

Last Year's vs This Year's SIGHT

Last year your eyes may have been splendid, perfect, faultless. BUT—this year they may be blurry, distressing, defective. The remedy?—Have us examine your eyes and furnish the glasses needed.

EVENTS 80 YEARS AGO

It is the purpose of this paper to publish at frequent intervals comparatively brief references to events chronicled in The Greensborough (as it was then) Patriot of 80 years ago. In this enterprise valuable assistance is rendered by members of the staff of the Greensboro Public Library.

(Oct. 29, 1842) Last year, the total decrease of the consumption of wines in England was 425,825 gallons.

Business has materially revived in the manufacturing establishments of Virginia, since the passage of the tariff bill.

Mr. Thomas Blanchard, of Massachusetts, has invented a machine for turning shoe lasts of all sizes.

The indictment against Colonel Webb for intending to fight a duel with Mr. Marshall has been declared void, and Webb released from custody.

OXFORD ACADEMY, Granville county, North Carolina.—The trustees of this institution, for the purpose of supplying the male department with teachers for the next year, will give to a classical teacher a salary of $200 and the tuition fees. And to an English teacher, to be connected with the same department, they will give a salary of $300. Applications will be received until the 15th day of November. They feel fully warranted in saying that the location is high and healthy and the society good, and that it presents a situation in every point of view, highly favorable for a good school.

By order of the board of trustees. J. HILLIARD, Sec'y. Sept. 29, 1842.

Comfort For Cows

The season of the year is approaching when, in many sections of the country, cows will be kept in the stables at night and at least part of the day. Under such conditions, comfort and healthful surroundings for dairy cattle are exceedingly important. The chief items entering into comfort and healthfulness are light, air-space, ventilation, bedding, and sufficient room.

There should be at least four square feet of window glass for each stall or stanchion in the stable. Windows should be well distributed so that all parts of the stable are lighted. At least 500 cubic feet of air-space are necessary for each animal, so that every one may secure an adequate supply of air. In very cold climates more than 800 cubic feet of air per cow is liable to result in a cold stable, but under ordinary conditions the air-space may be as high as 1,000 cubic feet per animal.

Of course sufficient air-space alone is not enough. The air must be changed frequently so that fresh air is available. This should be done without causing drafts of cold air on the cows, or unduly lowering the temperature of the stable. Cold regions, a system of intake and outlet flues is necessary to accomplish proper ventilation. In warmer places, fresh air may be admitted through windows hinged at the bottom and tipping inward. Any successful ventilating system must admit fresh air in a manner that will not chill the cow, and provide a means of removing foul air.

Cows should be plentifully supplied with clean bedding, for both comfort and cleanliness. Animals should not be kept in crowded quarters for the same reasons.

Dairy inspectors, in calling these matters to the attention of dairymen, may make it plain that they not only encourage sanitation but also promote the efficiency and economy of milk production. Comfort, light, and fresh air are enemies of animal distress and disease.

"Slimy Taste"

"When I feel stupid, get constipated, or bilious, I take a good dose of two of Black-Draught and it sets me straight," writes Mr. George B. Haislep, of R. F. D. 2, Columbia, S. C. "It cleanses the liver and I feel all right, and have not used any other medicine as I do not see the need of it. I am a guard at the State Reformatory, and have been for three or more years. When I first heard of and the good medicine it was, I had been having a tired feeling when I'd get up in the morning. I would be stiff and sore, and had a slimy, bad taste in my mouth, but didn't think so much of it till I began to feel stupid and didn't feel like eating—then I knew I needed medicine. It was then I began Black-Draught, and I felt all made over, ready for any kind of work, ready to eat and sleep. So, for any return of this trouble, I take Black-Draught, and for 25 years it has been my medicine, and I wouldn't be without it at all. My work is constant. I am on my feet a lot. I am out of doors, and fresh air and Black-Draught are all the medicines I need. I recommend it to others for I know it is good."
