MULTUM IN PARVO. The following twelve paragraphs from an old horticultural publication, are worthy of a place amongst the most valued rules that should govern a well regulated home : FRUIT THEES,

1. When fruit trees occupy the ground, nothing else should-except very short 2. Fruitfulness and growth of the tree cannot be expected the same year. 3. There is no plum that the curculio will not take, though any kind may sometimes escape for one year in one place. 4. Peach borers will not do much da-mage when stiff hay is heaped up round the tree a foot high. 5. Pear blight still puzzles the greatest men. The best remedy known is to plant two for every one that dies. 6. If you don't know hew to prane, don't hire a man from the other side of the sea, who knows less than you do,

7. Don't cut off a big lower limb unless you are a renter and don't care what becomes of it when your time is out. 8. A tree with the limbs coming out near the ground is worth two trees trimmed up five feet, and is worth four trees trimmed up ten feet, and so on until they are not worth anything.

9. Trim down, not up. 10. Shorten in, not lengthen ap. 11. If you had your arm cut off you would feel it at your heart-a tree will not feel, but rot to the heart.

12. When anybody tells you of a gar-dener that understands all about horticul-ture and agriculture, and that can be hir-ed, don't believe a word of it, for there are no such to be hired. Such a man can make more than you can afford to give him, and if he has sense enough to understand the business, he will also have enough to know

SIMPLE CURE FOR HEADACHE, The Omaha Herold says : 'If the saying is true that 'he who causes two blades of grass to grow where only one grow 'before is a public benefactor,' how much taken is he who discovers a remedy for one of the most distressing diseases that a poor luman is heir to? Having been afflicted many years with neuralgia headache, and after trying all the remodies I could hear of without any benefit, I had given up all hopes of cure and having an elder brother due of the disease, and told by the doctors the arch enemy's own. Gen. Jackson then there was no cure for it. I happily thought of solt, and in a short time I was delighted to see it had the best results. It is now about two months since I tried the experiment, and I have not been troubled with it since. Now I want to let 'the whole world and the rest of mankind' know the remedy; and it is so simple any one can use it. Take a pinch of salt and snuff it up until you can spit it out of your mouth. In changeable weather, or if you feel any raturn of it repeat the remedy." A BOY KICKED TO DEATH FOR THROWING A SNOWBALL, - A masquerade party which was given at Wolf's Hall, in Rome, N. Y., had a masked parade through the principal streets of the city. It was something unusual for the little folks to see so many curious men on horseback. and some of the more rude made snowballs and threw them as the procession passed by. The masqueraders were provoked at this treatment, and several times some one alighted from his horse and boxed the ears of the unruly lads. Jacob Bornhards had been struck by a snowball ; he became an-raged, leaped from the sleigh in which he was riding, met Charles Reynolds, whose back was then turned, and struck him on the side of the head, felling him to the ground. While the boy was lying on the ground Bernhardt kicked him several times in the sides of the stomach, bursting several of the intestines, and leaving him on the ground where he fall, returned to the proeession. The little fellow, complately bent over with pain, dragged bimself to a shed, where he was found. He was taken into a house and cared for. A crowd gathered around him, all saying, 'Bernhardt kicked him,' 'I saw Bernhardt kick him,' &c. &c. He was taken to his house shortly after, where he died last Friday. Bernhardt was immediately arrested,

ANDREW JACKSON AND HIS SE-CRETARY.

When Gen, Jackson used to write his brondside editorials for The Globe, Amos Kendall was his chief scribe and amanuen-sis. The General was a better thinker than his scribe, his scribe a better writer than

he. He would lie down and smoke and fotch a compass' of the meaning. At last, every term of reproach and ridicule. There was the chief enemy who had maligned her. there hang the picture of the wounded saint, and there was the husband avenger who voluntcered a vow at her grave ! This was mighty strange ! Not so, however, to those who knew Gen. Jackson well. No man was cooler in his calculations than he was. He would sometimes seem to fight most rashly, but no one over knew him to fight at all unless there was a stake up worth fighting for. Kendall had been a poor Yankee school master, and was a protege of Mr. Clay. He had been but a hireling, and was but a pen for the political malice of Mr. Clay's party. What had he (President Jackson) to gain by fighting the en, the mere annabucsis, when his aim was to slay the Prompter of all his wrongs? Kendail, for cause, left the fallen house of Clay, and fied to the rock of power and strength. He knew much, could reveal much, could deliver up all the enemy's armore. He was indefatigable, unscrupn-lous and able. He was the very weapon for a pugnacious patron to use, and could

A person who farms for a living, some he. He would lie down and snoke and dietate his ideas as well as he could express them, and Amos Kendall would write a pa-ragraph and read it. That was not the thing : many times the scribe would write and rewrite again and again, and fail to 'fotch a compass' of the meaning. At last, by alteration and correction, getting near-er and nearer to it, he would see it, and be with whom he set about becoming convivial. leaving the boy to take cars of the horses. bimself astonished at its masterly power. Gen. Jackson needed such an amanuensis when when needed such an amanuensis --intelligent, learned, industrious-as Mr. Kendall was. He could think, but could not write; he knew what zerve to touch, but he make the cold and fell into a st per. The lines dropped from his fingers, and the horses not write; he knew what zerve to to touch, but he was no surgeon, skilled in the in-strument of dissection. Kendall was. A BOY'S FAITH.

One of the most beautiful illustrations o beleiving prayer which I have ever known was furnished lately by a little boy some four years old. His grand-parents were talking about the draught.

'Yes,' said the grandmother, 'my flow-ers will be all burnt up, and we shall have no strawberries."

Little Bozzy listened with deep interest, but said nothing. A few minutes after-ward he was seen kneeling in one corner of the white gal 'ducted him '' the room, with his hands to his face, and was overheard praying thus: 'O Lord! send down rain, so that graudma's flowers old Mexican soldier, 190 net, as Foreman,
