—Wesley Thompson, colored, who was convicted of larceny and sentenced to the county roads about three years ago, was pardoned by Governor Russell Friday, it having developed that he was innocent. He was convicted upon the evidence of one James Murphy, who now makes affidavit that he perjured himself in implicating Thompson.

—There is a probability that Greensboro will, before a great while has elapsed, be reached by another railroad. For some time it has been known that the officials of the Seaboard Air Line were considering the advisability of extending their line from Pittsboro, Chatham county, to this place, and it is now stated that civil engineers have begun surveying the proposed road. It is proposed to run the line up Haw river from Pittsboro to Haw River station, in Alamance county, then by Graham, Burlington and Gibsonville to Greensboro. The new road will be between sixty and seventy-five miles in length and will touch most of the cotton mills on Haw river. It will traverse a good section of country and would give Greensboro another splendid outlet for freight and passenger traffic.

—G. B. Priddy, one of United States Marshal Milliken's deputies, was attempting to arrest a man at Madison one day last week when he thought it necessary to use his revolver to prevent the escape of the fleeing blockader. One or two shots fired into the air had the desired effect and the offender promptly surrendered, but the deputy's troubles had just begun. He had hardly taken possession of his prisoner when he was arrested and tried before the mayor of Madison for firing at the man. He was adjudged guilty by the mayor, who bound him over to court, while the other man went free. It is a question whether any one has the right to interfere with one of Uncle Sam's officials and the matter will be tested at court. Judge S. B. Adams has been retained to defend the deputy, and an effort will be made to have the case removed from the Superior to the Federal court.

A GREAT INSTITUTION.

The Opinion of a Well Known Gentleman in Regard to the Good Work of Keeley Institute.

EDITOR GREENSBORO PATRIOT:
Since many people throughout the country labor under false and injurious impressions in regard to the Keeley Treatment, I wish to give you as plainly, succinctly and truthfully, as I can, my opinions, after having lived for the eight years just passed within a few hundred yards of a Keeley Institute. I live to-day and for some time past have lived upon an adjoining lot.

This institution began its work here under unfavorable auspices. Interested or, at least, unjustly prejudiced parties created in the minds of the public very unfavorable impressions as to the motive of its work accomplished. Independently of these I myself regarded it as a shrewd and unprincipled yankee scheme of extorting, for nothing, money from the sorrows and misfortunes and ignorance of the people. I gave it absolutely no attention, until its successful and most benignant results forced it upon my notice. A friend, acquaintance of mine, who for twenty years had been an acceptable and efficient employe began with increased frequency to change his place of business and employment. Soon quiet drinking at night gave him the delirium tremens to the astonishment of all, certainly to my astonishment. Seven years and seven months ago he took the Keeley treatment; has steadily and acceptably held one position ever since, and says that during this time he has not taken, nor had the appetite or craving to take any form of stimulant whatever.

Another acquaintance, unfortunately for his fame, proclaimed abroad his periodical and occasional drunks with lamentable publicity. Seven years and four months ago he also took the treatment, and says that he has since neither taken nor desired to take a drop of any stimulant. His statement his conduct corroborates to the entire satisfaction of this community, who would otherwise have frequently witnessed his dildos.

I have never been an inmate of any Keeley or kindred institution, but cases like the above coming within my personal observation, and many more coming to my knowledge through information from entirely trustworthy sources, have caused me for some years past frequently to have stood within its walls an interested and sympathetic looker-on.

In my opinion the Keeley is an enterprise humane and beneficent in its scope and purposes, and very largely effective in its work. The Greensboro, North Carolina, Keeley, owned and run by Col. W. H. Osborn and other North Carolinians to the manor born, is, to my knowledge, a noble institution, admirably appointed and conducted. It restores freedom to such slaves of liquor and drugs as desire freedom and are worthy of it. It restores to health the distressingly emotional and nervously prostrated. It does this in a short and fixed time and at a fixed and reasonable charge.

A first-class and skilled matron to supervise the kitchen and dining room, and first-class white men, of feeling, sense and character, as nurses and attendants, are absolutely necessary in this business—such are employed and paid here. Of course an excellent physician, especially trained, too, at Dwight for this especial service gives his individual attention to the inmates, and, if necessary, the best medical skill that Dr. Keeley's intelligence, enterprise and money can secure, are here consulted free of cost to the patient.

It costs money to run this establishment—indomitable labor, patience, and a world of the milk of human kindness and sympathy. If the purpose were solely to make money, and if Col. Osborn would run up his charges from $132 to $500 his receipts would in a short time be the same as now; he would lop-off two-thirds of his labor and expense, and he would get rid of that class of patients, who, by their falls, advertise the treatment unjustly and injuriously beyond any and all other agencies combined. I hope, however, this will never be done. Give them all a chance, for sensible men know and will remember, that one drunken man can and often does advertise his fall more widely in one hour, than 100 cured men, quietly at work, advertise their cures in ten years.

Drunkenness is not only a fearful evil, but is also, as all know, a fearfully deep-seated evil. If the Keeley cannot relieve, so far as I know and believe, the victim's chance is a bad one.

Now, Messrs. editors, I write this without the solicitation, or even the knowledge of anybody. I am wholly without interest in this matter, except as any humane man, possessed of the facts, ought to be and doubtless is or would be. I write it to induce the friends of those in need of the treatment to give them this chance, and also to buoy and aid Col. Osborn financially and otherwise in his beneficent and herculean labors.

I am, yours very truly,
JOSEPH M. MOREHEAD.

To Coal Warships at Sea.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Early next month Naval Constructor Bowles, of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, will give a trial to an apparatus for coaling vessels at sea, which it is asserted overcomes all previous obstacles in this direction. For this purpose the collier Marcellus will be sent to the navy yard from Norfolk. The owners of the new device will equip the Marcellus with it at their own expense.

At present, except in very calm weather, it is necessary to take warships to some port to supply ply them with fuel. The new apparatus is to be used in the open sea. The ship to be coaled and the collier with the fuel will not approach each other closer than about 600 feet. The two vessels are to be connected by means of steel cables, on which run the coal-transmitting buckets. The slack of the cables occasioned by the movement of the vessels in a seaway is provided for by engines which constitute part of the new coaling apparatus.

H. M. Kellam.

Mr. H. M. Kellam, who went from this place to Nebraska something over a year ago, died there on June 24th, aged twenty-three years, five months and twenty-five days. From letters received from parties who were with him at his death it was learned that he was conscious to the last and was willing to die. From which these lines are composed:

I'm dying far away from home,
Out in the rugged West,
But I have made my peace with God,
And soon will be at rest.

No mother's fond caress I feel,
No father's voice I hear,
But Christ the sympathizing friend
Dispels each gloomy fear.

Farewell to all I leave at home—
We'll meet to part no more,
For Death's pale horse will never reach
That bright celestial shore.

Let none who love me shed one tear;
Though far from home I die,
I only leave a world of care
To dwell with Christ on high.
