ROVING FARMERS.

There are a class of furmers who are constantly on the lookout for a better place to Their farms are always for sale, and o'clock; they will rive early by force of they dream of luxuriant lands in some other part of the country, which can be bought "for a song'? where they imagine that they you promise him; and if he is a good one would be more prosperous, and enjoy lite pay him a little more, it will one usage better, than where they now reside. Many him to do better. of these men own mortgaged farms; and for such men to desire to remove where they can own a free farm, though it be far, as way, is but a natural manifestation to better one's condition, which the human wind cannot resist. But where can these men go, after selling their farms and be contented? That is a surious question which no man can answer of his answiedge. Sappase they can sell out and command a thouand or fifteen hundred dollars after paying their debts, and they start for the lin whittling store boxes.—(Mass., Pou hWest Kensas, local Missouri, or some man. other State. Righty acres of land, with a comfortable bouse or log cabin on it, can be bought for from $5 to $10 per sere. The land is all right, as good as 'firs out of doors;' but, also, for the sorroundings! Neighbors are scarce, society is a myth, and poor, fran bousewife, who followed her husband wishout a mormur, pines for friends The children have to go two miles or farther to school; and in the winter season they cannot attend much of the time on account of the stogms. Churches are few and far between, and the people are gen-erally a mixture of various nations; and the result of all is that many an Eastern farmer who goes West is unhappy and wishes himself back to his old homestead. So if one goes South or anywhere, he will not find things just to his mind, If one thing is better than on the old place, another is worse; and taking all things into consideration , but few farmers change then residences, who are able to make a living out the old place, that better themselves by moving to a distant State. One may obtain rich land at a lew price where there is no market for what he grows; and he may get into an unhealthy locality, and soon he may bury his wife and children, and what then? a gloomy world for him.

SWEET POTATOES.

To the spot chosen to bear sweet potatoes the coming year, Mr. Jones hands out in the fall the accumulated manure of the senson, and spreads at the rate of some.hi.g. like thirty lone to the acre, leaving it to be fined, dissolved and mellowed by exposure. In course of the mouth of April he plows the patch, but not more than three mehes deep; and a day or two before putting out the sets, late in May be casts the land into suallow ridges by turning the furrows together, being careful the loose earth is not more than six inches drep, and at the top of the ridge sets the plants and cultivates in the neual manner. Mr. Jones' theory is that the sweet potato is a gross feeder, but its roots feed only near the surface, and that is order to have the tubers develop to their smoothest and largest proportions, there must be a certain amount of resist nee in the soil, and they find that in the undis-turbed clay lean below.

Whatever the soil and depth of plowing.

the land must be thrown up into ridges just previous to setting out the plants. A Virginia grower recommends making these ridges only twenty-night or thirty mobes apart, from centre to centre. Some growers prefer them three feet spart, for case of cultivation after the times have made con-siderable growth. When the ridges are close together the plants are set at the same close together the plants are set at the same distance apart from each other, thus mak- ing rows both ways, and allowing cross oul. 25 Fancy (ards, Snowflaks, Damask. If the rows are three feet apart the plants are ser eighteen or twenty inches spart in the rows. The after cultivation is simply to keep the ground mellow and free from weeds, A Virginia correspondent states that a three-shovel plow is the best implement for cultivating sweet potatoes. There are two narrow abovels forward, which scrap the sides of the ridges, and a wide shovel in the rear immediately replaces the carth

The mode of planting out in the field is the more. The excet potatoes are cut in haives and laid cutside down on the carth in the bot-beds, and covered with earth. As fast as the sprouts are large enough, they are pulled off set out, or packed for sale or shipment,-Ea. 3 Y
