May 26. 76-3w

BUNKER HILL ANNIVERSARY

Doston, June 16, 1825.

The fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill has passed, and with it a scene of splendour and solemn grandeur which must ever be fresh in the recollections of the countless thousands who witnessed it. A more imposing scene has never been presented to an American eye, or a more effecting one brought home to an American heart; and while patriotism has existence, our country a name, and the heroes of our glorious revolution a place in story, American bosoms will swell high with the recollections of this memorable day.

Contrary to the indications of the atmosphere on Thursday, the weather was very fine. The rain had cooled the air, and laid the dust. The sun rose in unclouded majesty, and a richer and fresher green imparted additional beauty to the thick shrubbery of the city and romantic and undulating landscape of Charlestown, in the midst of which stands the hallowed height of Bunker Hill. The day was ushered in by a salute of 24 guns from the navy yard. And as orders had been given for an early formation of the procession, the whole town was soon alive by the universal stirring of its own population, the tens of thousands who had for three days been pouring into it from all directions; and the numbers of the numerous societies which were to form at places previously designated, to join in the grand procession.

The troops of the city consisting of several regiments, were designated to form the escort, and paraded in the mall, and the civil procession formed in Park and Beacon streets; and at ten o'clock, the whole moved off, passing through many of the principal streets, to Charlestown, in the following order:—

ESCORT. Survivors of Bunker Hill Battle, in carriages. Members of Bunker Hill Monument Association.

Grand Lodge. Masons. President and vice president. Chaplains. Directors of Bunker Hill Monument Association. Secretary and Treasurer, &c. Gen. Lafayette and suit, in carriages. Revolutionary officers. Commanded by the venerable Col. Timothy Pickering. Cincinnati. Governor. Lieut. Governor. Council. Senate.

Secretary, Treasurer and Adjutant general. House of Representatives. Governors of other states. Heads of Department of United States. Senators of United States. House of Representatives of United States. Foreign Legations and Consuls. Judges of United States and other courts. Solicitor and Attorney General. Delegates. Strangers of distinction. Officers of the Navy and Army. Members of the Legislatures of other states. Mayor and President of the Common Council. Aldermen. Selectmen of Charlestown. President of colleges. Clergy. Heads of societies. Historical society. Pilgrim society. Officers of the Militia. Invited Guests.

The members of the several societies all wore their distinctive badges, and different badges were procured for the surviving soldiers of the battle of Bunker Hill, and those who had served elsewhere in the revolutionary army. Those who had served at Bunker Hill, and elsewhere, wore two badges.—From the length of the procession, and the sinuous course of the streets, there was no opportunity afforded of viewing the whole of it at one time. But by a signal agreed upon, and given on the arrival of the head of the procession at Charlestown Bridge, it was ascertained that the rear was then passing the old south meeting house—being a distance following the streets through which it passed, of about one mile and a half, formed six and seven abreast. On ascending and passing round the height called Breed's Hill, which was in fact the site of the American redoubt, and the immediate scene of the bloody engagement on the 17th of June 1775, a magnificent spectacle was presented to view, as the eye ran along the procession, and glanced upon the floating banners of the several societies, and rich dresses of the various masonic orders, the burnished arms, embroidered uniforms, and nodding plumes of the officers and soldiers; and last through not least, the thousands of well dressed females who filled every window and piazza of Charlestown. Indeed the windows of every house in Boston fronting the streets through which the procession moved were filled with ladies, and the streets thronged with people. Aside from the usual pomp of civic procession, the splendour of this was much increased by the clothing of emblems of the masonic fraternity, of whom there were from eighteen hundred to two thousand, arrayed in their various uniforms and jewels. The deep blue and purple sashes of the lower orders, the beautiful crimson ones of the companies of the Royal Arch Degree, and the rich black aprons and sashes of the Templars ornamented with silver, combined to increase the splendour of the display and heighten the effect.

Arrived at the appointed place, the procession was formed into a hollow square, and the ceremonies of laying the corner stone of the projected monument, were performed in due and ample form, by the M. W. Grand Master and officers of the Massachusetts grand lodge, assisted by Gen. Lafayette, and the president of the monument association, the Hon. Daniel Webster. The moment these interesting and impressive ceremonies were completed, at a given signal the welkin rang with the loud and repeated huzzas of the assembled multitude: for it must be understood, that those who composed the procession, formidable as it was in length and numbers, formed a small portion of the assemblage. There were in addition, more than sixty thousand freemen, gazing intently, and with throbbing bosoms, upon the solemn spectacle.

The procession then moved a few rods to the rear, on the side of the hill where the British troops landed to make the attack, where arrangements had been made for the delivery of the address of the president, and the religious exercise of the day, and where seats had been provided for the gentleman composing the procession, and for a large number of ladies, forming a sort of semi-amphitheatre. On the lower side of this was erected a temple ornamented with evergreens of various kinds, with festoons interwined with a variety of flowers. Within this temple, upon a platform, were seated the governor, and other distinguished officers past and present, several distinguished guests from abroad, the leading committee, and those who were to take part in the exercises. On either side of this temple were wings extending forward at an angle of about forty five degrees, to the distance of two hundred feet, covered with sail-cloth, and provided with seats for the ladies. And I need not say they were all filled. The seats for those who formed the procession, were upwards of sixty, capable of holding two hundred persons each, and these were also filled; so that there was a seated audience, (or rather, there would have been, if all would have come as they should,) of about fifteen thousand persons.

The exercises were commenced by a pious, fervent, and patriotic prayer, by the Rev. Joseph Thaxter, Chaplain of Col. Prescott's regiment, who was in the battle of Bunker Hill. The following beautiful hymn, written for the occasion by the Rev. John Pierpont, was then sung to the tune of Old Hundred:—

O, is not this a holy spot! 'Tis the high place of Freedom's birth:— God of our fathers! is it not The holiest spot of all the earth? Quenched is thy flame on Horeb's side: The robber roams o'er Sinai now; And those old men, thy seers, abide No more on Zion's mournful brow. But on this hill thou, Lord, has dwelt, Since round its head the war-cloud curled, And wrapp'd our fathers where they knelt, In prayer and battle for a world. Here sleeps their dust; 'tis holy ground: And we, the children of the brave, From the four winds are gathered round, To lay our offering on their grave. Free as the winds around us blow, Free as you waves below us spread, We rear a pile, that long shall throw Its shadow on their sacred bed. But on their deeds no shade shall fall While o'er the couch the sun shall flame, Thine ear was bowed to hear their call. And thy right hand shall guard their fame.

The president of the association, the Hon. Daniel Webster, then rose and pronounced an address of more than an hour's length, a sketch of which I have not time to give, even if it were allowable for a reporter to lay his rude hands upon so splendid and polished a performance. He commenced with a rapid and glowing allusion to the three great epochs which distinguished the history of our country. Its discovery, its settlement and its revolution; of which latter, one of the most splendid events, was the action fought on the ground where we were assembled. He noticed the cause which had brought us together—to erect a monument in commemoration of the gallant action of this day, 50 years since—and to manifest to succeeding generations, that we were not unmindful of the blessings which were purchased at the price of so valuable blood. He then addressed with feeling eloquence the survivors of the battle, at the close paying a finished tribute to the memory of Warren. He next addressed the survivors of the revolution, and
