From a Former Citizen of Guilford.

The PATRIOT is in receipt of a most interesting letter from Mr. Andrew Nicholson, a venerable citizen of New Castle, Henry county, Ind., who was born and reared within a few miles of this city, on the Battle Ground road. He asks what has become of old Martinsville and says he has picked up bayonets left by the British in the battle of Guilford Court House. Extracts from his letter follow:

"MR. EDITOR:—You are an entire stranger to me and so am I to you, but we will not be strangers long. I was born and partly reared in your county and state. My father, John Nicholson, owned a farm on the road leading from Martinsville to the cross roads; I guess you call it Greensboro now. I have seen load after load of the old buildings pass our house. I forgot whether they moved the old court house or not, but they moved the old log jail. They had got it up and the doors locked, but not chinked and daubed; had one prisoner in it. * * *

"Our farm lay on the east side of the road, one and a half miles from Martinsville. (I have to guess at courses and distances.) It had a spring on it and a little branch. Our neighbors were Aaron Berry, a haster; Pratt Jessup, who wore buckskin breeches; the Albrights, and Johnny Gibson, who made peach and apple brandy in summer and whiskey in winter. He set up a liquor shop in the new town. His son was bar-tender. Once he said to his son, 'Johnny, my man, did you charge that half pint?' 'Yes, father, I did.' 'Well charge it again before you forget it.' A young married couple—I think they came from Virginia—started up a tailor shop; something we needed. They stood very fair. After they had lived with us for some time we were startled one morning by the report that strangers had arrested our tailor as a slave and sold him. I think, it was to Wilkes Peoples. After Mr. Peoples died the heirs sold the slave but he was so white the purchaser had a hard bargain. Finally the latter tied him on his back in the sunshine, changed his color, and sold him the best he could.

"My father and mother were Methodists. Our preacher preached from Sunday morning until Saturday night. One of our neighbors wanted to go with the preacher to his next point and sent his son out to the road to watch. He grew impatient and went out and asked his son if anybody had passed. He said no, but a nice bay mare with a long tail had passed with a pair of legs strung across her. (The preacher was badly hump backed.) His name was Muir. I recollect how it was spelled.

"One of my school teachers was William Lister. He agreed to teach reading, writing and arithmetic as far as the single rule of three.

"I will be ninety-four years old next Thanksgiving. Have been in Sunday school eighty-four years and still go every Sunday I am able. Was marked present every Sunday in the year a short time ago. Written with mine own hand. ANDREW NICHOLSON."

Marshals for the State Fair.

Mr. L. A. Carr, chief marshal of the state fair this year, has sent out invitations to the prominent young men of the state asking their assistance in the great effort to make the fair this year exceed all others. The Southern Railway has announced a rate of one fare for the round trip plus fifty cents for one admission into the fair grounds, from all points in the state, including Norfolk, Richmond, Lynchburg, Danville and intermediate stations. Tickets at this rate will be sold on October 14, 15, 16, 17 and 20th, while for the special days rates on a very low scaled basis will be offered from Hickory, Grover, Pineville and points north and east thereof on October 17th and 18th, and from other points in the state on October 18th and 19th, the final limit of all tickets being October 23rd, 1899. For full information call on any agent Southern Railway or write R. L. Vernon, T. P. A., Charlotte, N. C. 40-2t

—The young people of the Hinton neighborhood were entertained at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Gladson last Friday evening in a very gracious manner. Vandalia, Thom's Mill, Pleasant Garden, Greensboro and perhaps other places were represented in the happy assembly. Refreshments were served at ten o'clock.
