

Farming.

The years of 1867-70 with their life results to all cotton planters have almost passed out of memory...

- List of farming advice: 1st. Raise corn enough for a support. 2nd. Raise meat enough for a support. 3rd. And as much cotton as possible.

Petersburg Appeal.

FOR THE COURIER. Old Fogy. The man who is opposed to every plan of improvement, who refuses to tread in any other than the path that his father trod before him.

There are six or seven tobacco factories in Surry County, eleven of them being in the village of Mount Airy.

An Iowa Falls woman put a couple of dozen eggs into her bed so they should not freeze while she was absent four or five days, and on her return late at night bounded into bed, and bounced out again.

Minnesota paper wants the rapid increase of its circulation, having taken in 75 cents, cash, and a bushel of potatoes on subscription this week.

Georgia planters are reported to be devoting nearly all their lands to cotton, reducing the gain crop in an alarming manner.

'Gentlemen of the jury,' charged a Western judge, 'in this case counsel on both sides are unentirely the witnesses on both sides are incredible, and the plaintiff and defendant are both such characters, that to me it is indifferent which way you give a verdict.'

Alexander H. Stephens is now sixty one years old. He first entered the House of Representatives in 1843 as a Whig, and was continued in his seat until 1859. After he voted for the Kansas Nebraska Act in 1854, he was classified as a Democrat, when he now claims to be of the straiter sort.

W. MEN AS JURORS.—Judge Kingman, of the United States Court for Wyoming Territory, has written a letter stating that the employment of women as jurors has enabled the courts to punish classes of criminals whose conviction could not otherwise have been obtained.

In the County of Perry Alabama there are sixteen thousand acres of land advertised for sale on account of the non-payment of taxes. The effect of a sale rule.

There is an individual, representative from the second congressional district Georgia, who losingly says, that he is the only republican in that State, and claims that he is entitled to the entire Federal patronage on that account.

The New York Evening Post says: that H. R. Helper anti-op of 'the impending crisis of the South' and other works takes passage for London to day.

Masonry of the Middle Ages.

Speculative Masons of the nineteenth century have good reasons to be proud of the first fathers of Freemasonry. They point with legitimate pride to those stately and superb edifices, the master-pieces of architectural skill, which are amongst the chief ornaments of, not only of these islands but of Continental Europe...

These virtues and this organization are still cherished by the Speculative Masons as their most sacred inheritance, and be it remembered that the results which they aimed at by the same as aimed at by us—the glory of God and the good of men—though the means by which those results were sought, were somewhat different; in one case a material building, in the other a spiritual temple.

Cultivation of Cotton.

Mr. Editor.—By your permission I will submit a few thoughts on the cultivation of cotton, as this is the staple of our 'Sunny South.' Since cotton has been selling at what is deemed a remunerative price, every planter, as well as farmer, has been trying to raise it.

end my life. Give up drinking whisky, young man, and all of ye. Give it up, or 'twill bring ye to thurt some day. Be sober, and be good to your wives and kind to every dody. Whisky will make the best man mad. I had as good a wife as any of ye has now, and if I had, I had been drank I'd never have taken her life, nor would I be here myself. But whisky, I say it again, whisky brought me to this.

'S. C.' is the man all tattered and torn, that lied to the maiden all forlorn, that half milked the cow with the crumpled horn, etc.

Henry Wilson is the (K. N.) high priest all shaven and shorn, who compelled his dead wife to acknowledge his corn; he's as bad as 'Dear Schuyler' all tattered and torn, that fawned on the maiden all forlorn, etc.

McComb is the farmer that sowed the corn—when he sowed the whole M. C. concern—that inspired the cock to crow in the morn, and frighten the priest, all shaven and shorn, into spilling the malt from the maiden all forlorn, etc.

Good temper is the sunshine of the domestic circle, and must be prized accordingly. Fretfulness, peevishness, sulciness, bitterness and anger must be viewed as so many hissing snakes and driven from every hearth that claims the distinction of being happy.

Fear is the cock that crowed in the morn and frightened the priest all shaven and shorn, into selling the malt to his wife's (a horn), lest it might arouse the popular scorn, if malt should be found in the family corn of the K. N. high priest, who desired to adorn the chair of the man now tattered and torn, that lionized the maiden all forlorn, etc.

FOR THE COURIER.

Died suddenly of paralysis, at his residence in Franklinton, N. C., on the 23rd inst., Mr. James Algernon Henley, in the 47th year of his age.

Mr. Henley, was one of the principal merchants of Franklinton, and a man of fine mercantile talent.

He began life under many disadvantages, but by industry and economy succeeded far beyond a majority of business men.

He was a decided advocate of temperance principles, and a pious christian.

For three years his health has been quite precarious, and consequently his usefulness greatly narrowed, yet by his death the community has lost a useful citizen—the church (the Methodist Episcopal Church, South), one of her best members—the Masonic Fraternity a true member, and his family a devoted husband and father.

Married.
