New York, May 19.—After six years' missionary work among the Kassai river in the interior of the Congo Free State the Rev. William Morrison of Lexington, Va., of the American Presbyterian Mission returned to his home in the Congo. Morrison, whose story of the abuses that the natives of the Congo Free State are alleged to be subjected to by the Congo administration has attracted some attention in London, says that he will furnish the state department with more evidence of these abuses. Mr. Morrison left Liebo early in April and on hearing his story of abuses the Society for the Protection of Aborigines, London, took up the matter and Mr. Morrison furnished a report to Foreign Secretary Lansdowne. The report, according to Mr. Morrison, will be taken up by parliament on May 20. "I come here to lay the matter before the secretary of state," he said, "and I believe the action of those in authority both here and in England will result in better conditions in the Congo Free State. It is not a free state. In Liebo, where I have been working, you can buy a woman for $10. I have not seen a man sold, for their services are too valuable. They are practically forced to work, and this amounts to virtual slavery. The conditions are not growing any better. The things that I have seen and the things that I know by investigation are embodied in my report to Lord Lansdowne, which I shall present to the state department here. This report gives the result of my personal investigation."

The War Not Over.

Columbus, O., May 20.—The Hill Top Improvement Association, an organization in the vicinity of Camp Chase, after a stormy session refused to participate in the annual services which are to be held next month at the cemetery in memory of the confederate dead. President W. B. Potts had planned for the association to take part in the ceremonies but when the matter was brought before the association, it met with stormy opposition. A resolution was at once presented declaring the refusal of the association to participate in the exercises. Dr. Warner, a member of the association, declared that the war was not over. He said it never would be over until the confederates recognized the 14th and 15th amendments to the constitution. President Potts tried to prevent the adoption of this resolution. He said the confederate graveyard at Camp Chase was the largest of its kind in the north and annually in June the eyes of an admitted country were on Columbus, that this city had gained the thanks of all the people of the southern states because of its care of the dead confederates. He said he was one of those who thought the civil war was over. He had been laboring under the impression that the sons of ex-confederates and of ex-union soldiers fought side by side in the Spanish-American war and for the protection of the Christians in China. The resolution was adopted by a majority vote. When you want a pleasant physic try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Dignify the Farm. It is simply and only a matter of having cotton, eating fat meat and soggy bread, and of going to bed, then let's commit harriet's ad once and end the matter. It were better. The man who does not lift his life above the clouds and out of the mire does not care how he lives. His home with environments is the surst index of his thoughts, and life. Men and houses are interchangeable types, the one for the other. Where is so large a proportion of all our farm boys going to? Why don't they continue on the farm? Why is the farm unattractive?

If called upon for an answer, I should say that one of the factors in the case is that we do not sufficiently dignify the farm. We do not sufficiently respect the farm; we do not give it the air and atmosphere of respectability! The whole business and outfit gives us the impression of drudgery and humdrumness.

As I look back at the various farms that I have seen, the English farm I believe, has most impressed me. As a boy, and growing up on it, I believe here it is that I would have been most apt to remain as a man. I have seen hundreds of thousands of farms elsewhere that I, as a 12-year-old lad, would have run away from to escape such a life and such a home. No man could love, nor could he tolerate, a thing he could not respect. An outline of this English farm may be helpful. In the first place, every place is an "estate"—the place's name is one of dignity. The approach to it is through a gate with dignified and great pillar posts, no matter how rude and rustic. On the gateway posts is the estate's name. It may be or need not be fanciful and high-sounding. The name often is chosen to designate some individuality of the estate. The house always has a setting—no matter how humble the house. This setting consists of a little path of walks and grass, shrubbery and trees, and not one of them, perhaps, from florist or nurseryman.

You respect the whole outfit—place and owner—the moment you see it. The boy grows up with the same feelings you have for it.

Every farm in North Carolina is worthy (dignity means worthiness) of just such settings as above. You may say that this is not practical and that it is only an appeal to the imagination. But the moment you leave imagination out of your life, I would not give a farthing for your life. And if your boy is about to leave the old farm and you want him to settle about you and not go away—then even a plan that keeps him and holds him—even though it be imagination—becomes a practical way. We should not give up this beautiful country to the negro cropper. If the four or five children of every man in the country could only be made by some means to settle in the country in the place of going to town—then what a great future the South would have!—In Southern Cultivator.

Correspondence of The Tar Heel. Gregory, N. C., May 19:—

Dr. Celus G. Ferebee who has been doing hospital work at the Old Dominion Hospital at Richmond Va. for the last year has been appointed first assistant surgeon for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad. He spent one day and night with his parents in Camden county and left for Huntington West Va., to take charge of the company's hospital at that place where he will soon make his home. Huntington is a bustling town of twenty-five or thirty inhabitants on the Ohio river and Dr. Ferebee is to be congratulated on securing such a fine position and having such a nice country to live in.
