THE REGISTER CASE

It Was Argued in the Supreme Court Wednesday.

Letter from the Principal Prosecuting Witness to Governor Aycock Filed—Other New Evidence.

The most notable argument in the Supreme Court Wednesday, says the Raleigh Post, was that in the well known Register case from Columbus county, a new trial being asked on the ground of newly discovered evidence.

The arguments were by Attorney General Gilmer and J. B. Schulkin, of Columbus, for the State, and by Hon. Joo. D. Bellamy, C. M. Bernard and Donald McCrackin for the prisoners. Counsel for the prisoners presented to the court a letter purporting to have been written by Cross Edmondson, who was the principal witness for the prosecution and on whose testimony the two Registers were convicted, in which Edmondson claims that he was coerced into testifying as he did falsely. Here is the letter to the Governor and the spelling and all being just as in the letter, to-wit:

"To the Honorable C. B. Aycock, Governor of North Carolina, Raleigh, N. C.:

"Dear Sir: I have been wanting to write to you for some time, but being in prison and but little chance to write, I have neglected it until now. I beg to submit a matter to you for your consideration which I feel it my duty to make known to you as the Chief Magistrate of North Carolina, to-wit:

"I am here in the State's prison serving a sentence of six years for the murder of Jim Staley, who was said to have been murdered on March 29, 1903, in Columbus county. I was arrested, charged with the crime, a warrant sworn out by A. C. Smith, a man then held in jail awaiting trial, in which a true bill had been found against him for the murder of Jim Staley and Jerry Sales, and I was put in jail with A. C. Smith and W. J. Benton, jailor, and W. H. Thompson, deputy sheriff. J. B. Schulkin and A. C. Smith told me they had enough evidence to hang me, but if I would swear that J. B. Register did the murder of Jim Staley and Jesse Sales, and that H. B. Register procured, advised and did hire me and J. B. Register, that they would see that I would not be hurt, but if I did not testify to the statement that they give me and learnt to me in J. B. Schulkin's office, that they would have me hanged, which I did to save my own life. They took me out of jail and put a woman's clothes on me and carried me twelve miles or more, and carried me to a keg of whiskey and made me swear that J. B. Register put it there. They made me sell where a gun was hid in the woods, and sent this crowd of men to hunt it, and made me swear that H. B. Register had given the gun to me to shoot a negro by the name of Wilson Toon.

"Now I feel like that I am where they men can't hurt me, and I want you to know that I was made to swear to a falsehood against H. B. Register and J. B. Register from beginning to end. Not one word of my testimony against them was true. It was made up and pland by the men whose names I give you in this letter, and I was scared by them and made to swear to it against two innocent men. Not knowing how to get this letter to you, I give it to a friend to send out of here for me, hoping you will give this your emedate attention and see that the innocent don't suffer and look after these that made me swear against them for that they did not do.

"Yours very respectfully,
"C. EDMONDSON."

Editor Daniels Hanged in Effigy
Richmond Headlight.

We readily regret that Editor Daniels was treated thus by some of the Trinity students. We cannot think that many of these young men took a part in this unfortunate proceedings. This action, under its most favorable coloring will tarnish the history of this great institution. Mr. Daniels needs no defense, as a public journalist one of the State's greatest men he did what he conceived to be his duty, as a journalist, this, and nothing more, and his people, especially his brethren of the press, will condemn this indignity offered to him by the students of a great college. Joe Daniels' services to North Carolina since 1898, cannot be weighed or measured, and we are not ready to lose them. But if he is ever hanged, we hope it will not be done for killing Prof. Bass, or Booker Washington.

Red Tape by the Mile.
Collier's Weekly.

There is red tape in the methods of the American War department, but for gorgeous complications of system, a recent illustration in the British army eclipses all records on this side of the water. An officer had occasion to use a screw-driver, just a plain, ordinary 25-cent screw-driver. In a moment of rashness he decided not to buy it on his own account, but made formal application for the implement from the supply of the government stores. The request for a screw-driver was read, approved, endorsed, by one officer after another up the long ladder—whose rounds were festooned with red tape—until it reached the topmost seat of authority whose was action final. There the application was solemnly considered and started back on its downward path through the various official channels, it reached the audacious officer who made the request, and forgotten about it in the intervening weeks.

He was informed that screw-drivers were supplied only in boxes of tools, and not singly. He was not daunted, but with admirable persistence, filed out another form, requesting the box of tools in order that he might obtain the screw-driver. After the same weary round of delay and formality, this application came back. Its indorsement stated that boxes of tools were only supplied to carpenter shops. The patient officer scratched his head, and then, remembering that he had set the ball rolling when he wanted a screw-driver, coupled this with the document relating to the box of tools and the carpenter shop, and set himself down again to fill out a blank application.

This time he asked for a carpenter shop, and a month later received word that a duly equipped and appointed carpenter shop would be supplied him.

Three months from the time he had happened to want a screw-driver he received a carpenter shop. Through an oversight in packing, there was no screw-driver in the box of tools.

A Sea Disappearing.
The Sea of Azov, says a St. Petersburg dispatch, is disappearing and remarkable scenes are in course of enactment at Taggering, the waters having receded to such an extent during the last five days that the bed of the sea is visible for a distance of thousands of feet. High winds hurled clouds of sand shoreward covering the town. Vessels are living high and dry and the greatest confusion prevails in the harbor. The work of factories has had to be reduced to the minimum owing to the lack of water.

Run Over by a Street Car.
Mrs. G. A. Piver, 63 years old, and wife of a confederate pensioner here, says a Wilmington special to the Charlotte Evening Chronicle, was run over by a street car Wednesday morning and fatally injured. Both her feet were cut off above the ankle, and she was otherwise bruised and broken. She was crossing the street from a bank where she had just received money for her annual pension check and did not hear the car approaching at a high rate of speed.

Lumber Bridge Local.

That is a noble gift and a splendid example and by one of the finest women in this section, the donation of one thousand dollars by Mrs. M. M. McKinnon to The Southern Presbyterian College and Conservatory of Music to be known as The D. P. McKinnon Scholarship to help as the years go by, some worthy orphans from the St. Andrews Orphan Home at Barium Springs. What a gracious memorial to a generous man by a woman who is the salt of the earth. How this benefaction will live on to bless the memory of the dead and help the resident of the living!

Mr. Will Sinclair, of Shannon died in Fayetteville, last Saturday night, and was buried in the cemetery near Mr. D. A. Smith's residence, Monday. Everything that could be done to alleviate his suffering and prolong his life was tried in vain. We sympathize with the sorrowing family.

War on the Isthmus
The Result of the Cruise of the Atlanta.

Colombian Troops on the Gulf of Darien—An Officer Objected to the Presence of American War Ships.

The United States cruiser Atlanta, Commander William H. Turner, say a Colon dispatch dated December 17th, returned here last night from the Gulf of Darien. She discovered, December 15, a detachment of Colombian troops numbering visually about 500 men, but, according to their statements, totaling 1,500 or 2,000 men, at Titumati, on the western side of the gulf, just north of the mouth of the Atrato river.

The commander of the Atlanta sent ashore an officer, who conferred with the Columbia commander. The latter protested energetically against the presence of American warships in Colombian waters, inasmuch as war between Colombia and the United States had not been declared, and politely requested the Atlanta to leave the gulf because it belongs to Colombia. Commander Turner ignored the request and the Atlanta returned to Colon to report the matter to Rear Admiral Coghlan.

The Colombians are clearly busy with protective and strengthening measures. Although they treated the Americans courteously they decidedly resented the presence of the Atlanta's landing party. The Colombian force was composed partly of the men landed recently at the Atrato river by the Colombian cruisers Cartagena and General Pinzon.

Early in the morning of December 15, the Atlanta sighted a small schooner in the center of the Gulf of Darien and followed her to the western shore, where the schooner attempted to hide behind an isle. Lieutenant Harlan P. Perrill of the Atlanta was ordered to her, board and thereupon a whaleboat was lowered and pulled toward the schooner.

Great excitement prevailed among the Colombians upon the whaleboat's approach. There were repeated cries of "Viva Colombia" and there was a sudden concentration of about 150 Colombian soldiers on the beach.

Gen. Ortiz said that Lieutenant Perrill should fly the Colombian flag at the bow of the whaleboat, or lower the American flag at her stern, because she was in Colombian waters. Lieutenant Perrill replied that he did not have a Colombian flag, and refused to lower the stars and stripes. Gen. Ortiz did not insist upon his so doing, but he protested in writing against the presence of the Americans in Colombian waters. Lieutenant Perrill accepted the protest and conveyed it to Commander Turner, who handed it to Rear Admiral Coghlan on his arrival here.

The Colombian camp appeared to be permanent, was well provisioned and probably destined to be used as a base of operations.

Gen. Ortiz freely expressed the determination of Colombia to fight to the bitter end in case Gen. Reyes' visit to Washington is not successful and Panama is not returned to Colombia.

Catawba Indians Dissatisfied.
Rock Hill, S. C., Herald.

The remnant of the Catawba tribe of Indians, about 80 whose reservation is in this county, eight miles east of Rock Hill, are dissatisfied with the pittance yearly appropriated to these faithful red men. They now receive $800 annually for distribution among the members of the tribe and $290 for a school in the reservation. If we are not mistaken, the State treaty agreed to pay them $9,000 annually for 99 years. That limit has long since passed, but the State continues to hold the 20-mile square ceded to it by the Catawbas. They have been dispossessed of their lands without hope of reclamation and the State ought to treat them fairly by appropriating yearly to the pure bloods something more than the pittance they receive.

Missouri's Big Egg Crop.

What do you think of a state whose hens laid in 1902 so many eggs that it sold 51,217,755 dozens for $5,877,815 73? This is the record of Missouri. Greene county laid more eggs on the world's table than any other county. Its surplus product was 4,650,000 dozens. Macon sold 1,562,949 dozen Livingstone sold 1,426,885 dozen. Chariton sold 1,227,590 dozen. Franklin sold 1,181,750 dozen.

A Large Meteor Which Fell at Mendon, Mich., the other night, destroyed a portion of the bridge over the St. Joe River. It buried itself in the earth and made a hole nearly twenty feet deep. It gave forth a screeching sound as it passed through the sky and struck the earth with a report that was heard for a long distance.

A COTTON-PRODUCING TREE.

Wonderful Tree of Mexico That Produces a Fine Quality of the Fleeco Staple.

It is expected that the Mexican government will soon make public the results of experiments which it has been conducting during the past three or four years in the cultivation of a new species of a tree which produces large yields of cotton of a superior quality, says the Dallas Texas Dispatch. While no official announcement on the subject has yet been made it is known that these experiments have been highly successful. The discovery that a high grade of cotton is produced by this tree and that it may be successfully grown in many parts of Mexico, and probably in the Southern portions of the United States particularly in the semi-arid region of South-west Texas, is looked upon as of the greatest importance to the industrial and agricultural interests of the countries. The fact that it is also claimed that this cotton-producing tree is immune to the attacks of the cotton-boll weevil, which at this time menaces the cotton growing industry of the South and Mexico, is of itself of sufficient significance to attract wide attention. The tree has long been known to the Indians who inhabit the western part of Jalisco, and that it is remarkable that the commercial importance of its product was not recognized long ago. This is probably accounted for, however by the fact that the native home of the tree, so far as known, is confined to a small valley, situated remote from travel and civilization.

It remained for Senor Cuevas, the article says, to find the tree in full fruitage and to quickly grasp the similarity of its product to that of the cotton plant. The Indians who live in the region where the tree was discovered by Senor Cuevas say that it attains an age of more than fifty years, and bears constantly from the time it is three or four years old. The tree attains a height of thirty to forty feet.

Offered the Lumberton Agency but Declined.

A Special from Wilmington to the Raleigh Post says: Capt. Thos. D. Meares, general agent of the Seaboard Air Line in this city and thirty odd years in continuous and active employment of the road, will be replaced by Mr. F. B. Williamson January 1st. The first intimation of the change came Tuesday in a letter from Mr. Towsley, superintendent of this division, in which he apprised Capt. Meares of the change and offered the company's agency at Lumberton on a salary of $70. Capt. Meares wired in reply that he preferred not to wait until January 1st, but would be ready to turn over the business today.

Capt. Meares' summary dismissal has created nothing short of a sensation here, on account of his prominence in the community and in the face of his long and faithful services as an employee of the company. The news was the chief topic of conversation. The move on the part of the Seaboard cannot be understood. Capt. Meares says the officials have never made a complaint against him and, so far as he knows, there has been no friction with the management.
