

Dike's Kidney and Liver Remedy

The kidneys should receive constant and careful attention. Night and day they are working, filtering blood, preventing the accumulation of poisonous waste matter. Failure to do this will result in deposits of poisonous waste—the circulation becomes clogged and sluggish, causing ill health. Dike's Kidney and Liver Remedy strengthens the kidneys, liver and bladder, cleanses the blood of all impurities, opens the circulation and prevents Bright's Disease. We recommend it for your use. Two Sizes—50c and $1.00.

Barnes Brands Roosevelt a Liar.
"Party organization without order and discipline is absurd on its face. Never in the history of human endeavor has there been a successful organization that did not so rule. We must move in order or not move at all. Unquestionably I told Roosevelt that it is impossible to have party government without organization, financed and under good leadership."

That was the reply to Roosevelt's charge of bossism made by William Barnes, Jr., testifying for himself in his $50,000 suit against the ex-president in Syracuse, N. Y. Barnes denied he told Roosevelt protection should be given corporations in return for contributions. He consigned Roosevelt to the Annanias club by denying flatly he ever said "the rif-raff" were not fit to govern themselves. He branded the colonel, not himself, as the boss of the New York G. O. P. from 1906 to 1910.

Our Greatest Chinese Center.
Keeping up with the remarkable development of San Francisco since the disaster of 1906, the Sunday schools of the "New Chinatown" have grown in numbers and developed in methods until they compare favorably in nearly all respects with their American counterparts. This quarter of San Francisco is the greatest center of Chinese in America. Everything in its streets speaks of progress and the adoption of American customs. On one corner of Stockton street is the Methodist church. Near by is a modern hotel and next to it the Chinese National League of America. Across the street is the Chinese Y. M. C. A. Churches of practically all denominations have religious directors in the city for the Oriental work, and the larger denominations have buildings in the heart of Chinatown where are located the church and Sunday school rooms, night and day school headquarters, dormitories and social halls.

DREAM WORTHY OF A GREAT AND CHIVALROUS PEOPLE.

Is Grand Enough to Stir the Highest Imaginations and Emit the Noblest Impulses.

In this country we people of the South are supposed to be hot-blooded, rash, combative. Perhaps we have that reputation because as individuals and collectively many of us have proved our readiness to fight and to give life and blood for ideals and dreams and immaterial things, such as honor and liberty. The right of secession was an ideal and the Southern Confederacy was a dream, its constitution an array of ideals fine and beautiful.

Now we are called by the president, a man of the South and of this state of Virginia, to support the highest and broadest ideals and dreams by use of the patience that is the noblest and purest courage; by calm purpose to do the most possible good and be of the most possible use to humanity and the world in the face of gross outrage and wrong and crime abhorrent to every instinct of manhood and every thought of mankind. Let us determine that in this supreme and tremendous test we will prove ourselves.

Sneering comment on President Wilson's address at Philadelphia may be expected. He will be accused of uttering cheap and inane platitudes. All great sentiment is platitude because it expresses the oldest and dearest aspirations of the human race, and comes to us from the great first cause, the Creator of all things and all laws.

We may disregard these sneers as products of small minds, of ignoble materialism, of petty political purposes and base spite and malice. We will be irritated by the arrogant and insolent outgivings of men, who will undertake to dictate to us our duties and who, if unnaturalized, are tolerated spies among us, and if naturalized are merely traitors to our flag and country.

Perhaps the most irritating trial of our patience is the message from the kaiser with its few cold words of formal regret for the murder of our men, women and children and its many words of self-righteous, self-excusing and proclamation of virtuous intent. It is like an assassin briefly condoling with the bereft family of his victim and hastening to justify his crime.

In the South we remember that we were blockaded and starved through years and burned no cities, destroyed no churches and slew no non-combatants. General Sherman and Hunter have stood with us as representing all that was bestial, cruel and hateful in war, but even they respected sex and infancy. Millions of men fought long campaigns in this country. They were roused to fury and hate by intense fury and hate and conflict of will, and some of them were newly freed black slaves. But from 1861 to 1865, with all the ferocity of fighting on both sides, there was no instance of a woman outraged by a soldier or a baby slaughtered. We were men and fought like men among ourselves, man against man.

The Confederate states steamer Alabama ravaged the seas and destroyed a mighty merchant marine, but she never caused the death of a non-combatant of a neutral, or struck without full warning. With these memories and traditions we can find nothing but horror and detestation for the man who smugly excuses wholesale murder of the helpless.

Kaiser Wilhelm stands with us, as he will live in history, with Alaric, the Hun, as a ruthless destroyer; with Nero, as a wanton incendiary; with King Herod, of Judea, as a butcherer of babies; with Pontius Pilate, in hypocritical washing of his hands of innocent blood.

Yet patience and dignity, self-mastery and the vast courage of patience constitute our task and our duty. Boasting and threats are for the lesser breeds without the law. The most splendid loyalty for all, foreign and native born, of all stations and fortunes, is loyalty to lofty ideals and worldwide purpose.

That purpose, as told by the president, is not material gain for ourselves. It is not peace, dear as peace is, or the saving of our lives or our money. We have proved well our readiness to give both freely for cause and rights. It is that we may be ready and in position when the time comes to be the pacificator and benefactor, the healer and the source of justice and hope and comfort for the stricken nations of the earth.

The ideal of the fathers of this republic was that it should be the place of refuge for all the oppressed. The new and broader ideal is that we may not only offer refuge, but carry rescue.

No nobler or leveler dream can inhabit the soul of a strong and brave and high-thinking people. We have made many dreams realities. It may be given us to realize this and make it the most wonderful achievement of all the history of nations.

We have done many large things. The Almighty may see fit to permit us to do this larger thing than ever has been done; to confer at the end of this most stupendous of all wars the most stupendous blessing and the vastest mercy since the coming of the world's Saviour.

It is a dream worthy of a great people and worthily told by a great representative man of that people. It rises magnificent and majestic above all common and little passions, impulses and motives. It is grand enough to stir our highest imaginations and to enlist our best impulses.

For hope of its fulfillment we can well afford to restrain just resentment, refrain from passion and tumult, to proceed in this troubled and perplexing time with the decorum and deliberation and strict regard for humanity's well-being becoming to the greatest of the peoples confronting a momentous issue, and appalling temptation and an opportunity never before presented to any people.—Richmond Journal.

Proper Conception of Patriotism.

Patriotism, as we conceive it, consists at the present juncture not in lustily howling for blood and vengeance, or finding fault with the agents we have selected for the transaction of our national affairs because they do not rush us precipitately into ill-considered action without weighing causes or consequences, but in calm, temperate trust in those responsible for American honor to do the wise and proper thing at the appropriate time. We find in some other newspapers—happily few in number and weak in influence—a different conception of patriotism. They deem this an opportune occasion to make partisan capital out of an appalling calamity that may be fraught with still more fearful consequences if handled without the irresistible firmness that is based on the unshakable foundations of right, justice and judgment. Fools rush in where angels fear to tread. There are fools in control of some newspapers. When they seek partisan advantage in the situation brought to a crisis by the sinking of the Lusitania their folly smacks strongly of villainy.—Philadelphia Record.

New Machine For Picking Cotton.

While the South has been concentrating its entire attention at present on the question of the marketing of this year's cotton crop, a cotton manufacturer of Westbrook, Mass., has been perfecting a machine which, if what is claimed for it is true, is of more vital concern to the production of this great staple than all the subsidies and bond issues that the federal government could be induced to grant. This is a cotton harvester, recently demonstrated at Fairwood, S. C., where it picked cotton successfully by sucking the lint out of the bolls by compressed air, somewhat on the order, apparently, of the vacuum cleaner. Its economical value has not been proved, and it is also said to have the defect of picking dried leaves along with the cotton, but the inventor claims that this objection will be overcome by the employment of expert operators.—Boston Transcript.

May Resort to Universal Service.

Addressing the house of lords Thursday, Viscount Haldane, lord high chancellor, intimated that the British government was considering the necessity of departing from the voluntary system of military enlistments and resorting to universal service throughout the kingdom. For the present, he said, the hands of the war office were filled with the men they possessed, but it might be necessary to reconsider the situation in the light of the tremendous necessities with which the nation was confronted.

This appears to confirm the idea prevalent that, while recruiting has been satisfactory, the heavy fighting in Flanders shows that many more men will be required if victory is to be attained.

Warning Against Flies.

The state board of health is circulating throughout the state a special warning for every precaution to be taken against permitting flies to come in contact with babies, their food or playthings, flies and heat being declared to greatly increase the death rate of babies with each recurring summer season. The dread baby summer complaint is declared to be a preventable disease, a fly-borne disease that also finds conveyance in impure water and milk.

"Slowed Up" at Middle Age.

The hard working kidneys seem to require aid sooner than other internal organs. At middle age many men and women feel twinges of rheumatism, have swollen or aching joints and are distressed with sleep disturbing bladder ailments. Foley Kidney Pills are safe, prompt and can be depended on to give relief. Conyers & Sykes. adv.

2,785 Acres

Yes, we actually own and control two thousand, seven hundred and eighty-five acres of land in Guilford county. This land is all for sale, and in any sized tracts wanted and on any reasonable terms. The prices range from $18.00 to $100.00 per acre. Doubtless we could close our office and hold this land five years and make more money than to sell it now. But we are in the real estate business and prefer to keep buying and selling. So if you want a farm—a good farm—and at the right price, see us.

How Will You Set Your Tobacco This Year?

Will you stick to the laborious, back breaking method of setting it by hand, when there is an easier way? By using a MASTERS PLANT SETTER you not only save labor, time and prevent lame backs from stooping but you set your plants nature's way—every plant is rooted by absorption.

One man with a Masters Plant Setter can set, water and fertilize more plants than three men can set by hand in one day. Plants are set, watered and fertilized all in one operation.

These setters may be used equally as well for setting out tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, sweet potato slips, etc.

If you have never used one of these planters call and let us show you the principle of operation.
