The Love of Money and the Reckless Pursuit of It.

Success Magazine.

The reckless pursuit of money is the great American curse. In no other country in the world is there the same temptation to coin all of one's ability, energy, education—everything—into dollars as in America.

The resources are so vast, the opportunities for wealth so great, that it is not a very level head not to be swept into the current that sets toward the dollar. Nowhere on the globe is Mammon worshipped so universally as in America. The very freedom and equality of our republican institutions double the danger.

The first question the average youth asks himself when he leaves school or college, or starts out to make his way in the world is not "How can I make the largest possible man of myself?" but "How can I get hold of the largest amount of money?" He sees everybody straining and striving, sacrificing almost everything that is worn while to get hold of the dollar. Is it strange, then, that he should get this dollar contagion when everybody around him seems to be infected?

Isn't it a pitiful sight to see young men trying to turn a college education into money, selling the ideal to the highest bidder, putting up at auction their ability?

Everything nowadays seems to be gain. Working for the ideal seems to have become a lost art. "How much money can I get for my picture? How much royalty for my book? How much for my story? How big a salary can I get for my education? Will it pay?" is written upon everything.

The American people have cultivated the accumulating instinct so long, so strenuously, that it has become voracious, and, in many instances, has grown to such gigantic proportions as to dwarf the rest of the individual.

The transforming power of money the moment it gets into a man's possession is one of the unsolved mysteries of the universe. Of course, we know that the poison of avarice and greed is in the character, and not in the money; but it is unfortunate that the possession of money seems to develop, to bring out, some of the worst human qualities—qualities which never develop in poverty, or show themselves under ordinary circumstances.

Before we get possession of money we feel sure that we will not allow it to warp and twist our ideals. We are going to show the world a sane use of money. We are going to help everybody. We are going to help struggling merit, assist poor boys and girls to get an education and to get a start in the world. We are going to be helpful and useful in the largest possible way.

But it is a strange trait in human nature, that no matter how humble or democratic or helpful and companionable people may be while poor, just as soon as the average man gets more than his fellows, he begins to domineer over them, and to use the very wealth, which he was so anxious to get to enable him to help his fellow men, to oppress and keep them down.

Avarice is one of the most dangerous human qualities, because so subtle in its development. It grows as wealth and power increase until it becomes a monster which finally dominates its victims.

But fortunately there are tens of thousands of noble men and women in our land who have not been touched by the money taint, to whom it carries but little weight compared with the greater pursuit of the ideal. Some of the finest intellects on the American continent are making heroic sacrifices for their ideals, are working for less money than some stenographers and many private secretaries are getting. Fortunately for the world, there is a growing majority of those who would rather put beauty into the life than dollars into the pocket, who live for art's sake, for truth's sake, for the sake of principle and not for the dollar's sake. Growth, dot money, expansion, not dollars, is their ambition. To reach the largest and the fullest manhood, the noblest womanhood, is their ruling passion of their lives. Where that is the ambition, the money also, will come, because it is the largeness and fullness of the life which attracts abundance of all that is good and desirable.

The way Mrs. Russell Sage is doing good with the $80,000,000 left her by her husband, is more than enough to make the Napoleon of money lenders turn over in the grave.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the disease portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh. Send for circulars, free.

The Tobacco That Made Chewing Popular

Man's fondness for chewing tobacco is created and popularized by the tobacco produced in the famous Piedmont tobacco belt. Only choice selections of this well matured, thoroughly cured leaf are used in making SCHNAPPS. That's why SCHNAPPS requires and takes a smaller amount of sweetening than any other kind—and that's why SCHNAPPS has a wholesome, stimulating and satisfying effect on chewers.

There are many imitations of SCHNAPPS claiming to be "just as good," but without the flavor or quality that has made SCHNAPPS sales more than all similar tobaccos.

It is made in the Reynolds factories, famous for producing the best chewing tobaccos, by clean, sanitary processes, under the same direction, since 1875, of men who have made the business a life study. They are the largest and best equipped flat plug factories in the world and are situated in the very center of the world's greatest chewing tobacco district.

If you've never chewed SCHNAPPS, now is the time to get acquainted with the cleanest, most healthful, stimulating, satisfying and wholesome form in which tobacco can be used. Do not accept imitations.
