GETS AT THE JOINTS FROM THE INSIDE

RUBBING DON'T CURE.

Rheumatism is an internal disease and requires an internal remedy. RHEUMACIDE "Gets at the Joints from the Inside," and that is the reason it Cures after all other remedies have failed. Rheumacide sweeps all the poisonous germs and acids out of the blood and "Makes You Well All Over." Those pains are danger signals, warning you of a disease that threatens the entire system. Headaches, Pains, Bad Taste in the Mouth, that "No-Account" feeling indicate that you need

Rheumacide

REMOVES THE CAUSE OF THE PAIN.

Quincy, Mass., July 18, 1905.
Bobbitt Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.
Dear Sirs: I was laid up last November with Rheumatism in my feet and ankles, but after taking four bottles of Rheumacide I have not been bothered since. I tried every old kind of liniment and was under two doctors, and all I tried had the same result, until I got Rheumacide. Now, I am pleased to say, it has not been necessary for me to take any medicine for Rheumatism since February last. Everybody that I recommended it to has had the same results.
Yours very truly,
P. RANAGAN, Manager,
Quincy Industrial Co-operative Society.

Cured 80-year-old Mrs. Mary Wolborn, of High Point, N. C., after she had suffered 20 years. Cured Rev. J. R. Wheeler, 70 years old, a leading Methodist minister, of Reisterstown, Md. Cured John F. Elina, of Baltimore, after Johns Hopkins Hospital had completely failed. Cured James Wilkes, of Dillon, S. C., after he had been in bed three years and his legs were drawn up against his back. The Modern Method.

F. Hopkinson Smith, painter, author, engineer and professional optimist, tells a story showing that Boston boys of the street are like all others. He overheard a conversation between two youngsters selling newspapers. "Say, Harry, what's de best way to teach a girl how to swim?" asked the younger one. "Dat's a cinch. First off yer puts your left arm under her waist and you gently takes her left hand—"

She Couldn't Draw It.

A school teacher one day, during the hour for drawing, suggested to her pupils that each draw what he or she would like to be when grown up. At the end of the lesson one little girl showed an empty slate. "Why," said the teacher, "Isn't there anything you would like to be when you grow up?" "Yes," said the little girl, "I would like to be married, but I don't know how to draw it."

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs and colds. H. B. Ward, Rowland, and J. D. McMILLAN, Lumberton.

Misunderstood.

The danger of sending telegrams is shown in the following story: A member of Parliament was to have made a speech at Derby, and, being unable to do so because the heavy rains had destroyed the branch railway, sent a telegram, as follows: "Cannot come—washout on line." In a few hours this reply was received: "Never mind, borrow a shirt." For a Weak Digestion. No medicine can replace food but Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will help you to digest your food. It is not the quantity of food taken that gives strength and vigor to the system, but the amount digested and assimilated. If troubled with a weak digestion, don't fail to give these Tablets a trial. These tablets have been benefited by their use. They only cost a quarter. For sale by McLean-Rogers Co., The Pope Drug Co., H. B. Ward.

SHORT IN TUSCANY, FRANCE

People of This Section Shoot Bats and Jays Simply to Eat Them—What English Writer Thinks.

The olive trees round Lucca are not nearly so old or so gnarled looking as those familiar to visitors on the Riviera, probably because, owing to the proximity of the mountains, the climate, in which they grow is more temperate. The earth in which they grow is a reddish-gravelly soil; in fact, for olives, the drier the earth the better, and they do not require much depth. It takes the fruit of five of the largest trees to make only one barrel of the pure oil containing 36½ litres—that is about 110 pounds in weight; and even this amount cannot be reckoned upon oftener than once in every two years. Moreover, an olive tree has to be planted and grafted four years before it will produce fruit at all, says Lieut. Col. Andrew Haggard, D. S. O., in Chambers' Journal.

There would be a great many beautiful singing birds in the groves and mountain sides around Lucca were it not for the passion which the Tuscan contadini have for la caccia—the chase! The sport they indulge in all day long is shooting at goldfinches and linnets and other little birds, all of which are sold and eaten. In the markets at Lucca I have seen jays for sale. Upon my expressing a doubt as to their succulency, I was assured that they were excellent—when boiled. Fancy boiled jay as a repast!

There is apparently no rule in Tuscany as to not shooting on the high roads. Indeed, on every mile or two of roadway you will probably meet at least one caccia-tore with a gun upon his shoulder. They will fire at anything, even a bat. I myself saw my friend's cook, Tito by name, shoot a bat on the high road; he said if he could only get enough of them they would make a good pie. Ye gods! but pie and Loiled jay—what a fencer!

I ascertained that there is some excellent trout fishing to be obtained not far from Lucca, many of the trout being of good size. The trout are already in season in the month of February and rise very well in March and April to a fly.

This is the season of listlessness, head aches and spring disorders. Holister's Rocky Mountain Tea is a sure preventative. Makes you strong and vigorous. 35 cent. Tea or Tablets. Ask your Druggist.

Mules have one admirable trait—they refuse to respond to flattery.

Happiness only comes to those who try to make others happy.

USEFUL RATHER THAN RICH.

A young man of ability and great promise recently refused to enter a vocation which would yield him a large income, lest the temptation to become rich might eat up his desire to help his fellow-men, says Orison Swett Marden, in Success. He feared that the frantic struggle for wealth and self being waged by the majority of men with whom his position would force him to associate would insensibly draw him into the same vortex of selfishness. He felt that his ideals would become tarnished, that his aspirations would be starved in such an atmosphere, and so he chose a vocation which would enable him to render the greatest service to humanity.

It is a refreshing thing, in a material age, to see people who are ambitious to be useful rather than rich, who are more eager to help others than to make money. These are nature's noblemen, these are the characters which enrich life, and which have pushed civilization from the savage to the Florence Nightingales and the Lincolns.

One of the most promising things about our civilization today is that, side by side with the greed for gold, is the ever-growing passion of humanity for good. The number of people who prefer to be useful to their fellow-men is constantly increasing. This passion for good is the salt of humanity; it is what makes us believe in the future of the race.

RACE EATS BUTTERFLIES.

Australian Natives Are Fond of Grubs as Food—South Americans Like the Guana.

Australian natives are fond of butterflies and large white grubs, and declare them to be more nourishing than the flesh of kangaroos or fowls. The butterflies are pounded into a sort of cake and eaten in that form. The white grub is eaten alive at one mouthful, says What-to-Eat.

The aborigines of South America and Africa consider the guana, a large lizard, a great delicacy. These lizards are not unlike a small crocodile, but are far more unsightly than that creature. Its repulsive appearance is no bar to its being much enjoyed as a food. In an old volume of "Travels" Peter Martyn tells how the Spanish conquerors of South America came to esteem the flesh of this lizard. He says:

"These serpentes are lyke crocodyles, saving in bigness; they call the guanans. Unto that day none of our men durst adventure to taste them, by reason of theyre horrible deformities and lothsomehness. Yet the adelantado, being entysed by the pleasantness of the king's sister, Anacana, determined to taste the serpentes. But when he felte the flesh thereof to be so delicate to his tongue he fel to amayne without all feare. The which thyng his companions perceiving were not behynd him in greedyness, inso-much that they had now none other talk than of the sweetnesse of these serpentes, which they affirme to be of more pleasant taste than eyther our pheasantes or partridges."

ALL AT SEA ON SUBJECT.

Heinrich Corried was laying his winter plans before a group of reporters. One of the young men asked a foolish question, and Mr. Corried said:

"That question reveals your ignorance of music, doesn't it?"

"Yes, I suppose it does," the reporter answered frankly. "I confess that I don't know enough music to tell a waltz from a march."

"Your question indicated all that and more," said Mr. Corried. "It reminded me of a question I once heard in Quebec.

"A young man accosted an usher in a Quebec theater long before the commencement of the performance, and pointing to the huge bass viol that leaned against the piano in the still empty orchestra, he said, excitedly:

"Where is the best place to sit to get a good sight of the man that is going to put that fiddle under his chin?"

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

GEESE FOR THE TEUTONS.

Great Flocks Cross the Russian Frontier in the Fall Months—Are Fattened.

Americans who cross the Russian frontier in the fall months on the railroad between Warsaw and Berlin are likely to see an unusual sight. They will observe flocks of geese numbering 1,000 or more being driven toward the frontier, says the New York Sun.

Each flock is in charge of four or five men, some with red flags and others with hooked sticks. If a refractory bird straggles out of line it is deftly caught by the neck with a hooked stick and returned to its place.

Germany buys more than 2,000,000 of these Russian geese every year between August and November. The Germans are very fond of goose and especially of smoked goose breast, which sells for about 25 cents in that country and for two or three times as much in New York. Roast goose is also the principal dish on St. Martin's day, both in Germany and in Russia, having the same honored place that the turkey occupies with us on Thanksgiving day.

Far back in Russia one may see at the geese collecting stations the loading of hundreds of cars with these birds. The cars have four platforms, one above another, and a little gangway is stretched from the ground to the highest shelf.

It requires some coaxing to get the birds up the gangway, but when one starts others crowd along and the platform is soon filled. Then the bridge is connected with the next lower platform, and so on till the car is locked up with several hundred geese on board.

Geese do not stand long transportation very well. Several years ago the Russian exporters made the experiment of sending them through to Germany without any rest. Many of the birds were sick when they reached the frontier, and the Germans refused to buy them.

So that exporters went back to the old plan. When the journey is long, and it often takes several days, the geese are unloaded at two or three intervals and driven through the fresh air and across the commons, where they may eat some grass, to the next station, when they are loaded on the cars again.

As the trains approach the frontier they are stopped at a little village, the geese are taken off and start on their last walk. They are hospitably welcomed by the employes of the goose fattening plants across the border. Ponds to swim in and the most nutritious food are provided, and in a few weeks they are ready for market.
