Cherokee Senior Citizens Meet

Good food and fellowship made the November meeting of the Cherokee Senior Citizens a happy occasion.

Approximately 45 men and women gathered for the event Monday, November 9, in the new Civic Center building, which began with a pot-luck dinner, followed by a business meeting and program.

Principle business transacted was the election of Mrs. Lula O. Gloyne as Senior Citizen club president, an office which was not filled at the last meeting due to an election technicality.

Mrs. Gloyne moved up to head the group from the office of vice-president, to which she was named previously, and Mrs. Kate Arkansas was chosen to fill the latter position. Mackinley Ross, who was elected club interpreter last month, announced that he expects to be out of town a good deal and would need a helper. Mrs. Cindy Taylor was then elected alternate interpreter.

Dr. Will Nash, of the Cherokee Indian Hospital staff, was the main speaker of the afternoon, his topic being "Deafness and Hearing Aids."

Another speaker was Eva Nell Thomasson, director of Social Services for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, told of ways in which her department can be helpful to older citizens. She suggested that they come see her for assistance in home

Christmas Bazaar

People will be able to enjoy "refreshment snacks," admire a variety of craft work made by area residents, and do some highly individual Christmas shopping, all at the same time, in Cherokee on Friday and Saturday, November 20 and 21.

The occasion will be the annual Christmas Bazaar sponsored by the five Cherokee Reservation Homemakers' Extension clubs, plus the Senior Citizen women.

The exhibit will be held in the gymnasium of the new Qualla Civic Center building, in the gymnasium.

The Bazaar will be open to the public from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, and on Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.

At conclusion of the bazaar, the club members and their friends will gather in the gymnasium for the annual Awards Program of the Homemaking Extension Department. Awards will be announced for the outstanding county club, individual member, and other recognitions. Details of the program will be announced later, Miss Pell said.

Flower Talk

By Judy Wright

With the beginning of time man has felt that flowers were so beautiful that they should symbolize something, and as time grew on they began to represent many more things.

The following are some of flowers and what they stand for: Agrimony, means gratitude; azalea, means temperance; cherry blossoms, represents insincerity; four leaf clover, stands for good luck. Pear tree, means comfort; red poppy, means consolation; lavender, stands for distrust; bluebell, represents constancy, and the bramble symbolizes envy.

No matter what you want flowers to represent, we will help you arrange them, because that is our business.
