600 per annum. Now I say here distinctly, knowing the full import of every word that I utter...

printing and finding the Government $500,000 year more than it ought to have cost...

year more than it would have cost under a carefully guarded system...

in this estimate a large margin for profit. I know what I say is true and the evidence taken during the investigation demonstrates the correctness of the assertion...

This thing has been going on for years; these exorbitant charges have been made upon the books of the office these large sums have been expended...

and until this inquiry no wrong had been discovered. I do not propose to charge the responsibility for this upon anybody...

It is one of those things that might have occurred under any circumstances; but in my judgment, if the proper steps had been taken in the past, the wrongs abuses practiced in the Government office would have been discovered...

and some remedy proposed. If, as is now proposed in one of the sections, a regular and careful examination of the books had been made...

the overcharges would have come to light and a check been placed long ago upon the system of so-called "open market" purchases...

the evils of the system exposed whereby the Government has been defrauded of $500,000 a year an aggregate loss in the past seven years of fully $3,500,000...

No private establishment in the country could have stood the operations of such a system and it is in evidence that no private establishment could have been conducted in this manner without coming to speedy bankruptcy.

Circular Letter From the Grand Master of Masons.

To the W. M. WARDEN, AND BRETHREN OF THE VARIOUS LODGES OF F. & A. MASONS OF NORTH CAROLINA.

Wilson, N. C. May 28th, 1876.

The time approaches, when Masons throughout the world meet to celebrate the anniversary of one of the purest and noblest of the order, when in every Lodge round the globe principles of order and duty will be re-asserted and every soul feels proud that he is a member of the same.

It is a meeting that should not be a mere social indulgence, something in a special exhibition of the grandeur and nobility of the order, and show to the world that our professions are more than rhetoric and high sounding declarations. It is a meeting that should be a practical exhibition of the principles and teachings of our order, and show to the world that our professions are more than rhetoric and high sounding declarations.

It is a meeting that should be a practical exhibition of the principles and teachings of our order, and show to the world that our professions are more than rhetoric and high sounding declarations.

may be strengthened, our Grand work supported and our Temples adorned with the beautiful fruits of Brotherly Love, Relief and Truth.

GEORGE W. BLOUNT, Grand Master.

DELTA PSI.

IN MARCH.

Within the last four years has the Upsilon Chapter been called to mourn the death of four of her noble sons.

The names of Taylor, Hill, White, Fremont and Brock are awake, tender and halcyon memories in all whose hearts it was to meet with them around the altar of Delta Psi and claim them as brothers by our holy rites.

And now comes the heart thrilling tidings that another faithful brother has passed from the world, that Edwin Wiley Fuller is dead. Gone from us, with the bright promise of fame shining full upon him; gone, while his friends turned to him for counsel and guidance; gone, while men looked upon him as a living will that should endure, and make them nobler by his might; gone, while the arms of dearest affection clung around and strove to retain him, but gone, with eyes of far-seeing faith turned on Him whose love was first in his heart, the Saviour who promised all things to them that love His appearing.

It is meet that we should reverently recall the qualities which endeared to us him whom we mourn. Never have the halls of Delta Psi welcomed a more earnest and devoted member. His labors in the cause began before he went to the University of Virginia. As a member of the Xi at the University of North Carolina, and a mere youth, he used his already remarkable talents to the honor of his Chapter. He was its Anniversary orator in 1864, and his address attracted great attention by its beautiful language and striking illustrations. Going to the University of Va. in 1867, he gave to the Upsilon Chapter a whole hearted service and all his talents to the honor of his Chapter. His high character, his clear and well ordered mind, his genial friendship made him a power among us, a power we exerted for good. His was no passing, listless life, he was a true warrior of the Church militant battling with the forces of the Prince of darkness, and carrying the standard of the True Faith into the kingdom of vice and ignorance.

The productions of his fluent pen, now light, now serious, some of them published in periodicals some written for the pleasure of his brethren of the Upsilon, were our delight and admiration.

In 1868, he returned to his home. There, the press of business, and of family affairs compelled him to forego for some time the steady pursuit of literature. But he could not wholly lay it aside, and he launched forth again into the vast and perilous sea of letters. His very first venture brought encouragement and promised a successful future. He was chosen to deliver the poem at the reunion of the Fraternity in June 1876 at Philadelphia. On this work he entered with zeal and love, and it was nearly completed when, failing health forced him to resign the place.

This was one of the bitterest disappointments of his life. Amid the many callings that made his life a busy one, he never lost sight of the Delta Psi, and always cherished for it the most affectionate regard. For its merit and its happy associations, he and our brethren were most ready to sacrifice.

Mortality the crown of a noble and useful and a complete life was one of the chief ornaments of his character. Success in life, preference from others, possession of talents most unusual, did not at all prevail to cast upon him the too frequent blimish of self arrogated importance or ungracious assumption. Gentle, loyal, earnest, faithful, we shall not soon look upon his like on earth.

Let us close this incomplete memorial by the record of the last incident of his life. He had been told that death had entered his chamber and stood not far off. His only reply was, "It is all right. He had finished his worldly arrangements, had spoken his last parting words to those around him, when he remembered his promise to write a dirge for the oration of Memorial Day in Wilmington N. C. He was then in the very arms of death, his grasp of the life-lead most loose, when he dictated the verses, already composed, but not written down, that were promised - Faithful unto the last!

This was the final act of a young life that was pure and holy, that was true to every instinct of noble manhood. Death found him ready to lay down life with the hope for fame, its many blessings, and ennobling ties. The Saviour's love illumined the gloom of the dark valley and crowned the labors of his days on Earth humbly and unobtrusively devoted to the service of his divine Master - "There remaineth a rest for the people of God."

New Postage Bill.

The following House Bill passed the Senate last Thursday:

1. Be it enacted, &c. That mail matter of the third class shall embrace all pamphlets, occasional publications, regular publications, devoted primarily to advertising purposes or for free circulation, or for circulation at nominal subscription rates; price-current, catalogues, annuals, handbills, posters, unsealed circulars, prospectuses, look-books or unbound book manuscripts, proof-sheets, maps, prints, engravings, blank, inflexible patterns, samples, merchandise, sample cards, photographic paper, letter envelopes and wrappers, cards (plain and ornamental), paper, photographic representations, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, and all other matter which may be declared mailable by law as third-class matter, and other articles not above the weight prescribed by law, which are not from their nature liable to decay, deface, or otherwise injure the contents of the mail-bags, or the person of any one engaged in the postal service. All liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials, and obscene books or papers, shall be excluded from the mails.

2. That packages of matter of the third class shall not exceed four pounds in weight and shall be subject to free examination and rates of postage of hereinafter provided. The postage of mail matter of the third class shall be at the following rates for all distances: One cent for each ounce or fractional part thereof. Every package of the third class of mail matter shall bear the postmark of the office at which the same shall be mailed for transportation.

3. That postage on third class matter shall be prepaid by stamps. If however, the postage on third class matter, mailed at an office, shall be less than the amount above prescribed in cases where the same is known such sender shall be notified of the fact, and the amount of postage due shall be collected from such sender before the same be transmitted by mail. In case the sender is not known, and where it has not been the evident intention of the party so depositing the package shall be forwarded and double the amount, and of deficient postage shall be collected from the party to whom it is addressed, delivered at its proper destination.

4. That the sender of any article of third-class mail matter may write his or her name, or address thereon, or on the outside thereof, with the word "from" above or preceding the same; or may write briefly on any package the name or name of the articles enclosed. Publishers of newspapers and periodicals may print on the wrappers of newspapers or magazines sent from the office of publication to regular subscribers the time to which subscription therefor has been paid.

5. That transient newspapers and magazines shall be admitted to and transmitted in the mails at the rate of one cent for every three ounces or fractional part thereof, and one cent for each two additional ounces or fractional part thereof.

6. That this act shall take effect on and after the 1st day of July, 1876.
