ADMINIST RATION MEETING. Agreeably to public notice, a meeting of the friends of the administration took place on the 4th inst. at the house of Eli Smith, Esq. On motion of the Rev. Daniel Hower, Joseph Gibson, E q. was appointed chairman, and Robert R. Prather, secretary. The chairman then explained the object of the meeting in a brief, but comprehensive manner.

Maj. Prather, rose and desired to be informed, whether the object of the meeting had been so explained, as to exclude the friends of Gen. Jackson, if any such were present, from coming forward, and asserting his claims on the floor. He was himself a friend of Mr. Adams; but it was probable that in so large a company, gen. Jackson might have triends: if so, he was willing to hear their arguments, and, therefore moved that they be admitted; which was agreed to. The chairman then appointed a committee consisting of the Rev. D. Hower, maj. J. S. Prather, capt. Robert Gilmore, and Benjamin, Ress, E-q. to bring in resolutions expressive of the views and sentiments of the meet. ing.

After an absence of about half an hour, the committee returned, and reported to the meeting the following resolution

1 RESOLVED, That this meeting ap prove the proceedings of the administration convention held at Rollegh, on the 20th day of December last, and that they concur in the electoral ticket there formed.

RESOLVED, That this meeting ap prove of the administration of John Q. Adams; that they believe he is honestly endeavoing to promote the prosperity of his country, and is pursuing that object with a steady aim

S. RESOLVED, That Mr. Adams pos sesses, in an eminent degree, all the qualifications peressary to the able dis charge of the important duties of his office; that we feel the mos unwaver. ing confidence in his wisdom, political experience and integrity; that we repose, without fear, our country's interesis to his keeping; and that we will use all fair and honorable means to premore his re-election.

4. RESOLVED, That this meeting view with acep emotion the efforts of the enemies of the admit stration, to raise ge neral Jackson to the presidency of the United States; that they conceive him to be utterly unqualified for so important a civil station; and that his cleva. vation therete, would be hazardous, it not ruinous, to the peace and liberty of the country. 5. RE CLVED, That the charge of cor upit n urged against the adminis. tration, by general Jackson and his riends, is a most pitiful effort of deteat. ed demagogues, to injure the character f high mudded and honourable men. 6. RESOLVED. That it is the solemo pinion of tois meeting, that gen!. Jackon is himself the author of that foul as. persion against the two first officers of the government. 7. That a committee of correspond. ence and vigilance, consisting of twelve persons, be appointed, whose duty it shall be to promote the object of this meeting by holding corre-pondence with other committees throughout the state; and that said committee hold its first meeting at this place on the first Saturday o' August next. 8. RESOLVED, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the chairman and secretary, and published in the Greenshorough Patriot and Hillsborough Recorder, and all others favoura ble to the cause. After reading the above resolutions, Major Prather observed, that the postnons therein assumed, were within the support of substantial proof; yet the committee, he said, would not consume me by entering on the effence of the resolutions, unless they should encouner opposition. The chairman remarked that a de bate would probably ensue; and adverting to the high excitem at which was but too common on such occasions, he in a feeling and pertipent manner, exhorted the meeting to a sober and mod erate exercise of the privilege of dis cussing this great national subject. Mr. Tate, appeared in support of general Jackson's riaims, but did not directly pose the resolutions. He went at ength into the mesits of cer Jackson, to indert up on his give. a litary services; he had entre der e la tigues, privations and dangers for his I the following persons:

country, and would his country now refuse to reward him for his seal in her cause. For his own part he was friendly to the hero of New Orleans, and would support his claims to the extent of his power. Mr. Tate then adverted to the extravagant expenditures of the administration; read a news. paper statement in proof of it; drew a glowing picture of the embarrassments and miseries of the people, and concluded by declaring his opinion, that should the present incumbent be continued in office, inevitable ruin would speedily CO-UC.

Mr. Hower met the remarks of the opposition on the score of expenditures, by showing, that those parts of the contingent fund which were within the exclusive control of the president, had been much more reunomically used, than under any former administration. With regard to those which had been suthorised by act of congress, was It generous in the opposition to charge Mr. Adams with them? The gentleman had complained of measures which han involved the country in some exa pense, but he begged to be informed whether these had been executive, or legislative measures; acts of the president, or acts of congress. The tariff too, said Mr. H. has been pressed into the service of the opposition, and metamorphosed into a mighty bugbrar to alarm the ignorant and unwary; but who voted for the tariff in the senate when general Jackson was a member of that body, and who supported i in the late "amendments and revisions," which have given it its most acceptionable shape? General Jackson had voted for it, and his friends had supported the late amendments; and yet surprising fact, said Mr. H., we are now told that Mr. Adams, being a triend to the ariff, will ruin the country. if longer continued in office. Bet there were other considerations of high importance which influenced his opinion in the presidentist contest. General Jackson, from evry page of his history, impartially write ten, appeared to be a man of loose mos tally, and of a vengetul and cruel disposition. Here Mr. Hower painted in vivid colours the history of the six unfortunate militiamen, executed without the least consciousness of offince, by general Jackson, at a time when no possible good could result from such an (Xample. Major J. S. Prather said, it was not without reluctance that he would ven. ture to offer a remark to the meeting. It was very observable that the gentles man over the way, (Mr. Tate,) with all his devotion to the interest of general Jackson, had neither proven nor attempted to prove, his qualifications as a statesmen. A military genius he was known to possess; but did that recommend him as a prolound politician, capable of presiding with dignity over the affairs of a great republe? Was in De deed true, that because general Jackson was the hero of New Orleans. he must therefore be clothed with the first honours of the nation, and be raised to the first dignity within the gift of mortals, not only without proof of the requisite accomplishments, but absolutely against proof of his total want of them? Bit this did not constitute his only objection to general Jackson. He here adverted to the events of the Seminole war, and observed, that general Jackson had there transcended his constitutional powers in a multitude of instances, and unif emly shown a disposition to place the military above the civil power of the nation. He had, in the prosecution of that war, repeatedly violated the ors ders of the secretary of war, and in two instances, at least, he had broken thro' the salutary restraints of that constitution which he had sworn to support and maintain. He had used haughtiet langua. e to the civil dauthorities of his ountry, than Julius Ca ar ever employed toward the slaves of Rome. General Jackson, said he, is a man whose sients are purely military and it is from this quarter that many fears arise. Devotion to military a caus the rock on which all the republics of the world pave split; and let it ouce become the settled inclination of any free people to clothe their military leaders with the civil powers of the state, and the political death of the people is at hand. Here Major P. baying closed his remarks, the question on the passage of the resolutions was put, and they were passed.
