WEDNESDAY, JULY 5, 1899.

The last session of congress created an industrial commission for the purpose of investigating the industrial situation of the county to the end that remedial legislation might be suggested to correct existing evils. This commission has proceeded with its work along certain lines that were not thought of by the creators, and as a result much testimony has been received that is very distasteful to Republicans in high places. It was not anticipated that when the probe should be inserted into the trusts such horrible truths would be revealed, nor was it believed that those who have fattened their purses under the operation of the Republican policy of protection would attack the party that gave them the opportunity to enrich themselves, but we can never tell what a day will bring forth. Instead of proving beneficial to the Republican cause, much of the testimony has furnished campaign material for the opposing forces which will be hard to meet. Republicans recognize the effects which the damaging evidence will have upon the presidential campaign, and every effort will be made to offset its influence. Democrats are already taking advantage of the statements which have been made under oath before the commission, and there is a great demand for printed testimony of H. O. Havemeyer, the sugar king, who dealt such stinging blows at protection. It has been the universal testimony of witnesses that the purpose of all aggregations of capital is to monopolize trade and control prices, and all have agreed that the consumer will be the sufferer when the combinations succeed in the accomplishment of their purpose. Havemeyer, however, capped the climax when he candidly stated that it was the sole object of corporations to drive all competitors out of the business, that they might have absolute control of the trade and get all out of the public possible.

The opinion is held by many that the blighting power of the trusts cannot be destroyed by the enactment of state laws, inasmuch as such laws as might be passed can never be enforced by the officials and the courts. Be that as it may, the following from the Philadelphia Record is sound logic: "The remedy for the trust evil is not in the making of new bad laws which cannot be enforced, but in the repeal of old bad laws of which the mischievous character has been demonstrated. In this has consisted nearly all the legal reforms of the last quarter of a century. Repeal of the protective duties in favor of manufactured commodities of which this country is an exporter would accomplish more to destroy the power of the trusts than all the vindictive state laws, like that of Michigan, which might be placed upon the statute books. It is manifest to all but protectionist fanatics that high protective duties, in prohibiting foreign competition, enable the trusts to concentrate production, control prices and despoil the masses of consumers."

The fact that President McKinley strenuously insists upon the continuance of the press censorship established at Manila will not inspire the public with confidence in the conduct of the war in the Philippines. This military censorship of news from the seat of war has already been described by a correspondent at the front as surpassing in severity that established by the infamous Weyler in Cuba. It is surprising that such methods should be sanctioned by an American administration. It is amazing that they should be more than tacitly sanctioned—that an American president should himself issue orders for their rigid enforcement.

Several years ago some of the leaders of the Mormon church entered politics in behalf of the Republican party, and as a result of their deal many of the Mormon Democrats ceased to observe the tithing law of their church. This has had a bad effect on the financial affairs of the church, which are now in bad shape, and a meeting of prominent Mormons has been called to consider the matter. One would naturally think the Mormons had their hands full defending the doctrines of their church without going over into the Republican party looking for trouble.

Every tax-payer in Guilford county should attend the road congress here on Tuesday, August 1st, which will be the first day of the gala week and firemen's tournament. Prof. F. A. Holmes, state geologist, will deliver an address on the subject of good roads, and we venture the assertion that it will be worth going miles to hear. No man in the state has a richer fund of information on this subject, and if you attend you will hear something both entertaining and instructive.

McLean the Ohio Man.
CINCINNATI, July 3.—Dispatches announcing a conference in Chicago, yesterday, of W. H. Hinrichsen and others, with Samuel B. Cook, of the ways and means bureau of the Democratic national committee, at which it was thought the next ticket would be W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, and Allen W. Thurman, of Ohio, caused quite a stir among the Democrats here.

Although Colonel James Kilbourne, of Columbus, and others, are making active canvasses for the Democratic nomination for Governor, it is claimed by the Democratic leaders here that John R. McLean, proprietor of The Cincinnati Enquirer, will be the nominee of the State convention, at Zanesville, next month, and in any event, that he will be the Ohio man presented to the next Democratic national convention. It is thought by the leaders here that the conference at Chicago was in anticipation of the McLean movement.

Yellow Fever in New York.
New York, June 30.—John Johnson, mate of the Norwegian steamship Krim, was removed to Swinburne Island Hospital this afternoon, suffering from yellow fever, and to-night his condition is serious. The Krim sailed from Havana on June 20 for Matanzas, arriving at that port the same day. Mate Johnson, who had been ailing, was taken severely ill two days after the arrival at Matanzas. The port physician was called in, but up to the time of sailing for this port on June 24, although the man developed high temperature, no suspicious symptoms appeared.

Mrs. Southworth Dead.
WASHINGTON, June 30.—Mrs. Emma Dorothy Elizabeth Nevitte Southworth, the novelist, died to-night at her residence in Georgetown, aged 79 years. During the hot weather in May she had an attack of heat prostration, from which, owing to her advanced age, she was unable to recuperate.
Mrs. Southworth was the daughter of Le Count Nevitte, and was born in Washington in 1819. She began her literary career in 1847 when she wrote "Retribution." She was a most prolific writer, her novels numbering over seventy-five.

Montgomery M. Folsom Dead.
ATLANTA, Ga., July 2.—Montgomery M. Folsom, a poet and dialect writer of fame in the South, died today of apoplexy at his home in this place. He has been indisposed some weeks. He was 42 years old, and has been an active journalist since 19 years old. He ranked as a poet humorist, but his greatest work was in short story and sketch writing depicting Southern characters. He was a protege of the late Henry W. Grady. His writings have been published in many journals in the North.

The Dispensary in Operation.
At 10 o'clock Friday night the bar-rooms of the city closed their doors to give way to the dispensary, which was duly opened at 6 o'clock Saturday morning.

The last legal fight against the establishment of the dispensary was made Friday before Judge Timberlake at chambers. The papers that were served on the members of the board of managers cited them to appear before His Honor and show cause why they should not be attached for contempt of court in disobeying Judge Bryan's order, though on the trial but little was heard of how or when they were in contempt. A temporary restraining order was also asked for.

The prosecution was represented by John N. Staples, L. M. Scott and Thomas Settle. Col. Morehead, John N. Wilson, A. L. Brooks and A. M. Scates appeared for the dispensary board. The entire afternoon was consumed in the argument, which was in the main a repetition of the argument formerly made before Judge Bryan. At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Timberlake refused to interfere in any way with Judge Bryan's order dissolving the restraining order previously granted, thus leaving the dispensary board free to proceed according to law. As has been before stated in these columns, an appeal was taken from the ruling of Judge Bryan, though it does not interfere with the operation of the dispensary.

The dispensary is conveniently located in the Jones and Taylor building, on South Elm street, formerly occupied by Shoffner's bar. Manager Bouldin has things well arranged and the dispensary starts out with the prospects of doing a good business. Those who have patronized the institution compliment the superior grade of the "chemically pure."

I will have a car load of these Drills here about the 15th of July both Disc and Hoe. You can have your choice. The fact that I have already sold several is evidence that they have merit. Read testimonials and save money by seeing me if you want a Drill.

General Agent for Guilford, Randolph and Chatham Counties, W. O. STRAFORD.
SUMNER, N. C., June 24, 1899.

Mr. W. O. Stratford, Greensboro, N. C.
Dear Sir—I write to say I drilled my peas with the "Pennsylvania Low Down" Disc Grain Drill, and find it works admirably and I am well pleased with it. It is light in weight, well balanced and easy in draft. I especially like the low set of the body, for it is easy to put grain and fertilizer into and does not cut off view in front while drilling. It is very simple, strong and easy to operate.
Yours very truly,
R. E. HODGINS.

Mr. W. O. Stratford, Greensboro, N. C.
Dear Sir—I take pleasure in saying that I found the Pennsylvania Low Down Disc Grain Drill, best of you, worked perfectly so far as I could see. It sowed my peas and guano very evenly, and was the easiest draft and lightest drill I ever saw.
