A Bad Accident.

The members of the city fire department were out late yesterday afternoon to have their first practice drill in preparation for the coming tournament in August, but an accident that came near proving fatal to two persons broke up the drill. The Hook and Ladder Company's aerial truck was placed in position on the corner of South Elm and East Washington streets about 6 o'clock and preparations made to run the long extension ladders up to the top of the National Bank building. These ladders are fastened to the truck and are extended, one ladder over another, by turning a crank. When the ladders had been extended to near the top of the high building some part of the mechanism gave way, when they fell with great force, striking Mr. J. A. Byrd, a barber, and Lizzie Scott, an old colored woman, who were standing on the sidewalk. They were picked up and carried into Dr. Michaux's office and physicians hastily summoned. Mr. Byrd was bleeding profusely and it was at first feared that his skull had been fractured, but upon closer examination it was found to be only a severe scalp wound. The ladder struck him on the head and inflicted a bad wound above the right temple. The colored woman was more seriously injured, both bones of the right leg being broken just above the ankle, besides sustaining an ugly wound across the forehead. The wounds were dressed by the physicians, who think the patients will suffer no fatal results.

The firemen are at a loss to understand how the accident happened, for the ladders have often been used and were thought to be perfectly safe. One of the crank handles came off, but it is said that this should not have caused the ladders to fall.

—Saturday afternoon a gang of small negro boys were playing around some freight cars on a sidetrack near McMahon's old factory, when a desire seized them to make an experiment in practical railroading. Accordingly they climbed up on the cars and loosened the brakes, which put the cars in motion. Had it not been for a switch which caused the cars to leave the track they would have run out on the main line and probably wrecked the incoming Raleigh train. As it was several cars were overturned and considerable damage done. The boys jumped to the ground when the cars got in motion and saved themselves. Yesterday afternoon seven youthful negroes appeared before the mayor charged with the offence, but two of them were turned loose. The evidence against the other five was considered sufficient and four of them were sent to the county roads for thirty days, while one was released upon payment of costs. When the youthful offenders were sentenced to the roads they set up a wall as if they were attending the funeral of a near relative, but this did not appeal to the sympathy of His Honor.

—A sad accident which cost a young boy his life occurred at Summerfield last Thursday. The facts, as we get them, are these: Mr. Martin Proctor had just built a new guano house alongside the railroad track, right near the depot, and it was being filled with guano for the first time. While a car was being unloaded Mr. Proctor's twelve-year-old son and a six-year-old companion by the name of Winfree were playing between the house and the car, when the foundation gave way and the building fell, crushing Mr. Proctor's young son to death. His playmate was caught under the falling building and badly injured, but will recover. Mr. Proctor was knocked under the car, but was not hurt. It was a most horrible accident and the bereaved loved ones have the sympathy of the public.

—Mrs. Lou Reese Sapp died at her home near Jamestown last Thursday afternoon after a long and severe illness. The funeral was held at Deep River Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. A. G. Kirkman in the presence of a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives. Mrs. Sapp was born May 26th, 1833, and was married January 7th, 1858, to Mr. W. G. Sapp. To them were born five children, only two of whom are living. She was a sister of Mr. Joseph M. Reese and Mrs. S. A. Howard, of this city, and had quite a number of other relatives. In early life she professed religion and united with the Methodist church. She was a faithful and earnest christian and will be sadly missed.

—Mr. Thomas Buchanan died in this city last Wednesday at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. John H. Rankin, with whom he had been living for some time. He was eighty-eight years old and leaves a large number of relatives.

Road Machinery Bought.

The county commissioners met in extra session Monday, and the result of their meeting is one of the best items of news we have given our readers in a long time. They met to consider and discuss the public road question and when they adjourned it was with the satisfaction of having accomplished a good day's work for Guilford county. Arrangements were made with the Good Roads Machinery Company, of Kennett Square, Pa., to supply the county with a No. 4 Champion rock crusher, with a capacity of from twelve to eighteen tons per hour, with elevator, screens, etc.; a three-and-a-half ton roller, and an eighteen horsepower engine and boiler.

This is a strictly up-to-date and modern outfit, and when it is received the work of macadamizing the roads will be begun. The machinery will be shipped in time to begin operations early in the fall, and it is to be hoped that the work will be pushed until every mile of public road in the county is macadamized.

The commissioners also accepted the proposition of the citizens living along the Pomona road, who proffered the county a donation of $1,500 to assist in macadamizing the road leading out that way. The work will begin at the city limits, near the State Normal and Industrial College.
