"It is perfectly evident that Craig is far in the lead and his friends now hope that he will win the nomination for Governor on the first ballotin the convention," was the comment yesterday to an Observer man of one of the most prominent and best in- formed citizens of the State, speaking of the present guberna- torial race. The gentleman in question has the reputation of keeping his finger on the move- ments of candidates as well, or better, than any man in North Carolina, and for that reason his words are always weighed heav ily by his friends as well as his enemies. He is in favor of Craig, as the above words readily indi- cate. "There seems to be no shadow of a doubt that Craig will hold his lead until the convention, and in the case that he does fail to re ceive the nomination on the first ballot, his friends believe that he will carry the State in the convention by at least 100 votes. Conventions and pri- maries have been held in ten counties so far and the result has been wonderfully invorable to Mr. Craig. The following tabu- lation shows his strengthin these counties in comparison with the strength of his opponents: VOTES TABULATED. Craig. Kitchin. Horne. Of these counties also	Which it is Based. Charlotte Observer. There is every probability that Senator Overman's bill regulat ing the granting by the Federal courts of temporary injunctions against State officers in the en- lorcement of State laws, will be enacted. This belief rests upon the facts that the Senate judicia- ry committee reported it unani- mously and that the Senate passed it with little debate and practically without opposition. Its provisions have been stated often enough to be understood. Underitan injunction against the enforcement of a State law may not be granted by a single infe- rior Federal judge but the appli- cation is to be heard by three judges, two'of whom must be Circuit Court judges and the third either a circuit or district indge, and the injunction can be granted only by a majority of these. The reason for such a provision of law is apparent When two or three judges de- clare a statute unconstitutional the State officers will not defy the courts and make trouble and the people will besatisfied, which is not the case when the action is that of one judge. Mr. Overman stated this argument well when he said in his remarks to the Senate Eriday: "If this substitute is adopted and three judges have to pass upon the question of the consti- tutionality of a State statute, and great judges say that the statue is unconstitutional, the officers of the State will be less inclined to resist the orders and decree of our Federal courts. The people and the courts of the State are more inclined to abide by the de- cision of three judges than they w old of one subordinate, inferior F-deral judge, who simply upon petition or upon a hearing should the the hands of a State officer from proceeding with the en- forcement of the laws of his sov ereign State." The Norfolk Landmark, en- dorsing this measure, refers to	"If mail order houses get $1, 000 cut of the county each month, that belongs to the home merchants, the fault is with the merchants themselves. These houses advertise and give us prices on everything. They tell us what they have and what they want for it. Of course we get soaked once in awhile. Then we try some other house. Most of the home merchants who advertise don't quote prices They neglect to tell us what we want to know—the prices Of course we can go to the store and ask, but you all know how it is—one does not know so well what he wants to buy when he is at home. And here is where the mail order houses make their hit. They send their advertising matter into our homes, and we read it when we haven't anything else to do. "Right here is where the home merchants fall down. If they taiked their business to us in our homes the same as the mail order houses do, the peo ple would be in to see them in many extra trips to see the things at once that they didn't know they wanted until they were brought to their atten- tion. "The home merchant can save the expense of getting out a catalogue. We read the home paper more carefully than we do the catalogue, and if the merchants want to talk busi- ness with us let them talk in the home papers and put it so we mean business. The mer- chant likely, nine times out of ten, sells his goods as cheaply as the mail order houses, and I believe, in many things they are much cheaper, but how are we to know if he does not tell us about it?"
