The scene was a lovely cne. Promptly at 8:30 o'clock, as Miss Mary Southerland McNair charmingly rendered Mendelsohn's wedding march, the attendants entered in the following order: Miss Katie Buie and Mr. Girden R. Thagard; Miss Fodie christian, in whom all who knew Ausley and Mr. R. Duncan Gra-Lacy McNair. Then, as the curtains at the middle door were drawn aside by Misses Clyde McNair and Lorena Lancaster, Miss Della McNair, maid of honor, entered, carrying a boquet of pink carnations, while following was the groom with his best man, Mr. McLean McGeachy. Next came the bride, handsomely dressed in white silk, carrying bride's roses and real orange blossoms, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. M. E. McNair. After the wedding a most delightful reception was enjoyed by a host of friends. The dining room was decorated in red and green. The centro table was beautiful with white carnations and ferns. Delicious refreshments were bountifully served. The presents were numerous and valuable. P.
