"The problem of the hour is not how to prevent lynching in the South but the larger question: 'How shall we destroy the question which always has and always will provoke lynchings?' The answer which the mob returns to this vital quetion is known. The mob answeres already the rope, the bullet, and sometimes. God save us, the torch. And the mob is practical, its theory is eftoday the sternest, the strongest and the most effective restraint that the age holds for the control of rape." The lyncher does not exterminate the rapist, contended Mr. Graves, but he holds him highly in check. As a sheer, cold, patent fact, he said, the mob stands today as the most potenbulwark between the women of South and such a carnival of the would infuriate the precipitate the annihilations of the negro race. The masses of the negro, he held, are not afraid, of death coming in a regular way. They love display and the spectacuappeal to their imaginations.

THE BOYS APPEAL.

450 School Boys Parade the Streets With Banners.

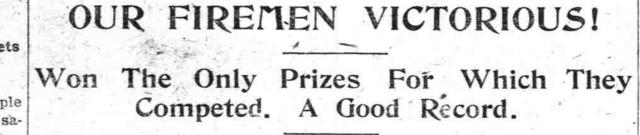

Recently at Girard, O. the people voted whether they would have saloons or not.Just before the election 450 school boys got up a huge banlar element of a trial and execution ner, on which, in flaming letters, was the inscription, "Vote Dry For Us." These boys paraded the streets with lynching. The people of the amend- this banner, asking the people for ments and the establishment of the their sake to vote down the saloons. And, as might be expected, a big temperance vote was cast as the result. The boys' appeals touched the hearts

Commenting upon this the Dial of Progress says:

"Is ther any appeal for aid more tonching and binding than that of a helpless boy or girl struggling for life? And yet what kind of an ansbear as a law-making amputation the wer do the American people make to themselves-100,000 of whom evthis, like curfew edicts, separates the ery year get started on the road to laws for white and black, or the treat a fate worse than death throught the penalty for the crime of rape as separ saloonsWhy, the answer is 250,000 ate and of all other codes are but sinks of iniquity, which set their expedients he maintained; there is traps on every hand to catch our inno real remedy for one. Davis was a sober, industrious moun taineer and a devout church member, Some months since his child died and he was deeply affected by the loss. While his feelings were thus wrought upon, a sanctification preacher came to Ashe county to hold a revival. Davis attended and became a convert to the doctrine.

One afternoon about this time in May, Alfred Baker and his son Levi Baker, went to Davis' house on the mountain side, and asked to stay all night. All had retired when Davis arose from the bed occupied by himself and wife, seized an axe and dealt him a terrific blow on the neck of Levi Baker as he slept.
