In using paris green to exterminate the potato bugs, the poison should be mixed with the cheapest grade of flour, one pound of green to ten of flour. A good way of applying it to the plants is to take an old two quart tin fruit can, melt off the top, and put in a wooden head, also, to pour the powder in, and then punch the bottom full of holes about the size of No. 6 shot. Walk alongside the rows, when the vines are wet with the dew or rain, and make one shoot at each hill.

In some parts of the country, there have been large numbers of the orchard or tent caterpillars which have left their rings of eggs on the young twigs. If these are now cut off with a clipping pole, it will prevent in every instance a large nest of caterpillars, and be much more easily done than after the latter have grown.

Tin can be removed from copper ves sels very thoroughly by immersing the objects in a solution of blue vitriol.

The German washerwomen use a mix ture of two ounces turpentine and one ounce spirits of ammonia well mixed together. This is put into a bucket of warm water, in which half a pound of soap has been dissolved. The clothes are immersed for twenty-four hours and then washed. The cleansing is said to be greatly quickened, and two or three rinsings in cold water removes the turpentine smell.

Five parts of sifted whiting mixed with a solution of one part glue, together with a little Venice turpentine to obviate the brittleness, makes a good plastic material which may be kneaded into figures or any desired shape. It should be kept warm while being worked. It becomes as hard stone when dry.

Artificial malachite which is suscepti ble to a fine polish is make by precipitating a solution of sulphate of copper in the cold by carbonate of soda or of pot ash. The precipitate, which is voluminous, should be allowed first to cohere, and is then dried and washed.

Water containing about seven grains of salt in each pint, is, when used continuously, a poison to the weaker forms of vegetation.

The alloy popularly known as oroide, explained, Grouchy had no heart in the watches, chains, and trinkets are now manufactured, is made of pure copper one hundred parts, tin seventeen parts, tartar of commerce nine parts. The copper is first melted, then the magnesia, sal ammoniac, lime, and tartar in powder are added little by little and briskly stirred for half an hour. The tin is lastly mixed in in grains until all is fused. The crucible is covered, and the fusion maintained for thirty-five minutes, when the dross is skimmed off and the alloy is ready for use.

THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO.

A Review of it Many Years After it was Fought--- An Interesting review, has been pronounced sublime in its simplicity. A million of troops were swarming from all parts of Europe to overwhelm Napoleon. He could only muster 125,000 to meet the Anglo-Belgic army of 85,000, under Wellington, and 65,000 Prussians, under Blucher. Had Wellington retreated to Antwerp, as all military critics unite in thinking he ought to have done, time would have enabled the rapidly approaching millions to arrive, and Napoleon could not have had a chance. His strategy was, therefore, to surprise them, cut in between and separate them, turn on Blucher and defeat him, and throwing him into retreat, send Grouchy, with 32,000, to complete his rout, and then turn, with all his remaining 95,000-a numerical superiority-on Wellington's 85,000. plied and then rubbed with flannel, is The defeat of Wellington would have upset the tory government of Castlereagh in England, would have installed a liberal cabinet and compelled the withdrawal of England from the conti- ridge, ex-Senator and former Vice-President, nental coalition, the conquering a peace and the establishment of Napoleon on the throne. On the morning of the 17th of June Napoleon drove in his carriage to the field of battle of the day before. He was suffering so intensely with hemorrhoids that he could not sit on his horse. Twenty silk dresses were among the articles enumerated in the trousseau of a Brooklyn bride last week. Black grenadine suits, trimmed with beads and insertions of velvet, are destined to be very fashionable. Guipure lace overdresses, which were so fashionable last year, will be quite as much so this year, no doubt.

Russia leather fans come in new shapes and designs this season, some of which are exceedingly handsome. There is quite a mania for old lace now, and old ladies are ransacking their trunks for their granddaughters. The handsomest sunshades are of white or black lace, with heavy white stick, with coral or gold handle. White chip bonnets are among the most elegant of the season; they require very little face or other trimming. Palais royal jewelry is shown in all its glory for the summer season. The earrings are very long, with ball pendants. All white dresses are embroidered. The Hamburg embroidery is as much in favor as ever. Nothing could be prettier. Ball fringe is going out of fashion, as it was only suitable for winter garments.

Sleeveless jackets will beas fashionable as ever this reason; those of blue or grav silk, trimmed with lace, are the prettiest. Ladies' neckties have heavily embroidered ends, in fancy colors. Those of white have brilliant flowers embroidered on the end. Velvet will be generally used to trim summer silks of dark materials. Many of the handsomest of the imported black silks are trimmed with velvet. Sandal wood jewelry is, to a certain extent, fashionable; it is appropriate for the season and some of the designs are both very novel and very pretty.

A bride's dress the other day was embroidered in floss, to represent a vine of orange blossoms. The dress was of white silk, and the imitation was perfect. The forest fires in Pennsylvania and New Jersey are of the most serious character, and embrace many miles of territory and property of immense value within the range of destruction. The secret of these fires is to be found in the reneral mattention to forest culture in this country. Where woodlands exist at all they are utterly neglected, and among the mountains of the two States now suffering from forest fires whole townships and even whole counties are as inflammable as a Western city. Until the laws provide for the preservation and protection of forests we may expect these ever-recurring disasters, and it seems it is only while the fires are raging that anybody thinks the subject worthy of consideration. We trust the matter will not be much longer neglected, for of Palermo has already been warned to leave until there is some practical legislation on this question, applicable alike to all the wood-growing States, there will not be even so much as an attempt at making these terrible visitations impossible.

A Word in Season.

Health is a blessing which comparatively few enjoy in all its fullness. Those endowed by nature wit : cbust frames and vigorous constitutions should be careful not to trifle with them. When we enter the seasons of periodic fevers, the increased heat of the sun develops a miasma which pervades the air. The evil is inextinguishable; our duty to guard against it is imperative! Fortunately for those whose lot is cast in low marshy districts or new clearings, nature provides a cure and preventive. Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are endowed with rare prophylactic or disease-preventing powers, and as "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of Forbes," of Rochester, N.
