The Disappearance of the Young Girl.

Baltimore Sun

The extract from the Pictorial Review, which we print on this page, expresses a feeling that is in many hearts. "What has become of the young girl?" is a question that has long been troubling not only old-fashioned men and women but the younger men of today, who realize what the disappearance of feminine innocence means to their own future and the future of the race. We are fond of talking about the conservation of our natural resources, but how far is modern education and modern training destroying what in a moral sense is more important than all the physical wealth of the earth? We deplore the senseless slaughter of birds of beautiful song and plumage, but are we not murdering something infinitely finer and more valuable when we eliminate the modesty and innocence of the young girl of the past, and substitute for her a person who at 16 has all the maturity of manner and all the familiarity with the problems of life that belong to the woman of 40? Maidenhood no longer stands where the brook and river meet. The living human poem which she represented is in danger of being lost, because the mental and moral condition which produced that ideal no longer exists. We have given her to eat of the tree of knowledge, and though she has become as wise as the serpent she is not as harmless as the dove. The sweet suggestion of Eden has disappeared.

This is not a protest against careful training. It is a demand for more careful and better balanced training. The tendency of the age makes for coarseness and hardening of moral sensibilities in woman—for casting the feminine mind and nature in the same molds as the masculine. To what will a race of such new women give birth? Will the world be better and stronger for them, or will it only be smarter and less moral?

The Difference Between "The Summer Girl" and "The Summer Woman."

While the former is having a "good time" the latter is too often dragging around nervous, run down, tired out, with aching back and weary limbs, sleepless and wretched. Often it is kidney trouble and not female trouble and Foley Kidney Pills are a direct and positive help for the condition. For sale by all dealers.

NOTICE OF SALE.

Under and by virtue of authority given in a certain mortgage deed executed by Warren Revel and wife, Hattie J. Revel to Thomas L. Johnson which is recorded in Book 25, at page 51, office of the Register of Deeds of Robeson county, the undersigned will, on Monday the 18th day of August, 1913, at 12 o'clock noon, at the court house door in the town of Lumberton, offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, the following described lands and premises, situated in Britts township, Robeson county, North Carolina, bounded more particularly as follows, to wit:

Adjoining the lands of the Butters Lumber Co., David Martin, Atlas Britt on both sides of Iveys Bluff road and being the same land formerly owned by William Britt, and upon which W. T. Britt formerly lived, containing 50 acres, the said lands having been conveyed to William T. Britt by Lewis A. Lawson, and conveyed by William T. Britt to Mrs. Susan Proctor by deed dated October 4th, 1897, which said deed is recorded in Book W. W. page 485, office of the Register of Deeds of Robeson county.

This the 10th day of July, 1913.
