In the Mayor's Court.

Mayor Taylor had a full court yesterday afternoon, and as a result the city's treasury is richer by a few dollars. There is a city ordinance against riding a bicycle on the sidewalk, but a young man coming through the suburbs rode along the forbidden path. It is probable that his violation of the light had he not come in collision with a portly colored woman. She reported him to the officers and the minimum fine for the first offence-$3.00-was entered against him by the mayor.

Tom Turner, a burly, insolent negro, and a female friend had a misunderstanding which wound up in a "scrap." The woman suffered some bodily hurt and "mental anguish." The mayor charged Tom $7.50 for his little diver-

Monday night several young white beys and a negro procured a half gallon of extract of corn and went out to paint the town a bloody hue. The white boys were having some fun at the expense of the negro, who rebelled, and curse words and blows followed. When the mayor investigated the matof the white boys were fined $4.00 each.

Of late the officers have been keeping a "weather eye" on the houses of ill fame with which Greensboro is cursed, and there has been considerable moving around among the occupants of said houses, several of them having left town. Louise Allen is an indelicate but not altogether badlooking female who presides over one of these passion-allaying establishments, and yesterday afternoon she was summoned into the presence of Greensboro's chief magistrate to answer for her sins, or a portion of them. When her case was called she waived examination and was bound over to the December term of court under a bond of $100. It is very probable that she will shake the dust of this wicked city from her feet before the next term of court, but in that event the town will be better off and the officers will have accomplished their purpose-ridding the city of as many of these undesirable citizens as possible.
