POLK'S PARTY.
HE LAUGHS AT THE IDEA OF A DUEL WITH ANY EDITOR.

It Will Fight All Parties Who Oppose It or Decline to Accept its Platform.

WASHINGTON, Sep. 1.—President Polk, of the Farmers' Alliance, returned to Washington today without having passed through the dangers of a duel with the North Carolina editor.

MOUNT AIRY NEWS.
A New Railway Projected with Mt. Airy as a Terminus—Negro Sentenced to Jail.

Mr. Amy, N. C., Sep. 1.—Civil engineers on the North Carolina extension of the Norfolk and Western railroad from Iron Ridge, Va., stated here today that a cablegram had been received from President Kimball, saying that he had procured a loan of seven million dollars of English money which would allow them to push to completion the North Carolina extension which has been surveyed to the State line, where it was to connect with the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley. The grading of the road has been let to contractors in sections of four miles.

Mr. Polk said to a Star reporter today: "I do not think any one is thinking of fighting a duel. The whole story is the invention of a very sensational reporter. I have received dispatches and letters from all over the country, begging me to show my moral courage by refusing to fight a duel. Some of the letters have come from Vermont. If any one wants to fight a duel with me I have not been informed of it. The thing is a lot of nonsense."

Speaking of the Alliance, Mr. Polk said it was growing stronger all the while, and the man who lost sight of it for three days was left away in the rear. The Alliance is getting to set back. "If either of the old parties come out and take a stand squarely on the Alliance platform," he says, "that party will get the support of the Alliance, but every member of the Alliance will fight any and all parties who oppose them or do not accept their platform without reservation."

EMMA'S LUCKY OVERALLS.
They Secure Her a Good Husband and Him a Pretty Wife.

Miss Emma Yargill is quite the prettiest girl living on Wood street in old Kansas City, Kan. Her admirers, most of whom work at Armour's, Fowler's, or Dadd's, are to be envied by the score. Miss Emma is full of pluck and so busy in her dress, though it is simple and so accurate as to completely knock the shine off of all the rest of the girls around, although the latter may be attired in more costly raiment.

Miss Yargill's father is dead, and her mother recently became an invalid, so the young lady, finding the home treasury slowly draining down to nothing, resolved to refill it from the fruits of her own industry. Her resolve was backed up on a decidedly sensational plain of campaign in search of riches. She would take a man's part in the world and she determined on applying for work but for the fact of running up face to face with the "very best" one of all her numerous male friends. Her cropped hair and made attire did not fool him a bit, and he just stopped her then and there with the exclamation: "Emma! Well, I'll be darned!"

A conversation followed particularly upon the financial despair of the family pocketbook, an invalid mother, and a little brother and sister not old enough to work. The young man said something about being tired of living alone in the world without object of aim, and it is declared by friends who joined the two as they stood there talking that Miss Emma went back home with a tear glistening in her eye and a happy sensation in her heart. She promised to forever discard the overalls and blouses and is soon to become the bride of the man who interrupted her in her search for a man's job at man's wages.—Kansas City Times.

A JAIL BIRD'S AWFUL LEAP.
Sawing Out, He Swings to a Roof Eighty Feet High.

NEW YORK, August 31.—Neither guards, double sets of iron-barred windows nor a very great height from the ground could keep Eugene O'Hara, the desperado who boasts that he is the most ruffianly man in New York, from leaving the confines of Joliet-on-Market Prison at some hour before daylight this morning.

O'Hara's cell door was locked; but he had sawed through two of the upper bars. Then, leaning three feet over from his high balcony, he had sawed through one bar and bent another in the outer window, got through it, swung himself on a rope made of his own clothes, six feet over the market wall, lower roof of the market building outside the jail wall, and walked to the elevated railway station to liberty.

He would have fallen eighty feet had his improvised rope broken or had he missed his footing on the market roof.

The Lions Fought.
MONTREAL, Que., Sep. 1.—While Robinson's circus street parade was in progress today several of the lions in an open cage began fighting. Equestrian Lawler tried to quiet them when one of the lions seized him with one of his paws and lacerated his head and face in a terrible manner. It is thought he will die.
