WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1876.

WELCOME.

As the Daily Courier represents the voice of the citizens of Louisburg and Franklin County, we take pleasure in extending a hearty welcome to all visitors during this week. Our people have always been noted for their hospitality, and kindness to strangers, and they have never departed from these noble principles. We may not be able to give you as grand a reception, and entertain you as highly as other people—perhaps could; but we promise to do the very best we can and will do all in our power to make your short stay among us a pleasant one. Our houses and hearts have been freely opened to you, and we bid you enter and be welcome, welcome, thrice welcome. Let us as citizens and strangers, unite and resolve to have a good time both socially and religiously, and make this Conference work one long to be remembered.

SKETCH OF LOUISBURG.

Louisburg the County Seat of Franklin, is situated on Tar River 31 miles North from Raleigh, the Capitol of the State, and 10 miles from Franklinton, the nearest point to the E. & G. R. Road. Louisburg was laid off in the year 1789, by Mr. Green Hill, and by reference to a diagram of the town, we see that great care was taken in making the squares and streets regular and straight. Main street runs almost North and South, and very nearly through the centre of the town, and four other streets run parallel with it. Nash street on which most of the business houses are situated, runs East and West, with six others running parallel. There are fifteen stores, one Drug Store, three Physicians, three Lawyers, and no loafers. For the past six years Louisburg has built up a reputation as one of the very best cotton Markets in the State. Louisburg is not dependent upon transient trade, but has a fine back country from which it draws its principal support.

Louisburg has ever been noted for its excellent schools, and some of the men who received instructions here have filled high and honorable positions, both in the State and National government. There is located here the Louisburg Female College, conducted under the auspices of the Raleigh District Conference, with Rev. F. L. Reid, as President and Mrs. C. D. Lawrence in the Literary, and Miss Annie R. Fuller in the Musical department. Our citizens must feel that they are peculiarly fortunate in securing such teachers, and we feel no doubt that under their management the College must rise and flourish, and ere long take its place among the other colleges in the State. Mr. M. S. Davis, who enjoys a splendid reputation in the State, has had charge of the Male school here for nearly 20 years, and it gives us great pleasure to state that he has managed it most satisfactorily to all. Miss C. A. Crenshaw, who has for several years had a select school here for young ladies, is a graduate of Murfreesboro Female College and is a thorough scholar and teacher.

There are also in Louisburg five Churches;—three whites and two colored. The Methodist Episcopal Church with Rev. F. L. Reid, as Pastor in charge, is in a flourishing condition. Mr. Reid is truly a man of God, and is in every way well qualified to fill the position he occupies. The Missionary Baptist Church is under the direction of Prof. C. E. Taylor, a man much beloved by all who know him. The Episcopal Church with Rev. E. Dolloway as Rector, is also in a flourishing condition. Mr. Dolloway is a Christian, a gentleman and minister. The colored Presbyterian and Baptist Churches, have large congregations, and our colored people, generally have high regard for religious principles.

There is not a more intelligent, refined and moral community in the State. The Merchants are thrifty, enterprising and thoroughly reliable. Louisburg is a remarkably healthy town, and there is no place not even in the mountains of N. C. that can boast of better water.—The above facts are true, which we think makes Louisburg one of the most desirable places in the State to live in.

The drunkard is generally a noble hearted friend who loves ardently. He is no close-fisted miser, but is generous, generous to a fault. His heart and his purse (as long as he has a purse) are open to the wants of his friends. This very generosity of nature makes it more difficult for him to reform. How can he break away from his boon companions when solicited by them to take a social glass, or is coaxed by them to treat. To refuse would be doing violence to his whole nature. Such a character is worth the most zealous efforts for its salvation. He would be an ornament in society, a useful member of the church, a bright shining star in the moral firmament of the suffering poor if he could be saved from the depths of ruin into which he has fallen.

METHODISM ITEMS.

The Virginia Conference has ten, Holston Conference fifteen counties in this State.

Tyerman says that Robert Raikes received the idea of a Sunday School from one of the Wesley family.

The course of Study prescribed by the Southern Methodist Church for the ordination of Deacons and Elders is thorough and the examination rigid and exhaustive. One having been admitted to Elder's orders, may be considered as proficient in theology as if he had passed through a dozen dignified schools of Divinity and Theological seminaries.

A distinguished citizen of, North Carolina, a man in high office, not himself a member, but admirer of the Methodist Church remarked to us some time ago that he considered Methodism "the biggest fact in history."

Bishop Marvin says that one of the most admirable features of the Methodist Church, is, that it puts men to work as soon as they are converted "striking while the iron is hot" and knowing that while a man will readily respond if asked to pray in public a week after his conversion, he will hesitate or refuse if it is postponed six weeks or six months.
