POTATO PARTY.

Bright Jewels Celebrate—Halloween—Raise Money For Orphans.
Reported For The Robesonian.

The Bright Jewels Society of the Methodist church gave a potato and Halloween party, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Norment Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Seventy-five invitations were issued, with the request that each recipient bring as many potatoes as they were years old. When the crowd assembled, it was found that about 20 bushels of potatoes had been contributed. The guests were met at the door by Misses Amanda McDiarmid, and Annie Neill Fuller, and Messrs. Wallace Norment and Paul Paris. From there they were conducted by two of the young receivers to the large ware room at the rear of the house, where they were greeted by other members of the society.

The walks of the building were covered with autumn leaves, and suspended from the ceiling, were a number of Japanese lanterns, which lighted up the building with a weird glow, suggestive of witches and goblins. The trying of fortunes were then begun. Apples hanging from the ceiling were, after many attempts, bitten by some, although many tried in vain. The extinguishing of candles; walking blindfold to plates of water and other tests of fortune, were the cause of much merriment, and their shouts of laughter and mingled chatter continued unceasingly through the hours. At the rear of the building a curtain hung, which when drawn aside, revealed the pumpkin head with red, staring eyes and ghostly grin suspended in mid air. Beneath it were the fortune tellers, Miss Ruth Whaley, attired in a long, black cape and pointed hood; the ghost, Miss Annie Neill Fuller, looking awesome in her white robe and white face with shining eyes and the little witch, Miss Jean Jones, with black robes and tall red cap, stooping over a gipsy pot, and stirring up fortunes. Each in turn heard their future; some causing much laughter.

Fortunes written on strips of paper, were then taken through the crowd and distributed, after which fruit was given out to the crowd. And last,—sacks of peanuts were suspended from the ceiling and struck by a blindfolded boy, these falling to the floor, scattered all over the room, and the scramble by the children was a most amusing sight. After playing various games on the lawn, the children wended their way to their homes, assuring their entertainers of a most delightful evening.

The Bright Jewels felt more than repaid for their efforts, by the evident enjoyment of their guests, and the generous contribution of potatoes for which they desire us to express their sincere thanks.

Hopes For Mutineers.

Raleigh Special, 2nd. to Charlotte Observer.

It is learned in conversation with officials here that there is strong possibility of the President commuting to life imprisonment the death sentence of the two negro mutineers now in jail at Wilmington. The district attorney, Harry Skinner, prosecuted them with great vigor, but now popular sentiment at Wilmington is very greatly in favor of a lesser sentence than death. These prisoners have conducted themselves admirably during their long imprisonment. It is said that Colonel Skinner will soon go to Washington and that he will probably assent to commutation, which has been urged by the ministers at Wilmington and others.
