THE NORTH AND THE SOUTH.

What the Press is Doing to Promote Harmonious Feeling.

At the annual meeting of the New York Press Association at Elmira, N. Y., there were present some sixty editors representing the press of Alabama and Tennessee. Among the resolutions presented by the chairman of the committee, Col. C. L. McArthur, of the Troy Budget, and unanimously adopted by the New York Association, we note the following:

Resolved, That this association, at this, the twenty-first year of its annual gathering and organization, returns its thanks to a merciful Providence that "doeth all things well," and felicitates those of its members present at this convention, that so many have been spared to gather on this auspicious occasion to celebrate the anniversary on which the society passes from the years of its minority into the full and assured vigor and strength that pertains to perfected growth and the compact and strong powers of accomplished maturity and usefulness.

Resolved, That in so brief a period as that that has transpired since the close of the late civil war, we deem it an auspicious and glorious fact that the members of the Southern press met the members of the press of this State, belonging to this association in 1872 at Watertown, in the most friendly and social greeting, in the exchange of personal hospitalities and courtesies, and also that in the year 1874 a large portion of the members of the press of this association visited the Alabama Press Association convention, and were most kindly and hospitably received, not only by the members of the press of the South, but by officials, municipal functionaries and citizens throughout the regions visited; and further, that at this convention we are again enabled to take by the hand for the third year, in warm and friendly grasp, a considerable number of the press conductors and representatives of the leading newspapers of Alabama and Tennessee; and further,

Whereas, the newspapers of the North and South whose representatives meet here and now were during the late civil war, to a large extent, the exponents of the sentiments of the communities in which they lived in exciting the people of their own regions to war in defense of real or imaginary rights, and were thus in bitter and hostile antagonism; and, whereas, now for three years these old antagonists have shaken hands over the memories and animosities of the past, agreeing in the future to unite heart, head and hand in defense of a common union, one and indivisible, should that union be menaced in the future; therefore,

Resolved, That on our part, this association will strive, so far as within its power, to forget all that is unpleasant in past conflicts, and will unite each in their own sphere in brotherly and fraternal efforts to make this republic of ours the grandest and most noble nation vouchsafed to earth in the flight of time, and to so lay its foundations broad and deep in eternal justice and right as forever to defy the assaults of factions or the onsets of the enemies of republican liberty.

Chinese Ideas of Dying.

The death of the Empress Dowager, Kea Shun, widow of the late Emperor Tung Chih, by suicide, was reported soon after the late emperor's death, but according to the Pekin Gazette her death did not take place until March 27. The China Mail says: Her fate has been indeed unhappy. Wedded at fifteen, she became a widow at seventeen, and since the death of her husband has, if native reports are to be believed, led a miserable life. She refused all food for days and sunk from exhaustion. Her position was most unenviable. At best she was condemned to perpetual seclusion for many years to come, while she was exposed to intrigues which in view of her expected confinement might have had her death and that of the possible child as their object. Death was probably a merciful relief. The Shanghai Courier says that the early death of the empress is entirely in accordance with the national idea of what is most highly fitting for a wife so bereaved. It is not impossible that her memory will acquire a sanctity in Chinese eyes from the fact of her having followed her lord within so short a period; the event is already attributed to her regrets, as it is said that she suffered from no definite disease.

Scene of the Latest Earthquake.

The valley of Cucuta—which the telegraph informs us suffered the greatest amount of loss in the recent earthquake in New Granada—is in the province of Pamplona, a mountainous section of New Granada, in which the peak of Almorzadero, 12,850 feet high, is situated. The range to which this belongs is about two hundred and fifty miles from the Pacific coast, about the same distance from the Caribbean sea, and but a short distance from the Venezuelan frontier. In this region traces of the most violent volcanic action are visible on every hand.

Vinegar Bitters.

The great merit of Vinegar Bitters has made them the leading medicine of the day, and respectable druggists everywhere write: "They are the best and most popular preparation in the market." They have stood the test of public opinion and won confidence. They sell rapidly because they cure. If you are sick you want reliable medicine. Vinegar Bitters commend themselves to the ailing and afflicted, as they are deficient in one thing alone, viz.: the stimulant that unduly excites the brain, and creates a morbid thirst for spirits! There is no phase of indigestion, biliousness, nervous disease, or physical debility, in which they will not effect a cure. Invalids who are wasting away from a want of proper action in the liver, stomach and bowels, will find them a constitutional specific, and a fountain of vitality and vigor as refreshing and exhilarating as a cool, gushing spring of water to the parched and fainting traveler in the desert.

Another terrible disaster is reported from sea, by which over eighty persons are supposed to have perished. The steamer State of Georgia, from Glasgow to New York, picked up a boat at sea containing five seamen in a half starved and frozen condition, who stated that they were part of the crew of the steamer Vicksburg, from Quebec for Glasgow, which had been cut down by ice and foundered off the coast of Newfoundland, with all on board. They were kindly cared for by the officers of the Georgia, to whom they told their sad story, saying that the Vicksburg left Quebec Thursday, May 27th, with a crew of sixty-five men, and passengers to the number of twenty-eight, of whom three were women. When only three days out, they found themselves partly surrounded by ice, and used the greatest endeavors to escape from the many floes. They managed to keep on their way until Monday night at twelve o'clock, when they struck unusually heavy ice in front, and on endeavoring to back out, the fans of the propeller were broken, when it was found the steamer was entirely surrounded by thick ice, which had forced a large hole in the port quarter. The break was stopped by canvas and other materials, and the captain advised the fears of all on board by telling them that he could reach St. Johns, which was only one hundred and twenty miles off. But the water gained rapidly and put out the fires, and so forced them to get ready their boats. The first boat broke loose from the davits, and partly filled with water, when these five survivors were ordered to bail her out for the passengers, at which they were engaged when they saw the steamer lurch and go down with the captain and about forty people, about ten o'clock Tuesday morning. Meanwhile a second boat was got off, containing ten seamen; and as the steamer sunk, a third boat with the chief officer and thirty people floated off. The three boats, illy provided with the necessaries of life, kept together as long as possible, but the floating ice soon separated them, and the five seamen were nearly exhausted when picked up by the Georgia on Saturday. As the disaster occurred far out of the line of passing vessels, nothing has been heard of the other two boats, and it is supposed they are lost, which will swell the number of victims to more than eighty.

An American Advertising Agency.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co., of New York, are unquestionably the largest advertising agents in the world. Their quarterly accounts for postage alone frequently exceed $400. When it is borne in mind that the sum of five cents pays the postage upon thirteen papers, it is easy to calculate that for the postage exacted from Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. they are entitled to receive considerably more than one hundred thousand papers every three months, or more than a thousand every day. On occasions in the winter, when the snows interfere with the regular running of the mails, as soon as the blockade is removed it not unfrequently happens that as many as twenty-five bushels of newspapers will be received in a single morning.

What becomes of all these papers? What is done with them? are questions which are often asked. The papers come from every quarter, and are assorted throughout the day and night by the Post-office employees. Those addressed to Geo. P. Rowell & Co.'s Advertising Agency are thrown into large mail bags arranged on a rack or frame made to support them, with the mouth held open, and these, when filled, are tied at the top and set aside to wait until called for. On Mondays, and mornings after holidays, as many as three or four bags are filled, each one containing several bushels of newspapers in their wrappers, each bag being packed as closely as possible.

The mail bags are brought to the office, after which the papers are taken from the bags and heaped upon a table. Then the wrappers are taken off and the papers smoothed out, uniformly folded and arranged by States. The various piles are then handed over to the men who have in charge the business of examining each separate paper to make sure the advertisements ordered from the Agency are being inserted according to the specifications of contract.

The country is divided into sections and apportioned out to as many men. One devotes his entire time to papers issued in the city of New York; another checks those in States near by; one has Canada; one the South, and another the Territories and Pacific coast. With his book spread open before him, the work of examination and checking proceeds. Every paper in which an advertisement is running is opened out, and the advertisements, one or more, are marked with a crayon so as to be easily found or seen at a glance when the adverliser comes to make his examination before paying his bill.

The checking books are arranged to show the actual number of insertions which every advertisement is to receive. Special marks are used to designate special things, and the checking clerk, guided by instructions, produces a page which will show the advertiser at a glance whether his insertions have been truly and correctly rendered, or otherwise. The name of the advertiser, the space, position, style and length of time an advertisement must appear are all indicated. The various marks have their meaning—all easily understood and not readily mistaken. If a paper fails to come to hand, the checking book reveals the fact, and it is sent for. It may not be of much importance, but the clerks in charge are instructed not to consider that their duty is done the paper and keep files complete.

If an advertisement is materially wrong, is out of position, has important typographical errors, or for any reason is not what the advertiser is entitled to expect, notice is dispatched to the publisher at once, and the error is made good by another insertion or a reduction from the bill. This system is carried to perfection. The checking books are kept permanently for inspection by advertisers. The papers themselves are kept three months from date of issue, after that time the Agency has no guarantee to exhibit them.

After the examination and marking, the paper is again folded, and receives a heavy mark on its upper right hand corner to indicate that it has passed the requisite examination, and is ready to be placed on file. It is then taken and placed in the space accorded to it. Every weekly paper is assigned to a pigeon-hole 12 inches, and odd 1oot deep, while to a daily a3 threefold. These spaces are all designated by a label, having printed upon it the name of the paper to which the space is accorded. These being placed in tiers or cases placed back to back and set up to form galleries, are so arranged as the whole being arranged alphabetically by states, the name of each State being designated on the case, and again over the entrance to each separate gallery. A stranger is thus enabled to search the directory of his own local paper, or any other that he may desire to see, with as much readiness as he finds a word in a dictionary or a name in a directory. The papers are being arranged one story above another, and as compactly as possible, occupying portions of the same rooms where all the work upon the papers is performed, leaves nothing to be desired in the way of compactness or convenience.

An advertiser whose rule it is to pay no bills until he sees all the papers, can here be accommodated, and a business amounting to $20,000 per annum in cheap country papers can be looked after (a copy of every paper examined) by the advertiser, or his representative, who will devote three days' time to the examination four times a year.

The time required for examining papers is mainly used in looking after the advertisement which is not there. This work has all been done beforehand, and each advertisement is marked plainly with a black crayon. If it is so marked the advertiser takes in its appearance, style, position, everything in an instant, and if it is not marked he need go no farther; it is not there, and he is entitled to one other insertion or an allowance.

An important use of having complete files of papers so conveniently arranged consists in being able to produce for large advertisers samples of all the papers to which they wish to insert their announcements, that they may see for themselves what each paper looks like, and judge what style of advertising will be the most effective in each.

When the papers have accumulated until their allotted spaces assume a crowded appearance, then comes the final solution of the problem of "What do you do with them?" Boys go through the galleries, extract the serpentipus papers from each of the spaces (being careful to have a complete file for at least three months), throw them into one great heap, after which a dealer in paper stock comes and cats a bear all around, and in another month they may be found in the store of the paper dealer, made into new bundles, upon which may again be printed other papers to repeat the same round of experience.

A young girl is Pittsburgh Pa., while asleep one afternoon lately, had her hair—which was extraordinarily thick and handsome—entirely cut from her head. As some jewelry lying near was not taken, it is supposed the outrage was perpetrated by some rival.

WELLINGTON, Lorain Co., O., Aug. 24, 1874.
Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—Your medicines, Golden Medical Discovery, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, have proved of the greatest service to me. Six months ago no one thought that I could possibly live long. I had a complication of diseases—scrofula, manifesting itself in eruptions and great blotches on my head that made such sores that I could not have my hair combed without causing me much suffering; also causing swollen glands, tonsils enlarged, enlarged "thick neck," and large and numerous boils. I also suffered from a terrible chronic catarrh, and in fact I was so diseased that life was a burden to me. I had tried many doctors with no benefit. I finally procured one-half dozen bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery, and one dozen Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and commenced their use. At first I was badly discouraged, but after taking four bottles of the Discovery I began to improve, and when I had taken the remaining, I was well. In addition to the use of Discovery I applied a solution of iodine to the goitre or thick neck, as you advise in pamphlet wrapping, and it entirely disappeared. Your Discovery is certainly the most wonderful blood medicine ever invented. I thank God and you, from the depths of my heart, for the great good it has done me.

Very gratefully, MISS L. CRAVEN.

Most medicines which are advertised as blood purifiers and liver medicines contain either mercury, in some form, or potassium and iodine variously combined. All of these agents have strong tendency to break down the blood corpuscles, and debilitate and otherwise permanently injure the human system, and should therefore be discarded. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, on the other hand, being composed of the fluid extracts of native plants, barks and roots, will in no case produce injury, its effects being strengthening and curative only. Sarsaparilla, which used to enjoy quite a reputation as a blood purifier, is a remedy of thirty years ago, and may well give place, as it is doing, to the more positive and valuable vegetable alteratives which later medical investigation and discovery have brought to light. In scrofula or kings evil, white swellings, ulcers, erysipelas, swelled neck, goitre, scrofulous inflammations, indolent inflammation, mercurial affections, old sores, eruptions of the skin and sore eyes, as in all other blood diseases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has shown its great remedial powers, curing the most obstinate and intractable cases. Sold by all dealers in medicines.—Com.

$160,000 Made in Two Months—A Wall Street Operation.

The banking house of Alex. Frothingham & Co., 12 Wall street, who deal in stock privileges, have paid this enormous sum to their customers during this short space of time. Some persons have made as high as $6,000 from only $100 originally invested, and many have made $1,000 and over from only $50. They paid in a single day over $40,000, for which only $3,000 were received, or $37,000 net profit to various people. They employ constantly from twelve to fifteen competent bookkeepers and assistants. With this working force they are often compelled to remain at their work till midnight. This energetic firm well deserves the credit of being the leading house in their branch of business, and it is most wonderful to acknowledge that they have established this business in the short space of five years. They have customers who reside in nearly every State of the Union, also the Dominion of Canada—even from the Island of Cuba they receive orders from persons who are continually dealing in stocks. Their business has become so extensive that two experienced correspondents are employed to attend to their advertising accounts. Their cards may be read in every first-class newspaper published in the United States. To this they attribute a portion of their success. We advise those desiring to place their business with a firm possessing the very highest record for uprightness, and who conduct their business upon honest principles, to deal with this house.

They also issue a weekly report of the condition of affairs in Wall street, which they are glad to mail free, for one year, to any one who desires and contemplates speculating. Send for it.—N. Y. Evening Mail.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
