

TIGHTY HARD WORK.

Some men have to do their work under all sorts of unusual and adverse circumstances that are just as trying upon their health and physical condition as if they were soldiers fighting and marching day and night in a hard campaign. When the conditions under which a man works are abnormal and unhealthy he needs to take special precautions to build himself up to withstand the extra strain.

"In 1894, I was working at night and in the morning I was tired and when I went to bed I could not sleep," says Mr. John A. Calloway, a resident of Columbus, Georgia, in a recent letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "I used many kinds of medicine but when it would commence troubling me I would have a slight aching in the lower part of my back. My eyes were sunken and I had pimples on my face and nose. I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and two of Dr. Pierce's Kidney and Bladder Pills. I prepared the best medicines I ever used and I do believe that I am entirely cured. I have a good appetite but before I commenced treatment I had no appetite at all. Now I am like a child—ready to eat at any time of day. Last year I weighed one hundred and thirty-four pounds and now I weigh one hundred and forty-five. Please accept my thanks from so glad I found the right kind of medicine.

"Golden Medical Discovery" is free of alcohol, it is pure medicine and nothing else. Unlike the so-called "tonics" and "extracts" which tend to create an appetite for stimulants, the "Discovery" creates only a healthy natural temperance appetite for good food which nourishes and builds. The medicine dealer who gives you something "just as good" as this is a falsifier. If he urges an inferior substitute it is to gain a few pennies greater profit. No matter how discouraging you may be, write to Dr. Pierce for the medicine which he will send you free and which, if followed, is bound to do you good.

Children

are a source of comfort. They are a source of care, also. If you care for your child's health, send for illustrated book on the disorders to which children are subject, and which Frey's Vermifuge has cured for 50 years.

Cure bottle by mail for 25 cents.

LOVE AND POVERTY.

The roses bloom round my dwelling place;
Yet poor is my home, and small;
There is little of beauty and little of grace,
But Love has enshrined it all.
There toil and trouble have often met,
And life has been full of care,
With tears, bitter tears, have mine eyes been wet,
With a sorrow that none could share.
But sweet, very sweet, is my home to me
Since Love has o'ershadowed my poverty.

In the twilight dim, when the day is o'er,
And the sun in the West sinks low,
I stand and wait by the open door
For a welcome step I know.
Two eyes will shine with the lovelight gleam
As, all bitterness overpast,
The cares of the day will forgotten seem,
When my love comes home at last.
Oh, happy, thrice happy, the hour shall be
That bringeth my love to his home and me!

I dwell in a home that is poor and low,
Yet riches I have to spare;
That home is the dearest my heart can know,
Since Love has a dwelling there.
Though toil is weary and hard the fight,
Our hearts must be richly blest,
For Love will shine as a beacon light,
To bring us peace and rest.
Oh, rich, passing rich, is my lot to me
Since Love has o'ershadowed my poverty!

NO MAN LIVETH UNTO HIMSELF.

Each Works for His Fellows and the General Welfare.

Truly has it been said that "no man liveth unto himself." Man is naturally selfish and designedly so, for it is his desire to get gain and to outstrip his neighbors that moves him to action. Ambition is selfish, yet without ambition many of the greatest achievements of man had not been. But in spite of human selfishness, in spite of greed and ambition and all that, in the world's economy each man works for his fellows and for the general welfare. The man who goes to his daily toil in the factory is not moved to do so by any generous impulse, except so far as the care for one's family may be said to be generous. He works for the pay that he receives, for wages that are necessary to provide the means of subsistence. Yet in spite of himself the man who is so employed works for the good of others. If he makes shoes or hats or clothing, or if he helps to build locomotives or steam boats, the articles which he produces, or helps to produce, are for the comfort and enjoyment of others.

This is true in a much broader sense. When the International Commercial Congress assembled in Philadelphia the other day, Assistant Secretary of State Hill said that as the dignity of human labor was derived from the happiness which it bestowed upon mankind, the more widely its benefits were distributed the more noble it became. "The patient toiler," said he, "whether in the field, the mine, the factory, or the great agencies of transportation, can entertain no more worthy sentiment than that inspired by the thought that his toil and skill are destined to satisfy the needs of some fellow being and bring a thrill of pleasure to some unknown recipient as a reward for his own activities." And then in the broader sense he said: "All too slowly, but none the less surely, after centuries of savage battle men have learned that it is better and nobler to feed and clothe and help one another than to rob and plunder and destroy."

Ex-Senator Edmunds, following in the same line, said that the commercial museum, under whose auspices the commercial congress was assembled, has brought together the products of the labor of men in order that our citizens and manufacturers may have the advantage of seeing where and from whom they could obtain most advantageously the products they desire to use. A bureau of information has also been established, so that if a citizen of Japan, a subject of Russia, or a gentleman from South America wishes to know how he can best send his products to the United States, where he may find the best market, or anything that enters into the laws of trade, he may gather such information from this bureau. And this in conclusion:

"It is for these ends that this congress has been invited to assemble here. It is hoped and believed that your visit to the museums and the exposition will not only promote more and more the trade in a just sense and friendly intercourse between all countries, but will also bring us nearer and nearer to what we all hope for a universal friendship."

As if this were not enough Dr. Wilson, the director-general of the exposition, said that the commercial museum was not planned to benefit the interests of Philadelphia alone, not designed to help only such as might come to it for information from the state of Pennsylvania. "It does not," he went on, "confine its investigations to the manufacturing interests and commerce of the United States. It has, from the very first, extended its thoughts and activities to foreign nations, earnestly believing that there are broad lines of reciprocity and commerce yet to be discovered, yet not in one direction more than in another between every commercial country and the United States."

This is a great theme—the brotherhood of nations. As no man liveth unto himself, so no nation liveth unto itself. Steam and electricity have made the whole world akin. For years past the doctrine has been preached in this country that the United States was powerful enough to live unto itself and could defy the usages of the world. It has been said that we should ignore the system of finance across the ocean, erect our own monetary standard and snap our fingers at the foreign money power. Again we have been told that we should erect a Chinese wall around our shores and refuse to let foreigners come in and do business with us. All such talk is out of date, we had almost said a relic of barbarism. Modern progress means reciprocity. The more intimate and friendly the relationship of the nations of the earth, the nearer we approach the millennium. There is a great and grand moral principle involved in this "brotherhood between nations." —Richmond Times.

The South's Advantages.

The Southern Industrial Convention met in Huntsville, Ala., last week and was addressed by many men of prominence. One of the best speeches was that delivered by Mr. M. V. Richards, land and industrial agent of the Southern Railway, his subject being "Immigration to the South." Among other good things he said: "The figures show that only about 40 per cent of the farming lands are under cultivation, and that 148,639,672 acres are waiting, not only 'the man with the hoe,' but the farmer, with all the modern appliances for successful farming. Here the soil and climate are adapted to the raising of a long and wide catalogue of products, which embrace all the staple cereals, saying nothing of cotton, sugar cane, hemp, the finest grades of tobacco, etc., the South having almost a monopoly of the four last-named products. But, in addition, all varieties of fruits raised in the higher latitude, with many others which can be grown only in subtropical regions. Unsurpassed stock ranges are found here, with a genial climate, abundant pasturage and an ample supply of water, where all descriptions of stock can be raised at a minimum cost, and which, it is not too much to say, are a veritable stockman's paradise; the peculiar topography of the country admirably adapts it for fruit and vine culture, and there is no region on the globe more highly favored by nature for these industries, and as a dairying region, it is second to none; lands are low in price, the annual rainfall is abundant, not an acre requires irrigation as a condition precedent to a prolific crop, and the climate is so genial in many localities that out of door work may be done all the year round. All these reasons go to show that this is an ideal section for the farmer, not only with capital, but for those whose principal capital is their industry and skill.

"The South has unlimited opportunities, and may we all take advantage thereof."

On the 10th of December, 1897, Rev. S. A. Donahoe, pastor M. E. Church, South, Ft. Pleasant, W. Va., contracted a severe cold which was attended from the beginning by violent coughing. He says: "After resorting to a number of so-called 'specifics', usually kept in the house, to no purpose, I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which acted like a charm. I most cheerfully recommend it to the public." For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

Spanish army officers are receiving honors and rewards on a lavish scale, notwithstanding their ill success in the war. It is said that the honor list for the campaign will contain the names of between 500 and 600 officers. For their services in Cuba in 1896 and the following year fifty-eight generals, 1,382 other officers and 680 non-commissioned officers have been rewarded.

The Rev. Sam Small, the revivalist, will be a partner in a newspaper to be established in Cuba. The enterprise has bright prospects of success, since another partner is Francis Atwater, financial agent in Cuba for the Red Cross Society, and the paper will be an administration organ, while the job department is to publish the first city directory Havana has ever had.

"I wish to express my thanks to the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, for having put on the market such a wonderful medicine," says W. W. Massingill, of Beaumont, Texas. There are many thousands of mothers whose children have been saved from attacks of dysentery and cholera infantum who must also feel thankful. It is for sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.
