Raleigh, Nov. 26.—Director B. W. Kilgore, of the agricultural extension service, has advised the field workers in agriculture and home economics out over the state that the continued collection of nuts, shells and fruit pits for making carbon for gas masks is no longer necessary with the signing of the armistice terms by Germany. Lieut. W. M. Jackson, in charge of this work for the chemical warfare service, has notified the Red Cross and other organizations that the war department now has on hand a sufficient amount of these if all that have been collected are turned in promptly and with-

In notifying Director Kilgore of this action, Lieutenant Jackson has Dr. J. W. Taylor, expressed his thanks for the good work done by the extension organization in aiding in this important matter and has asked that all material now collected in this state be shipped at once to the Red Cross chapters.
