Dr. Sinclair Dead.

Dr. Duncan Sinclair died Saturday night at his home in Rowland, aged about 80 years, death resulting from the infirmities of old age. The interment took place this morning at Ashpole Presbyterian church.

Dr. Sinclair is survived by his wife, a son, Mr. N. A. Sinclair, of Fayetteville, and a daughter, Miss Seville Sinclair. Several sisters also survive.

Greater Washington Special.

The Greater Washington Special arrived here Thursday afternoon about 4 o'clock, instead of 6 o'clock, as was the original intention. The train was sidetracked at the depot and for about three hours the merchants and other of the town visited it and inspected the lines represented and displayed in the cars. Those who did go received courteous attention from those in charge and were very favorably impressed with the idea.

The object of the train and the trip is to serve notice on the Southern merchants that Washington is in the field to compete for some of the commercial business of this section. Some of the leading business houses of the capital city were represented by lines of samples and representatives. The undertaking is under the auspices of the Washington Star, which also had clever representatives along.

Lumberton looked real business-like Saturday. The farmers were in with cotton and tobacco and other farm commodities and all day long the streets presented a busy appearance. Later in the afternoon the employes of the local manufactories turned out and added to the shoppers.

Scottish Chief: We all regret very much to give up Mr. M. G. McKintie and family who are moving away to Lumberton. It is very inconvenient for him to attend to his official duties while residing here, hence his move. We shall miss these excellent people. But to perform efficiently the duties of any office one must be situated so that he can begin his day's work before the middle of the day. We hope that when he lays aside the onerous duties of county treasurer, he will return here to live.

Dr. P. Crumpler.
Fayetteville Observer.

Chief of Police Chason has a warrant for one P. Crumpler, M. D., said to be from Pembroke, or about to locate in Pembroke. The warrant says that this Dr. P. Crumpler has been issuing prescriptions for whiskey to a number of Fayetteville boys, in violation of the Cumberland county prohibition law, in that the boys prescribed for were not bona fide patients of the said Dr. Crumpler. The Chief has found that quite a number of these prescriptions were put to good (or bad) use, and is now looking for Dr. Crumpler. Dr. Crumpler's friends say that he issued the prescriptions in good faith, while some others say that the doctor is a myth.

DIED.

On September 25th, 1906, at her home in White House township, the soul of Mrs. Julia Ivey, beloved wife of Mr. M. R. Ivey, was suddenly called from the trials and tribulations of this probationary state to that rest prepared for the people of God.

In her death the community in which she lived and labored has lost a most estimable Christian woman; her church one of its most faithful and efficient workers; her children a loving, tender and sacrificing mother; and her husband a tender and faithful companion.

She was 43 years of age, and has been a consistent and valued member of the Baptist Church for about 30 years, having professed faith in Christ and joined the church in her childhood days. She was the mother of eleven children, eight of whom are still living to bless her memory.

The funeral services were conducted at her late residence on September 27th, by Rev. W. C. Wallace, of Dillon, S. C., after which her body was borne by loving hands to the family burying ground and tenderly laid away to await the resurrection morn.

Sevant of God, well done, rest from thy employ;

The battle's fought, the victory's won,
Enter the Master's joy.

A FRIEND.
