Judge B. F. Long was rather severe in sentencing two pillars of the law in Madison county criminal court last week, says the Stanley Enterprise. One justice of the peace was fined $300 tor "tanking up" and the other $200 for practicing law. There seems to be a tendency on the part of some "J P's." who have held office long a position in the company store at enough to know a little law and to be able to partially interpret court fees are always made safe, and, usually, the fellow who is brought before the court had rather submit to the payment of costs than being put to the trouble of etting up a defence. The practicing "J. P." needs to be closely looked after, and in both sentences referred to above Judge Long has set an example that other judges will do well to follow.

M. F. Craw ord & Co. is a corporation, being duly incorporated under the laws of Nor h Carolina. Its stockholders are not responsible beyond their actual investment in the busi ess. The business was incorporated six years ago with a paid in capita of $5,000. Since its incorporation it has made for its stockholders clear of all expenses $16.800, or more than 50 percent, per year on the original investment. This $16.8 6 has been invested in stock at parand this, added to the original investment of $5,000, constitutes the capital stock today and the net worth of the corporation after all indebtedness has been paid. L. A. Williamson is President; M. A. Glazebrook, of Richmond Vice-President, and M. F. Crawford is Secre tary, Treasurer and Manager.

These are the only stockholders in the corporation. Parties interésted will be given any further information desired at our office in
