THE BREAKING POINT.

eral Assembly in the State of New York should repeal the Statute of descents for real and personal property and the statute with reference to the making of wills, on their death, how much vested interest would any relative have in the property which fell from their nerveless hands at the hour of dissolution? The right to inherit and the right to devise are neither inherent nor constitutional but upon the contrary, they are simply privileges given by the State to its citizens.

"Let backward looking and inward looking men read the returns of the last election. Let them put on masks, go down into the East Side and hear what people are saying about them. Let them not close their eyes and dream that what has been forever will be. All that a man hath will he give for this life and he is not wise who, having plenty, risks it all to get a little more."

Mr. Marshall assailed the protective tariff as one of the principal causes for concentration of wealth.

"Let those who started," he said, "and are keeping up this theory of special privilege which finds its root, its sap and vigor in prohibitive duties, believe me when I say that a change has come across the spirit of the republic. Be not deceived. Our justice is ceasing to be perpendicular and is beginning to be horizontal. Men are refusing longer to look up that favors may be handed down to them and are beginning to look around to see how benefits may be coming to them. Wake up, my brother; be contented with that which thou hast gotten. Yield a little that thou mayst save much."

"The backward-looking and inward-looking men may be able temporarily to check the onward movement of the forward-looking men, but if they do it will be an unwise interference and may result either in a paternalistic system of government which can only endure upon bases of ignorance and serfdom or in a socialistic system which will destroy both the opportunity and the desire of the man to exercise in the fullest capacity his natural and acquired endowments."

Mr. Marshall called on his hearers support President Wilson in his policies "that the individualistic democracy of Thomas Jefferson may not be destroyed."
