

ROWLAND DEPARTMENT.

Geo. K. McNeill, Managers
Neil Smith

The man who has a constitution strong enough to withstand an attack of Spring fever and baseball fever combined is far too good for this old earth and deserves no credit for such supernatural power. There are a few such people in the country, but they are the obvious anachronisms of the seasons and may be excused for existence on that score. When the dogwood blossoms whiten the hedges and the blue-bird and mocking-bird fill the air with their singing, the man who feels no insane longing to go off somewhere and lie flat on his back and watch the hawks circling far above him, is not fit to associate with decent people no more than a jack daw is worthy of companionship with a nightingale; and he who can hump himself over a column of figures, oblivious to the shouts of the youngsters and the crack of the baseball bat on the vacant lot just across the alley from his office, is not to be trusted along with the man who occasionally feels the call of pleasure stronger than the call of duty and who isn't too busy trying to "lay up for himself treasures on earth" to snatch a few moments of relaxation and enjoyment by the wayside. Duty is conceded by all men to be the grandest word in the language, but it is so often condescended with greed that it is almost impossible to refrain from questioning the motives of some men. The man who works from a sense of duty, however, is rarely the man who never finds time to laugh with the world in the joy of living. I would rather lie in the shade and write a song that would live, or help win one championship ball game, than spend my days in an eternal battle in which envy and avarice were the dominant motives.

The Piano Recital by the music pupils of the Rowland High School, mentioned in our last, was thoroughly enjoyed. The stage of the academy was beautifully decorated and the program was artistically rendered. The music department of the school is under the direction of Miss Myrtle Muse and the commendable skill of the pupils is a source of much pride to teacher and patrons. The program was lengthy and comprehensive, but by no means tiresome, and only a lack of space precludes our printing it. The height of its standard is the greatest compliment that could be paid teacher or pupil.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Cox, of Alfordville were in town Friday.

Miss Mattie Draughan is visiting friends at Raeford and Bennettsville this week.

Mrs. R. T. Drahan and children are visiting friends and relatives at Raeford this week.

We are glad to see Mr. T. W. Broke at home again after an absence of two weeks in Georgia.

Mrs. R. S. Dixon, returned home from Red Springs Wednesday. We are glad to report her health much better than a few weeks ago.

The Good Old Way.

A severe cold or attack of grippe is like a fire, the sooner you combat it the better your chances are to overpower it. But few mothers in this age are willing to do the necessary work required to give a good old-fashioned reliable treatment such as would be administered by their grandmothers, backed by Boschee's German Syrup, which was always liberally used in connection with the home treatment of colds and is still in greater household favor than any known remedy. But even without the application of the old-fashioned aids German Syrup will cure a severe cold in quick time. It will cure colds in children or grown people. It relieves the congested organs, allays the irritation, and effectively stops the cough. Any child will take it. It is invaluable in a household of children. Trial size bottle, 25c; regular size, 75c. For sale by Dr. J. D. McMillan.

INSECTS THAT ARE MUSICAL

All Are Tenors—Males—Are Always the Musicians—Divided in Two Sections.

Musical insects of the winged type may be divided into two groups: (1) Those which do not use their wings and (2) those which do, for the production of sound. Of the two, the latter species is by far the more numerous. A very curious fact is that all insects are tenors, deep bass voices being quite unknown; in addition to this, the males are always the performers, female insects being dumb—contenting themselves with stopping at home and looking after the children instead of standing at the front door singing like their lords and masters, says the Scientific American.

Many insects sing by day, such, for instance, as the chickadee, which, however, are not of the "violinist" type, as they play upon a series of hard plates attached to the abdomen, much in the same way as a Spanish dancer uses the castanets. Another insect of this type is the black field cricket, which has its home in a small, cave-like dwelling it prepares in the earth.

Other insects only sing by night—such, for instance, as the domestic and tree crickets, whose regular modulated notes are known to every one. The apparatus used by these insects exactly resembles a violin, the abdomen being partially endowed with small bridge-like edges or ridges, against which the wings are rubbed, thus producing the strident note characteristic of the insect.

Other insects, such as locusts and their kin, have veritable bows covered with fine ridges and attached to the wings by two button-like growths. Others have cavities covered over with a fine membrane which serve the office of resonators; in almost all insects of this type there is a parchment like part of the abdomen which acts as a kind of sounding board. Strange to say, many of these harmonious insects are deprived of hearing. Crickets, however, are an exception, as they have sharp ears and cease their vocal efforts at the sound of approaching footsteps. Some insects, although apparently deprived of any means for the production of sound, are none the less capable of making a noise in the world. A notable instance of this is to be found in a locust rejoicing in the euphonious name of Microcentrum tetinervis, which produces a short, monotonous note like two pieces of metal or flint rubbed together.

So far the field of insect voices has not been widely explored. It would be interesting to study them from the point of view of musical notation, and also to determine whether their song alters in any way according to the season, hour of the day, age of the insect and meteorological conditions.

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do You Fear Consumption?

When we take into consideration the fact that one out of every seven in this climate die of consumption, is it any wonder that it is feared by the people of Lumberton who have weak lungs and chronic colds and coughs?

A famous London physician has for years urged his patients, when the slightest tendency to consumption appeared, to take the best cod liver preparation they could find, and physicians everywhere have recognized that the cod's liver contains curative values for coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption and all wasting diseases unequalled in medicine. But, unfortunately, few could take and derive any benefit from old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions on account of the indigestible grease which they contain.

Every person in Lumberton should know the value of the new cod liver preparation, Vinol. It actually contains in a concentrated form all of the strengthening body-building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cod's livers, without a drop of oil or grease to upset the stomach and retard its work. Therefore, where old-fashioned cod liver oil or emulsions would do good, Vinol will do far more good. We guarantee Vinol will improve the appetite, strengthen digestion, make rich, red blood, create strength, cure chronic coughs and colds and strengthen weak lungs. If Vinol fails to give satisfaction, we return your money without question. J. D. McMillan Druggist.

WARD'S
All Healing Antiseptic.
IT GUARDS HEALTH AND HEALS.
Germs are ever ready to attack either man or beast. A wound from any cause will be quickly infected with them, and if they do not cause blood poisoning they will at least retard the healing and cause the sore to be most painful. Wherever there is fermentation, decay or pus, there are germs. Ward's All-Healing Antiseptic will destroy them, and is therefore a preparation that should be kept at hand for instant use. It is good for man or beast. It is invaluable in treating wounds, scalds, burns, bruises, headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, toothache, bowel complaint, diarrhoea, cholera morbus, flux, colic, etc. We guarantee this preparation. PRICE 25c.
