TWENTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS. EXTRA SESSION.

The two houses of Congress convened at the capitol in Washington city on Monday the 31st ult.

houn, Cuthbert, Clay of Ma., Henderd Mouson. Mr. Southard, the roll was called by Mr. Garland, clerk of

The house then proceeded to the election of Speaker; whereupon John White of Kentucky was chosen on the first voting. The votes were as follows:

For Mr. White, 121 John W. Jones, Henry A. Wise, Joseph Lawrence,

On taking the chair, the Speaker delivered a brief and appropriate address. The members were then sworn in.

The house then proceeded to the election of Clerk. Mr. Wise nominated Matthew St.

Clair Clarke. Mr. Randall nominated F. O. J. Smith

Mr. Hugh A. Garland and Dr. Mason of Va. were also nominated.

The house proceeded to vote viva voce and the votes were as follows:

> For Mr. Smith, Mr. Garland, Mr. Clarke, Mr. Mason,

No one having a majerity, the house proceeded to a second and third trial unsuccessfully. On the fourth Mr. Clarke received 128 votes, and was consequently elected. Mr. Clarke has been long known as a Whig; and having before occapied the position, his experience has made him an accomplished clerk.

Being thus organized, after appointing he usual committee to wait upon the President, the two houses adjourned to Il o'clock on Tuesday.

IN SENATE.

Tuesday, June 1-In the Senate, Mr. Buchanan of Pa., and Mr. Calhoun of S. C., appeared in their seats.

The question before the Senate being upon a joint resolution for the appointment of a committee to wait upon the President, Mr. Allen of Ohio, moved to amend it by striking out the words " Pre-sident of the United States," and inserting in-lieu thereof the words "the Vice President, on whom, by the death of the late President, the powers and duties of President have devolved."

A brief debate ensued, when the vote was taken, and Mr. Allen's amendment rejected-yeas 8, nays 38.

At half past 12 o'clock the Message of the President was received, through Mr. Tyler his private secretary, and was read by the Secretary of the Senate.

Mr. Mangum moved that 10,000 copies of the Message be printed, together with 1,500 copies accompanied with the

At the suggestion of Mr. Clay, Mr. Mangum modified his motion, reducing the number to 5,000 copies of the Mes-sage, of which 1,500 should be accompanied with all the documents sent with it.

Mr. CLAY expressed his satisfaction that this modification had been made, as he was satisfied the larger number would have been useless. He said, however, that he had not risen simply for the pur-pose of returning his thanks to his friend from North Carolina, but also to avow his earnest hope that the Senate would early commence the work of curtailing with infinite surprise, that those expenses had increased in the session of 1838 to so fearful an extent as to equal in that single year the whole amount of the expenditure for the same purpose for the four years of Mr. Adams's administration. They own habits, of a rigid economy; and this some attention to matters of detail. Almost the whole of the alarming increase, if he might so denominate it, certainly the very reprehensible increase of the Senate's expenses, had occurred in this one great item of the public printing. With this view he gave notice that he should, to-morrow, move that the Senate proceed to the apcointment of the standing committee and also to the appointment of a select committee, to whom should be referred so much of the President's message as related to the financial concerns and the currency of the country, and the appointment of a fiscal agent for the pecuniary purposes of the government.

Several gentlemen here (informally) inquired of Mr. C. what sort of a fiscal agent he referred to?

Mr. Clay said that, for himself, he had no hesitation to avow that he meant a United States Bank; but other gentlemen general bankrupt law. might prefer some other form.

Wednesday, June 2 A series of resolutions were offered by Mr. Benton, which were laid on the table and ordered to be printed. Under the operation of the 34th rule, the Senate proceeded to ballot for the chairman of the standing committees, which resulted as follows: Foreign Relations, Mr. Rives.

Mr. Clay. Finance, Mr. Huntington. Commerce, Mr. Evans. Manufactures, Agriculture, Military Affairs, Mr. Linn. Mr. Preston. Mr. Phelps. Militia, Naval Affairs, Mr. Mangum Mr. Smith of Ia. Mr. King said, to proceed under the rule to ballot for the committees, would consume a great deal of the time of the Senate: he presumed there would be no objection to the Chair filling up the committees and reporting them to-morrow. The suggestion received the unanimous assent of the Senate.

Mr. Clay said, as he understood that business to be disposed of, he would now proceed to move the resolution of which he had given notice yesterday, viz. " That so much of the President's message as ought to begin to set the example, in their relates to a uniform currency and a suitable fiscal agent, capable of adding in never could be accomplished without creased facilities in the collection and disbursement and security of the public revenue, be referred to a select committee."

Mr. King said that he presumed it was not intended to press a vote on the resolution at this time, and as the members of the Committee on Finance had not yet been appointed, he should prefer that the resolution should lie over for the present, Mr. CALHOUN was most happy to to be acted on after the composition of hear such an avowal from the senator that committee should be known.
